CRADOCK, LIEUTENANT GENERAL SIR J. F.
COMMANDER IN CHIEF.
His Minute— . Submits a detailed arrangement of the force of the army of this Presidency—lays before the Board a calculation of the probable expence attending the proposed distribution of the troops—states his opinion upon these particulars and calls the attention of Government to the provisioning Fort St. George, the formation of an arsenal at Seringapatam, and the early assemblage of the army at their appointed stations.	January ..	30
Resolutions thereon,	D ^o . ..	64
Expresses solicitude that the Supreme Government would again take into consideration the measure proposed of placing the advanced position of the Hyderabad Subsidiary Force on the Banks of the Godavery River before its final adoption and describes particularly the expense and inconvenience likely to attend that measure.	D ^o . ..	119
His Minute— . Expresses his regret at being obliged to oppose any measure that Lord William Bentinck is pleased to bring forward, but resists the proposal of further weakening the Military Establishment—Enters at large upon the subject and differs in opinion with his Lordship upon all the leading points of argument, does not conceive this country to be in that secure and flourishing condition that his Lordship represents it, is of opinion that in many parts the Embers of disaffection and revolt are still glowing and therefore strongly deprecates the measure of reduction—Proposes the Establishment of a Commissariat—adverts to the existing Regulation for the Command of Fort St. George, and concludes by expressing a hope that he may not unwillingly have given offence in the course of this discussion.	February ..	254
His Minute— . States that as he does not perceive any new ground of argument or farther information in the Presidents second statement, he declines all controversy, and rests the cause he espouses upon the arguments already set forth on both sides and which are to undergo the Judgment, and be decided upon by Superior Authority.	D ^o . ..	381
Reply of the Commander in Chief to the observations made by the Right Honble the President— . States his unwillingness to offer any sentiments upon those Remarks that the Right Honble the President is pleased to make upon the Report of the Adjutant General with regard to the situation of the officers of those Regiments which it is proposed to reduce—states his opinion that the preferable mode of reduction would be that of Companies of Regiments, the officers remaining attached to their corps until vacancies occur to reinstate them in their proper places.
