Andante

slow=ly move the hours, When pass'd a=way from thee; These fields and lovely bowers, Have then no charms for me . How slow=ly move the hours, When pass'd a=way from thee; These fields and lovely bowers, Have then no charms for me ; You grove that smiles so fair, With Nature's wildest grace; When = = e'er I miss thee there, Becomes a desert place .

If but a day go by,
 Without a sight of thee;
 I carve with many a sigh,
 Thy name on ev'ry tree:
 I wander down the vale,
 And hope to find thee there;
 I tell the rocks my tale,
 Of love and sad despair.
