TANJORE TOWN

AND

ITS ENVIRONS.

THE town of Tanjore consists of the Fort area and a large number of suburbs chief among them being (1) Maharnombuchavady in the South East; (2) The East Gate Market in the East; (3) Karanthai; (4) Palliagraharam in the North; (5) the Railway Station area and the Extension in the South; (6) Ganapathy Nagar (7) Rajappa Nagar (8) Selvam Nagar (9) Daniel Thomas Nagar in the South West and (10) Srinivasapuram in the West.

The Fort area itself has two main divisions namely the small Fort of Sevappa Nayak and the Old Fort of Vijaya Raghava. The former contains the great temple of Raja Raja, the Sivaganga Tank and the Schwartz Church all of which are in a good state of preservation. The old Fort covering an area of 530 acres contains the Palace of the Old Rajahs. The fort walls of thick masonry are for the most part in ruins and what remains of the moat can still be seen except on the southern side where it has been filled and levelled up to form the Present Bus Stand and the adjoining Tilak Maidan. On the eastern rampart of the fort is a monster cannon called "Rajagopala" resembling in shape and size the Golconda cannon of Aurangazeeb.

THE PALACE.

The Palace, approached by a gate-way from the East Main Street is a group of rambling buildings erected by Nayak and Maratta Kings. The chief buildings within the Palace Precincts are (1) The Nayak Durbar Hall (2) the Maratha Durbar Hall (3) Seven Storeyed Royal residence (4) the armoury tower (5) the Square Tower (6) Saraswathy Mahal (7) Sangeetha Mahal and (8) Open Air Theatre.

THE SARASWATHY MAHAL LIBRARY has a remarkable collection of old and valuable manuscripts in Sanskrit, Marathi, Tamil and Telugu. THE SANGEETHA MAHAL where the meetings of the Conference are arranged to be held was erected by Tirumala Nayak in the 17th century as a Royal Music Hall.

The Ranees' Clock Tower on the Main Road from the Railway Station was erected in 1833 and a major portion of its cost was borne by the Maratta Ranees of Tanjore. The Schwartz Church, built in 1779, inside the small fort was a gift of Raja Sarfoji in token of his affection and esteem for Rev. C. E. Schwartz. Its interior contains a marble tablet representing in bass-relief the death bed of Schwartz surrounded by the missionary Gericke, Raja Sarfoji, two of his ministers and three orphans of Schwartz's school.

Karantthai Tamil Sangam was founded in 1911, at Karantthattangudi has established a Tamil College for Vidwans and a Secondary School with an orphanage. Its object is to revive ancient Tamil Culture.

The Big temple of Sri Brihadeesvarar, built by Raja Raja Chola about 1000 A. D. is regarded as the grandest example of South Indian temple architecture. The temple is entered by an imposing gateway on the east. The courtyard round the main gopuram is very broad and is paved with stone slabs and is surrounded by Sivalingas. The Sivalinga of Sri Brahadeeswara is probably the grandest in existence. The Tower over the main shrine is 216 feet in height and is surmounted by a dome capped by a Kalasa. Of the smaller structures inside the temple court, the shrine of Sri Subramanya, that of Goddess Sri Brihanayaki and the colossal monolith figure of Nandhi, the sacred Bull are worthy of mention. Northwest of the temple and within the enclosure of the small fort is the Sivaganga Tank and adjoining the tank is a Public Park maintained by the Municipality. The Raja Raja Chola museum located in the mandapa adjacent to Sri Subramanya temple is an institution of high educational and archaeological interest. The walls of the mandapa are decorated with paintings of the Maratta period and exhibits of historical and religious interest.

Trivadi (Tiruvaiyaru) situated seven miles to the north of Tanjore Town on the banks of the Cauvery is a famous religious centre. The place is also important as containing the Sannadhi of the great poet - composer Sri Thiagayyar. The annual music festival in his honour takes place in the month of January when the leading musicians of South India assemble and give free discourses and performances. Buses ply at frequent intervals between Tanjore and Trivadi.

The Mahatma Gandhi T. B. Sanatorium is situated at a distance of 12 miles to the west of Tanjore town and is accessible by means of motor buses plying between Tanjore and Trichinopoly.

Kumbakonam, about twenty miles from Tanjore is a city of temples and is renowned as the place of the Mahamaham festival held once in twelve years attracting pilgrims from all over India.

Nagore, situated near the sea shore due east of Tanjore at a distance of 50 miles is a holy place for Muslims. It was well endowed by Maratta Rajas and its annual festival in autumn of every year attracts large crowds of pilgrims.

Velanganni, eight miles south of Nagore is a pilgrim centre for Roman Catholics and an annual festival is held in honour of Virgin Mary.
