AUTHENTIC ENGLISH TRANSLATION OF THE NATIONAL ANTHEM

Thou art the ruler of the minds of all people,
Thou dispenser of India's destiny.
Thy name rouses the hearts of the Punjab, Sind, Gujarat and Maratha, of Dravid, Orissa and Bengal.
It echoes in the hills of the Vindhyas and Himalayas, mingles in the music of the Yamuna and Ganges and is chanted by the waves of the Indian Sea.
They pray for Thy blessings and sing Thy praise
The saving of all people waits in Thy hand,
Thou dispenser of India's destiny.
Victory, Victory, Victory to Thee.

INVOCATION TO GODDESS TAMIL

Bharat is like the face beautiful of Earth clad in wavy seas;

Deccan is her brow crescent-like on which the fragrant 'Tilak' is the blessed Dravidian land.

Like the fragrance of that 'Tilak' plunging the world in joy supreme reigns Goddess Tamil with renown spread far and wide.

Praise unto 'You, Goddess Tamil, whose majestic youthfulness, inspires awe and ecstasy.'

THE NATIONAL INTEGRATION PLEDGE

"I solemnly pledge to work with dedication to preserve and strengthen the freedom and integrity of the nation."

"I further affirm that I shall never resort to violence and that all differences and disputes relating to religion, language, region or other political or economic grievances should be settled by peaceful and constitutional means."

A NOTE TO THE TEACHERS

You are indeed a privileged teacher to have a class of students who have completed nine years of learning and acquiring the basic skills of English, and are now ready to take the final steps to competence through your help and guidance! As you are aware, this year your students will not only be honing their skills and refining their abilities but will also be gearing up to face the State Board Examination. Some of them may need to face various interviews for further vocational studies or jobs.

The authors of Std X textbook have kept all these factors in mind while preparing the material, ensuring that the content not only motivates the student into learning and acquiring proficiency in English but also makes better citizens of them.

The passages chosen for study focus in content on the issues of national concern expressed in the National Curriculum Framework 2005 and also provide an insight into the use of style and genre in literature for those who wish to specialize in English at a later date. The Active Learning Methodology has been used in most of the exercises. However you need to be as active a guide and facilitator to your students so that you lead them smoothly through the steps of thinking, discovering, learning, expressing, and going beyond the text to make their learning experience effective. The prose and poetry selections in each unit are thematic and well illustrated with visual images and related verbal references. The passages are provided with pre-reading activities which help the students grasp the theme of the unit and move smoothly into the process of learning with the necessary comprehension, clarity and interest. Formative evaluative questions are inserted at intervals within the prose passage to help students assess their understanding of the passage. Likewise, there are summative questions to provide feedback to teachers on the effectiveness of their teaching.

The vocabulary section of each unit deals with the usage of words, their application and the knowledge of the context in which they are used. Some of the difficult words have been omitted in the glossary in order to facilitate students' self learning through classroom word games; guessing the meaning; and dictionary search activities. Likewise, exercises are not extensively varied nor are they repetitive so that you have your own space to apply your creativity and innovation and help your students further enrich their vocabulary in the limited class time available. Most of the grammar exercises are for an enhanced application of the knowledge already acquired in the earlier classes. Essential details are high lighted, followed by examples and activities.

As the St IX and X syllabus for grammar and language functions are packaged for study, most of the exercises- though tuned to the context- are designed for extensive revision. The integrated grammar exercise furnished at the end of the text includes most of the items the student has learnt from classes 6 to 10. However, as these exercises are only few and of an elementary nature, teachers might supplement them with more challenging activities on every aspect of Grammar.

The prose passages selected as learning material in each unit, serve as apt tools for the integrated learning and usage of the skills of Listening, Speaking, Reading and Writing, besides Grammar, Vocabulary and Language functions. Exercises furnished to develop the reading skill have been selected with great care, catering to the interest and needs of the learners. It would be more effective to allow the students to do the activities on their own with minimum but necessary guidance.

Activities on listening skill concentrate on understanding sounds and content; paraphrasing the material prescribed; and reacting, evaluating and responding appropriately. Nevertheless, teachers need not limit themselves to the given material only but could incorporate news announcements, story telling, poetry reading, role plays and other such aural activities to help students enhance their listening skill.

The writing skills have been based on what has been prescribed in the syllabus for Std IX and X keeping in mind the necessary craft the student requires to express his creative and reflective thoughts through writing, and his need to ably tackle the general questions in the Board Examination. Teachers are earnestly requested to discourage rote learning from prepared notes and assist students to write on their own for both textual and general writing, however tedious the correction and evaluation of such writings may be. This area of writing skills is a test of fire that all dedicated and committed teachers must put themselves through. The activities in the book will no doubt motivate the student to write but individual attention with prompt and personalized feedback would ensure marked improvement in their writing skills.

Various activities have been presented to encourage students to use the language in dialogues and discourses; in narrating of personal experiences; in expressing thoughts and feelings; in sharing problems and offering solutions. Students would be equipped with the knowledge of preparing and presenting projects and write-ups; organizing seminars; interpreting non verbal presentations, describing pictures, understanding road maps, developing headlines and formulating advertisements with catchy slogans.

Translation activities have been chosen to build skills of expression in both languages - English and Tamil - so that the students could apply them in real life situations.

The prose and poetry excerpts include formative questions that kindle the mind and encourage thinking beyond the text, so that students find a link between the passages they have studied and real life situations. There are also hypothetical questions which encourage the student to visualize probabilities and possibilities in different situations and strategically use the appropriate functions of language like Conditionals and Modals to voice their feelings, suggestions, opinions and decisions. Parallel reading poems have been placed beside the main poems to help students in the enhancement of their literary appreciation. However these poems are not included for testing.

The supplementary reading materials have been selected for their short, simple and comprehensible content, keeping the essential objectives in mind: creating a love for reading; encouraging reading with speed and understanding; recognizing the variegated mood, attitude and character of individuals; appreciating life through literature, and identifying themselves with the meaning of life. It is an earnest plea that teachers make the supplementary reading periods lively yet contemplative, and discursive, for it is from such classes that future societies emerge.

Please note : Passages in the text should be studied with focus on the content and language only and not on the authors or poets.

Unit 1: The passage for study in this unit belongs to the genre of a short story in narrative style. The story is set on a social theme of character and wealth. It gives wide scope for students to analyse, debate and express their views on human nature and on the positive influences of circumstances. It is followed by a poem which shows in contrast the haves and the have-nots, and the attitude of the former towards the latter. The supplementary reading passage is one of sentiment and emotion, highlighting the stages of a child's emotions when having to give up a pet.

Unit 2: The passage is in the genre of an academic speech and is oratorical in style. The theme is centred on the importance of fine arts with special reference to music. The passage substantiates the positive power of music in its influence on our aesthetic values, our emotional stabilities and our social harmony and peace. The corresponding poem highlights music as a key to emotional reminiscences of the treasured moments in childhood. The supplementary reading material that follows recounts a child's observations on the impact of a musical instrument on his parents' life.

Unit 3: The passage in this unit is in the genre of a public address rendered in didactic style. The theme is on personality development, highlighting the essential skills of co-operation, adaptability, self-discipline, responsibility and respect which every student should possess. It is followed by a poem of advice to youth on how to face the challenges of life and become a wholesome human being. The story selected for supplementary reading touchingly portrays the outcome of subjecting one's character adversely to circumstances, changing one's whole personality and countenance.

Unit 4: The study material in this unit focuses on a global issue of Environment and Conservation in connection with climate change and diminishing water supply. The write-up is in the genre of narrative nonfiction in a combined style of a factual narration and a reflective essay. This study material rings a warning bell which will provoke students into discussions on the dreadful consequences if the issues of global warming and water scarcity are ignored. The poem, in a shift from the gloomy foreboding of the prose reading, spiritedly describes the thrilling experience of some youngsters who go into the woods after sunset to fetch water from a brook.

The supplementary passage which follows is a real-life incident recounting a near-death experience of a woman who is sucked into a storm water drain and has a miraculous escape. Here, the prose, poetry and supplementary passages in their entirety give an insight into the dual dimensions of the elements of Nature and Man's need to understand and handle them shrewdly.

Unit 5: The passage for study in this unit takes the student directly into two major national concerns - the subaltern segment of our society which has been, for a long time, un-noticed in the cultural profile of our nation; and the child labourer who is denied the right to education and forced to toil and labour for a living with neither "dignity, self confidence or strength". The passage is a strongly worded reflective response in a journalistic approach to a news item on child labour and abuse. The poem carries the theme further by presenting a verbal picture of child labour in the past, and depicting through poetic imagery the hardships that children were subjected to during the 'Industrial Revolution' in England. The supplementary narration, on a lighter vein, brings out the pleasures of childhood with its unrestricted freedom in creativity and invention and paints in subtle shades the bonding of siblings through all their experiences whether good or bad.

Unit 6: This unit contains a study material which is in the genre of nonfiction and in the style of a children's scientific journal. This short research on the phenomenon of bird migration provides, besides the content knowledge, a wide scope for students to acquire the scientific registers of language and use them skillfully in their own expressions. The accompanying poem is a self-description of a migrant bird through whose words the poet contrasts the bird's peaceful determination and unrestricted freedom to man's self made barriers and power conflicts. The supplementary story of this unit portrays the turmoil in the mind of a young man who has migrated to a foreign country and for whom the reality of his dream has lost its lustre.

Unit 7: This unit is set on the theme of our cultural heritage with special focus on the architectural wonder of the thousand year old Brihadeeshvarar Temple of Thanjavur in Tamilnadu, commonly referred to as the Big Temple. The reading passage is in the genre of a travelogue, the style being picturesquely descriptive in depicting the salient features of the temple and the museum in its premises.

As a complement to the temple's carvings on stone, the poem prescribed for study chisels out the creative skill and the mental and physical stress of a temple sculptor, who with reverence carves a stone idol and looks with awe and pride at his completed creation of God in the image of Man. The supplementary reading passage is a story for light reading, describing the clever manner in which a smart child outwits villainous thieves and thwarts their attempt at robbing a family.

The authors of this textbook have made a sincere and committed effort to blend the prerequisites of the National Curriculum Framework 2005 with the teaching and learning objectives of the Tamilnadu State Revised Syllabus for English, incorporating where required the Active Learning Methodology. All the excerpts, poems and passages selected here, contain language that is communicable and suitable for students to use freely and confidently beyond the classroom. In content every selected piece is purposeful and meaningful in the moulding of the students' character, personality and outlook and in developing a good citizen for a future society. It is hoped that this book would facilitate ample interaction between the teachers and learners and make space for a learner friendly atmosphere in the class. However it must be emphasized that a language textbook is only a tool and language learning is not confined to the pages of a textbook. Teachers need to go to various day to day sources like the newspaper, magazine, educative T.V and radio programme etc. and link them with activities relating to the learning items in the text. A creative and an innovative teacher can do more than a textbook can!

We wish you and the students a memorable year of happy interaction while teaching and learning English through this textbook!

UNIT 1

THE MODEL MILLIONAIRE

PROSE

Pre - reading Activity :

Have you mistaken a teacher or your friend for someone else, while looking at them from a distance?

✦ 'Appearances are deceptive'. Can you judge a person by his mere appearance?

✦ Here is a story which describes the unexpected consequences of mistaking a person for someone else. Oscar Wilde

Hughie was wonderfully good looking with his crisp brown hair, his clear cut profile and his grey eyes. He was as popular with men as he was with women, and he had every accomplishment except that of making money. He had tried everything. But he became nothing, a delightful, ineffectual young man with a perfect profile and no profession.

Hughie wanted to marry Laura Merton, the daughter of a retired Colonel. The Colonel was very fond of Hughie but would not hear of any engagement. "Come to me my boy, when you have got ten thousand pounds of your own and we will see about it," he said. Hughie looked very glum and he cursed himself for his inability to fulfil the condition.

1. What was Hughie's financial status?
2. What was the condition laid down by the Colonel to allow Hughie's engagement to Laura?
3. Why was Hughie upset?

One morning as he was on his way to Holland Park, he dropped in to see a great friend of his, Alan Trevor. Trevor was a painter. He was a strange rough fellow with a freckled face and a red ragged beard.

profile	- outline of the face / head accomplishment	- a well learned ability ineffectual	- not doing anything worthy colonel	- (pronounced as ker-nel) a high rank in the army
glum	- sullen, dejected, displeased
freckled	- marked with small brown spots on the skin
ragged	- untidy

When he took up the brush, he was a real master and his pictures were eagerly sought after.

When Hughie came in, he found Trevor painting the finishing touches to a wonderful life size picture of a beggar man. The beggar himself was standing on a platform in a corner of the studio. He was a wizened old man with a face like wrinkled parchment and a most piteous expression. Over his shoulders was flung a coarse brown cloak, all tears and tatters; his thick boots were patched and cobbled and with one hand he leant on a rough stick while with the other he held out his battered hat for alms.

1. What makes you feel Alan was a good painter?

2. What made the old man look a typical beggar?

“What an amazing model!” whispered Hughie, as he shook hands with his friend.

“An amazing model?” shouted Trevor at the top of his voice. “I should think so! Such beggars as he are not to be met with every day.”

“Poor old chap!” said Hughie, “how miserable he looks! But I suppose to you painters, his face is his fortune?”

“Certainly you don't want a beggar to look happy, do you?”

“How much does a model get for sitting?” asked Hughie.

“A shilling an hour.”

“And how much do you get for your picture, Alan?”

“Oh! For this I get two thousand pounds.”

wizened	– looking dried up through age parchment	– a piece of paper
piteous	– sad, sorrowful
coarse	– made of large rough cloth
alms	– offerings

1. Why is the model's face his fortune?
2. How many shillings make a pound?
3. In our country models pose for advertisements. How much do you think they are paid?

After sometime, the servant came in and told Trevor that the frame maker wanted to speak to him. "Don't run away Hughie" he said, as he went out, "I'll be back in a moment". The old beggar took advantage of Trevor's absence to rest for a moment on a wooden bench. He looked so forlorn that Hughie could not help pitying him. All he could find was a sovereign and some coppers. "Poor old fellow", he to himself and slipped the sovereign into the beggar's hand. The old man said, "Thank you sir". Then Trevor arrived and Hughie took his leave.

The next day when Hughie visited Trevor, he was surprised to hear that the model kept asking Trevor for all details about him. Trevor informed Hughie that he had clearly explained Hughie's condition to the old model. "What! You told that old beggar all my private affairs?" cried Hughie looking very red and angry. "My dear boy", said Trevor smiling, "that old beggar as you call him is one of the richest men in Europe. He is Baron Hausberg. He is a great friend of mine".

What was the beggar's true identity?

"Good Heavens! I gave him a sovereign!" and he sank into an armchair. "Gave him a sovereign!" shouted Trevor and he burst into a roar of laughter.

"What will he think of me?" said Hughie. "Oh, my God! I could not make out why he was so interested to know all about you; but I see it all now. He will invest your sovereign for you, Hughie, pay you the interest every six months and have a capital story to tell after dinner," commented Trevor.

Why did Hughie fear an adverse reaction from the Baron?

forlorn	- forsaken, lonely
sovereign	- a former gold coin worth 1 pound
coppers	- coins of lower denomination

The next morning as he was at breakfast, the servant brought him a card on which was written Baron Hausberg and Hughie told the servant to show the visitor up. An old gentleman came into the room. "I have come from Baron Hausberg", he continued. "I beg sir, that you will offer him my apologies," stammered Hughie.

Why did Hughie wish to apologise to the Baron?

"The Baron", said the old gentleman with a smile, "has commissioned me to bring you this letter", and he extended a sealed envelope, on which was written "A wedding present to Hugh Erskine - Hughie and Laura - from an 'old beggar'" and inside was a cheque for ten thousand pounds.

commissioned - ordered "Millionaire models" remarked Alan, "are rare enough, but by Joe! Model Millionaires are rarer still!"

Pondering over the text :

1. Why did Hughie grow angry with Trevor?
2. Why did Trevor remark that such beggars as the model were not to be met with every day?
3. Why did Hughie grow offended at Trevor's act of discussing his affairs with some one?
4. What was the Baron's reaction to Hughie's innocent act of awarding him a coin?
5. Differentiate – 'Millionaire Models' and 'Model Millionaires'.

More about the text :

1. How would you justify the title of the story?
2. Attempt a character sketch of a) Hughie; b) the Baron.
3. Think of a different way in which Hughie's problem could have been solved.
4. Imagine another possible reaction the Baron could have had on receiving alms from Hughie.

Answer in a paragraph :

1. Who was Hughie? How had Hughie treated the model who posed for Trevor?

Grammar

Reported Speech - Revision

Let us recall and revise what we have learnt in Std IX.

Look at these sentences:

Statements -

(Direct speech) “What can I do for you?” the Headmaster asked the boy.
“I have come to ask you for a scholarship”, the boy said.

(Indirect speech) The Headmaster asked the boy what he could do for him.
The boy replied that he had come to ask him for a scholarship.

Interrogatives - Yes / No questions

(Direct speech) The doctor asked the patient, "Do you smoke?"

(Indirect speech) The doctor asked the patient whether (if) he smoked.

Interrogatives - 'wh' questions

(Direct) The teacher said to the boys, "Where do you want to go?"

(Indirect) The teacher asked the students where they wanted to go.

Imperative sentence

(Direct) The teacher said to the boys, "Don't write on both sides of the paper."

(Indirect) The teacher asked the boys not to write on both sides of the paper.

Exclamatory sentences

(Direct) "What a beautiful view it is!" said my friend.

(Indirect) My friend said that it was a very beautiful view.

Note: When a sentence in the direct speech is transformed into the reported speech, it undergoes certain changes. Can you identify them?

Write what the people actually said :

1. The teacher told the students that the students had done very well in the test.
The teacher said to the students, "....."
2. The Prime Minister said that he was determined to abolish poverty.
The Prime Minister said, "....."
3. All holy scriptures advise us to do our duty without worrying about the result.
All holy scriptures say, "....."
4. The teacher asked me whether I was going to join the Medical course or the Engineering course.
The teacher said to me, "....."
5. Shyam's grandfather advised him not to waste his time in unnecessary activities.
Shyam's grandfather said to him, "....."

Report the dialogue given below to your friend :

- Patient : Doctor, a bee has stung me. The pain is unbearable.
Doctor : Don't worry; I'll apply some cream on it.
Patient : You'll never find that bee. It must be far away.
Doctor : No, I'll apply the cream on the place where you were stung.
Patient : Oh! It happened in the park where I was sitting under a tree.
Doctor : No, No, you are mistaken; I mean, on the part of your body where the bee stung you.
Patient : Oh, it was on my finger!
Doctor : Which one?
Patient : How am I to know? All bees look the same to me.
Doctor : Oh my God! I have never come across such a foolish person in my life!

Match the utterance with the situation and complete the statement :

1) "Oh! I am tired! -----" (Mohana to her aunt)	Raghu has not brought the leave letter.
2) "I will not excuse you.-----" (Teacher to Raghu)	Sunitha has failed to return the library books on time.
3) "I don't need a 50 rupee note. Don't -----?" (Conductor to the passenger)	A tourist wants to find his way to the Museum.
4) "Sunitha, you ought to ----- -----." (Librarian to Sunil)	Mohana has been working hard for her examinations.
5) "Which is -----?" (Tourist to the policeman)	The passenger has not brought enough change.

Kinds of Sentences :

Keshav has said something in a sentence. He has made a statement. His statement is in the affirmative.

Jasmine too has made a statement. Her statement is in the negative.

Here we have two kinds of sentences – the Affirmative sentence and the Negative sentence.

Raghu asks a question. His sentence is an Interrogative sentence.

Sarathy answers expressing his feeling. His sentence is an Exclamatory sentence.

Anandh calls the boys. He instructs them. "Don't stand there talking" - this sentence is a Command or Imperative sentence.

These are the five kinds of sentences we use in a language.

Activity: Identify the sentences according to their kind.

1. How talented you are!
2. Open your books at page 80.
3. I do not want to see this movie.
4. May I go out to play please?
5. The rivers run dry in summer.
6. There is no water in the lake.
7. Can you show me the way to the railway station?
8. What a dirty place this is!
9. Please leave your footwear outside the hall.
10. This lesson is interesting.

The idea in one kind of sentence can be expressed through another kind of sentence.

Look at the following sentences:

1. What an amazing performance! (Exclamatory)
The performance was amazing. (Statement-Affirmative)

Question Tags

Look at this question :

“Do you have a pen?”

You ask this question because you do not know if the person has a pen.

Now if you thought the person had a pen but you were in doubt, you would ask the question thus :

“You have a pen, haven't you?”

If you thought the person did not have a pen, but you weren't sure and wanted to confirm it, you would ask,

“You don't have a pen, do you?”

Note that the first part of your question is a statement followed by a question tag. If the statement is affirmative, the tag will be negative and if the statement is negative, the tag will be affirmative. The tag will take the pronoun in the place of the noun in the statement. e.g. This lesson is easy, isn't it?

Students of Std X have no time to waste, have they?

You can study well, can't you?

The bell has not rung, has it?

The sun sets in the west, doesn't it?

People shouldn't be rude to one another, should they?

Activity

Form question tags for the following statements.

Remember:

- (a) Affirmative statements will have negative tags.
- (b) Negative statements will have an affirmative tag.
- (c) The tag will contain a pronoun.

1. The bus is early today, _____ ?
2. There is no water in the tank, _____ ?
3. People ought to keep the streets clean, _____ ?
4. I shall carry the bags for you, _____ ?
5. The conductor will not give you change for Rs. 10/-, _____ ?

Listening skill :

Listen to the following information on a contemporary millionaire and answer the questions that follow :

Warren Edward Buffet born on August 30, 1930, is an American investor, industrialist and philanthropist. He is one of the most successful investors in the world. Often called "the legendary investor", he is the primary shareholder, chairman and CEO of Berkshire Hathaway. He was ranked as the world's wealthiest person in 2009 and is currently the third wealthiest person in the world as of 2010.

Buffett is also a notable philanthropist, having pledged to give away 99 percent of his fortune to philanthropic causes, primarily via the Gates Foundations. In 2009, after donating billions of dollars to charity, Buffett was ranked as the second richest man in the United States, with only Bill Gates ranked higher than Buffett. In June 2006, he announced a plan to give away his fortune to charity, with 83% of it going to the Bill & Melinda Gates Foundation, making it the largest charitable donation in history.

A significant proportion of his wealth will not go to his children. His action is consistent with his principle that is against the transfer of great fortunes from one generation to the next. Buffet once commented, "I want to give my kids just enough so that they would feel that they could do anything, but not so much that they would feel like doing nothing".

Questions :

1. Buffet is known as _____.
a) the model millionaire b) the legendary donator
c) the legendary investor d) a great philanthropist
2. State whether the following statement is true or false:
Buffet is currently rated as the wealthiest person in the world.
3. _____ is appreciated for his largest contribution to charity.

c) Berkshire Hathaway d) Edward Warren Buffet
4. Buffet did not wish to _____.
a) transfer his huge property to the next generation
b) contribute much to the society
c) improve the investment sector
d) make huge donations to the poor
5. Having too much money would make people _____.
a) ideal b) charitable c) active d) idle

Speaking Skill :

Group Activity

- a) The class is to be divided into two groups. The topic for discussion is “The aspiration to become an author or a journalist is not strong in students of today.”

Remember the following :

Say “Excuse me” when you need to interrupt the one who is speaking.

Say, “I’m sorry, I don’t agree with you” when your viewpoint differs.

Start with “In my opinion...”; “I think...” or “I would say that...” when you express your impressions.

- b) Imagine this situation. You have not seen your uncle, who has been living abroad for over a decade. One day he knocks at the door, when you are alone at home. You mistake him for an inquisitive stranger and enquire his whereabouts, profession etc. While you are arguing with him, your parents return home and clarify the matter. Narrate this incident to your friends.

Reading Skill :

Read the passage given below and answer the questions that follow :

The Autobiography of a Euro

It took three long years for my coming into existence, after the idea of a new currency was conceived. I was first conceived and named on 1st Jan, 1999, when eleven European countries decided to have a new money form i.e. Euro. My value was determined as per the conversion rate fixed by these countries in terms of their own currencies. On 1st January 2002, I was circulated as currency notes when twelve countries adopted me as their currency. Some countries opposed the idea of using me and initially refused to accept me. But now almost all the European countries have accepted me as valid currency. My brother Dollar who is in America, my brother Lira residing in Italy and my sister Sterling were quite jealous of me but soon they accepted my existence and started respecting me. I now enjoy a place of pride among all the currencies in the world and almost everyone accepts me freely.

Questions:

1. When did Euro come into worldwide acceptance?
2. Euro was accepted without opposition- Is this statement true or false?

3. Bring out the sibling rivalry in the family of Euro.
4. What is the present status of Euro?
5. To which continent does this currency belong? Find out the names of at least three countries whose currency is the Euro.

Writing Skill:

A. Can money buy happiness? Develop your ideas, using the point given below. Use your points and write a paragraph on the topic.

Yes , because money _____	No, because money doesn't _____ buys house / clothes / car	get you health, happiness

B. Know Your Idioms :

1. A penny for your thoughts? - What are you thinking about?
2. a chance in a million - either no chance at all or a very slim chance
3. two sides of the same coin - two contrasting characters in the same category
4. a million dollar question - a question with a much awaited and valuable answer
5. as good as gold - very well behaved
6. to cash in on - to take advantage
7. thirty pieces of silver - the money paid to Judas Iscariot for betraying Jesus. Christ (This phrase is used as a symbol of betrayal)

C. Write dialogues for the following situations :

1. Sarathy visits the doctor, complaining of a headache and fever. Build conversation between the doctor and Sarathy, with a minimum of five utterances each.
2. Sumathi has won the first prize at an elocution competition. She excitedly informs her mother of this, describing the number of contestants, the manner in which she spoke and how she had overcome her nervousness. Write a dialogue with a minimum of five exchanges for this situation.

UNIT 1

POEM

TO A MILLIONAIRE

The world in gloom and splendour passes by,
And thou in the midst of it with brows that gleam,
A creature of that old distorted dream
That makes the sound of life an evil cry.
Good men perform just deeds, and brave men die,
And win not honour such as gold can give,
While the vain multitudes plod on, and live,
And serve the curse that pins them down. But I Think only of the unnumbered broken hearts,
The hunger and the mortal strife for bread,
Old age and youth alike mistaught, misfed,
By want and rags and homelessness made vile,
The grief's and hates, and all the meaner parts
That balances thy one grim misgotten pile.

- Archibald Lampman

multitude - large number of people plod on - move on very slowly strife - struggle vile - evil
grim - gloomy, depressed pile - heap

1. You find a contrast in the first line of the poem. What is it?
2. In this contrast, the poet addresses someone as 'thou'. Who does the word 'thou' refer to?
3. (a) Is the millionaire among his own kind of people? Give reasons for your answer.
(b) Who does the word 'creature' refer to? (clue: answer lies in the first four lines)
4. How does the good man's honour differ from that of the millionaire?

Fill in the blanks :

- (a) The poet thinks of the many people who are ----- hearted and struggle with ----- for bread.
- (b) These unnumbered people are made ----- up of the old and -----.
- (c) All these unnumbered people have been taught wrong values and do not have proper clothing or -----.

- (d) Such people become ----- with desire and are filled with sorrow and-----.
- (e) The number of such people balance the wealth the -----has.
6. Do you think the money earned by the millionaire is 'misgotten'? Can you think of some means by which this money could have been obtained?
 7. When will a millionaire's wealth be considered 'a misgotten pile'?
 8. The character of people changes with the alterations in their living conditions. Does this statement hold good always? Why do you say so?
 9. Pick out the words in the poem that show the poet's negative opinion about the millionaire.

Answer in a paragraph :

- a) How does the poet portray a millionaire?
- b) What are the views of the poet on the manner in which the millionaire acquires his wealth?

Literary appreciation :

The world in gloom and splendour passes by,

Here the world is personified as a human being passing by.

This aspect of portraying a non-living thing as a living person is called 'Personification'.

Rhyming words :

In lines 1 to 4, the following are rhyming words:

by – cry (lines 1 and 4), gleam- dream (lines 2 and 3)

1. List out the words that rhyme in lines 5 to 8.
2. Also find out the rhyming words in lines 9 to 14.
3. You notice that the words 'distorted' and 'dream' are in alliteration. Give at least one more instance of alliteration from the poem.

Thinking beyond the text :

Do you think Lampman's 'millionaire' is alike in character to Oscar Wilde's 'millionaire'?

UNIT 1

SUPPLEMENTARY READING

SAM - Tammy Ruggles

It was a chilly, rainy morning; terrible weather for summer.

School was out, but I couldn't go outside and play because Mom said I would get sick.

So, I put on my jacket and went out on the front porch, and that's where I found this blond Labrador with a hurt paw.

"Gee, what happened to you?" I asked as I knelt down beside him.

He whined and put his head down on his good paw.

There wasn't a collar, so I didn't know who he belonged to or what I should do.

It seemed kind of mean to call the dogcatcher on a hurt animal.

"Mom!" I shouted as I ran inside the house. But Mom was gone. I'd forgotten that she had to go to the store.

Oh well. I went to my room and got out my First Aid kit.

It wasn't a real one. Just the one I played doctor and patient with, but it had stuff from my Mom's real one, like iodine, bandages, stuff like that.

After carrying medical supplies out on the porch, I bent down to the dog again. "What's your name, huh?" The dog only whined.

"Guess I'll call you Goldy" I told him, "since you're gold."

I nursed the dog's paw as best as I could, then sat down next to him and patted his head because he seemed kind of sad. Questions circled through my mind, like, How did he get hurt? Who did he belong to? Where did he live? How did he get lost? Goldy and I sat together until Mom came home.

"Can I keep him, Mom?"

She knelt down with us and patted the dog's head too. "He probably belongs to someone, Shelly. He must have somehow got separated from his master. We need to find his owner" My heart sank. I knew she was going to say that.

"But if the owner doesn't show up, I guess he's ours."

So Mom put a notice in the paper, and we waited. It was the longest wait of my life. Goldy was a good dog, and mended more every day. At first he couldn't walk on his paw at all, but then little by little it healed.

The days went by with no one showing up to claim the dog. When Goldy was feeling all better, we played Frisbee and football in the yard. He was a very smart dog, and knew commands like "Sit", "Stay", and "Come".

"Someone must have trained him", Mom said sadly. "That means he has an owner." But still no one came. Secretly, I was glad. I wanted Goldy to be my dog. Mom even put his picture in the paper, and still no one came.

"Guess he's your dog now, Shelly," she said one day, as she brought home a new chew toy for Goldy to play with. "Yey!" I yelled jumping up and down.

Goldy was even beginning to act like my dog. He followed me to school, and waited all day until I came out. He even walked beside me, and on the outside of the sidewalk to get between me and the traffic.

Then one day when we got home from school, a strange van was in the driveway, and there was a lady with dark sunglasses and a white cane on our front porch talking to Mom. A man was with her. Goldy started barking and ran up to the blind lady.

"Sam!" the lady laughed, and Goldy ran into her arms. Goldy whined with love, licking all over the lady's face. I looked at Mom. She didn't have to tell me what was going on. Goldy wasn't really Goldy. He was Sam. And he was her Sam. Her guide dog. My heart sank.

3. The important job the dog had was
a) to catch thieves b) to guard Diane's house c) to guide Diane 4. Who were reunited?
a) Shelly and Sam b) Sam and Goldy c) Diane and Sam
5. A..... is not a pet animal.
a) dog b) cat c) tiger

Answer the following questions:

1. Describe the condition of the dog when spotted by the boy.
2. Why didn't the boy hand over the animal to the dogcatcher?
3. How did the boy tend to the wounded dog?
4. Did Shelly's mother readily permit him to retain the dog with himself? Why?
5. Describe the happy times that Shelly and Goldy had together.
6. How did Shelly's mother guess that the dog had already been trained?
7. How did Goldy act like he had always belonged to Shelly?
8. How were Shelly's dreams shattered?
9. What made Sam part from the lady?
10. What made Shelly entrust Sam once again to the lady?

Answer in a paragraph:

1. Narrate the story in your own words.
2. How would you feel if your pet animal was lost? Describe what your reaction would be when you found it again.

MUSIC - THE HOPE RAISER

PROSE

Pre-reading Activity :

- ⇒ What sort of music do you listen to : cine songs, classical, western? Why?
- ⇒ How does music change your mood? Do you feel refreshed or gain consolation or lose hope on listening to music?
- ⇒ Who is your favourite singer / instrumentalist?
- ⇒ What do your parents suggest regarding your career?
- ⇒ Do all parents think that music is as important as education? Why do you say so?

Dr. Karl Paulnack, pianist and director of the music division at The Boston Conservatory, gave this fantastic welcome address to the parents of incoming students at The Boston on September 1, 2004:

“One of my parents' deepest fears, I suspect, is that society would not properly value me as a musician, that I wouldn't be appreciated. I had very good grades in high school, I was good in science and math, and they imagined that as a doctor or a research chemist or an engineer, I might be more appreciated than I would be as a musician. I still remember my mother's remark when I announced my decision to apply to music school. She said, “you're wasting your SAT scores!” On some level, I think, my parents were not sure what the value of music was, what its purpose was. And they loved music: they listened to classical music all the time. They just weren't really clear about its function. So let me talk about that a little bit, because we live in a society that puts music in the “arts and entertainment” section of the newspaper. Serious music, the kind your kids are about to engage in, has absolutely nothing whatsoever to do with entertainment, in fact it's the opposite of entertainment. Let me talk a little bit about music, and how it works.

*What was the author's choice of career?, How was this against his parents' wish?
Do you think music is different from entertainment?*

One of the first cultures to articulate how music really works was that of the ancient Greeks. And this is articulate - to express thoughts or feelings clearly in words going to fascinate you: the Greeks said that music and astronomy were two sides of the same coin. Astronomy was seen as the study of relationships between observable, permanent, external objects, and music was seen as the study of relationships between invisible, internal, hidden objects.

Music has a way of finding the big, invisible moving pieces inside our hearts and souls and helping us figure out the position of things inside us. Let me give you some examples of how this works.

1. 'Two sides of the same coin' would mean: a) similar in every way
b) similar in approach but different in aim c) two opposites in every way.
2. How is music different from astronomy?

One of the most profound musical compositions of all time is the “Quartet for the End of Time” written by a French composer Olivier Messiaen in 1940. Messiaen was 31 years old when France entered the war against Nazi Germany. He was captured by the Germans in June of 1940 and imprisoned in a prisoner-of-war camp.

profound – felt or experienced very strongly
Quartet – a piece of music composed for a group of four musicians or singers

He was fortunate to find a sympathetic prison guard who gave him paper and a place to compose, and was fortunate to have musician colleagues in the camp, a cellist, a violinist, and a clarinetist. Messiaen wrote his quartet with these specific players in mind. It was performed in January 1941 for four thousand prisoners and repertoire (pronounced as rep-et-war) - all the plays, songs, pieces of music etc that a performer knows and can perform guards in the prison camp. Today it is one of the most famous masterworks in the repertoire.

How did Messiaen spend his time in prison?

Given what we have since learned about life in the Nazi camps, why would anyone in his right mind waste time and energy writing or playing music? There was barely enough energy on a good day to find food and water, to avoid a beating, to stay warm, to escape torture-why would anyone bother with music? And yet-even from the concentration camps, we have poetry, we have music, we have visual art; it wasn't just this one fanatic Messiaen; many, many people created art. Why? Well, in a place where people are only focused on survival, on the bare necessities, the obvious conclusion is that art must be, somehow, essential for life. The camps were without money, without hope, without commerce, without recreation, without basic respect, but they were not without art. Art is part of survival; art is part of the human spirit, an unquenchable expression of who we are. Art is one of the ways in which we say, "I am alive, and my life has meaning."

 Who is Messiaen? Oliver Eugene Prosper Charles Messiaen of France was a child prodigy in music and was academically qualified at a very early age. During the World War II, he was enlisted as a medical auxiliary owing to his poor eyesight.

fanatic - a person who is extremely enthusiastic about something.

unquenchable - that cannot be satisfied

1. Why did art find a place, even in concentration camps?
2. What is the significance of art?

irreverent – not showing respect

In September of 2001 I was a resident of Manhattan. On the morning of September 12, 2001 I reached a new understanding of my art and its relationship to

 Do you know what happened in Nazi camps?

The Nazi Germany established about 20,000 camps to imprison many millions of victims, between 1933 and 1945. These places were called 'concentration camps', because those imprisoned were physically concentrated in one location. In these forced labour camps thousands of prisoners of war (POW) were shot or gassed. Gas chambers (rooms filled with poisonous gas to kill those inside) were created to kill thousands of Jews everyday.

the world. I sat down at the piano that morning at 10 a.m to practise as was my daily routine; I did it by force of habit, without thinking about it. I lifted the cover on the keyboard, and opened my music, and put my hands on the keys and just as soon took my hands off it. And I sat there and thought, does this even matter? Isn't this completely irrelevant? Playing the piano right now, given what happened in this city yesterday, seems silly, absurd, irreverent, and pointless. Why am I here? What place has a musician in this moment in time? Who needs a piano player right now? I was completely lost. And then I, along with the rest of New York, went through the journey of getting through that week. I did not play the piano that day, and in fact I contemplated briefly whether I would ever want to play the piano again. And then I observed how we got through the day.

Why didn't the narrator play the piano after the terrible incident ?

What happened on September 11, 2001?

The Twin Towers of the World Trade Centre, New York, USA, were attacked and destroyed on September 11, 2001 by terrorists who hijacked and drove the planes into the Twin Towers thereby causing the collapse of the Twin Towers.

hoops – basketball rings through which players throw the ball to score points

Scrabble – a board game in which players try to make words from letter blocks and connect them to words already placed on the board mall – a place with lots of shops

At least in my neighborhood, we didn't shoot hoops or play Scrabble. We didn't play cards to pass the time, we didn't watch TV, we didn't shop, we most certainly did not go to the mall.

The first organized activity that I saw in New York, on the very evening of September 11th, was singing. People sang around fire houses, people sang "We Shall Overcome". Lots of people sang "America the Beautiful". The first organized public event that I remember was the Brahms Requiem, later that week, at Lincoln Center, with the New York Philharmonic. The first organised public expression of grief, our first communal response to that historic event, was a concert. That was the beginning of a sense that life might go on. The US Military secured the airspace, but recovery was led by the arts, and by music in particular, that very night.

How did people express their grief ?

From these two experiences, I have come to understand that music is not part of "arts and entertainment" as the newspaper section would have us believe. It's not a luxury, a lavish thing that we fund from leftovers of our budgets, not a plaything or an amusement or a pastime. Music is a basic need of human survival. Music is one of the ways we make sense of our lives, one of the ways in which we express feelings when we have no words, a way for us to understand things with our hearts when we can't with our minds.

Why isn't music an extravaganza or a hobby?

Johannes Brahms composed the German Requiem between 1865 and 1868. It comprises seven movements, which together last 65 to 80 minutes making this work Brahms' longest composition.

The New York Philharmonic (officially the Philharmonic-Symphony Society of New York) is a symphony orchestra based in New York City in the United States.

'We Shall Overcome' is derived from Charles Tindley's gospel song 'I Will Overcome Someday.'

'America the Beautiful' was a song adapted by Guy Caravan, Cindy Caravan and a few others, near Tennessee.

Zubin Mehta, then one of the youngest of a new generation of internationally known conductors, became the Music Director of the Royal Philharmonic in 1978. His tenure was the longest in Philharmonic history, lasting until 1991.

Ilaiyaraaja, an Indian Tamil film composer, singer, lyricist was the first Asian composer to score a symphony for the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra. He was awarded the Padma Bhushan, India's third highest civilian honour, in the year 2010.

Frankly, ladies and gentlemen, I expect you not only to master music; I expect you to save the planet. If there is a future wave of wellness on this planet, of harmony, of peace, of an end to war, of mutual understanding, of equality, of fairness, I don't expect it will come from a government, a military force or a corporation. I no longer even expect it to come from the religions of the world, which together seem to have brought us as much war as they have peace.

master(v) – to learn or understand completely

If there is a future of peace for humankind, if there is to be an understanding of how these invisible, internal things should fit together, I expect it will come from the artists, because that's what we do. As in the concentration camp and the evening of 9/11, the artistes are the ones who might be able to help us with our internal, invisible lives.”

1. What are the two incidents that stress the importance of music as an essential art?
2. What can artistes do to save the planet?

Reflecting on the text:

- 1) What is your ambition in life? Would you consider a career in music? Would you like to become another A.R.Rehman or Zakir Hussain?
- 2) Suppose there were no sources of entertainment like television sets, cell phones, computers, books etc., how do you think human beings would spend their time?
- 3) Are you in the habit of whistling to yourself or humming a tune when you are very happy? Why?
- 4) When a tragedy has struck your friend or neighbour, how would you express your grief over the incident? If you have lost someone dear to you and are unable to bear the grief, what do you do?
- 5) After a gruesome incident is it only despair or is there room for hope? How would you justify your answer?
- 6) The writer says we realise ourselves through music. Do you agree with this statement? Why?

Abbreviations and Acronyms :

An abbreviation (from Latin brevis, meaning short) is a shortened form of a word or phrase.

Usually, but not always, it consists of a letter or group of letters taken from the word or phrase. For example, the word abbreviation can itself be represented by the abbreviation abbr., abbrv. or abbrev., Abbreviations should not be confused with Contractions or Acronyms (including initialisms), with which they share some semantic and phonetic functions, though all three are commonly connoted by the term "abbreviation".

- ✦ An abbreviation is a shortening by any method.(e.g:Prof.; St.; B.Tech ; B.A; Mon.;)
- ✦ A contraction is a reduction of size by the drawing together of the parts. A contraction of a word is made by omitting certain letters or syllables and/or bringing together the first and last letters or elements . (e.g: Dr.; bk; can't;they're)
- ✦ An acronym is a word formed with the first letters of the words in the phrase.(e.g.: UNESCO; AIDS; SIM (card); radar)
- ✦ An abbreviation may be made either by omitting certain portions from the interior or by cutting off a part; a contraction is an abbreviation, but an abbreviation is not necessarily a contraction.

Non finite verbs

Look at these sentences taken from the speech you have just read:

- a) The society has nothing to do with entertainment.
- b) One of the first cultures to articulate how music really works was that of the ancient Greeks.

The underlined words are nonfinite verbs. They are infinitives(to + the present form of the verb).

Sometimes the infinitive is used without 'to' when it is used after the verbs 'let, make, see, hear, bid, feel, know, watch', etc.

Examples :

1. The newspapers would have us believe that music is a part of arts and entertainment.
2. The jailor let Messiaen compose music in the prison.
3. The speaker made the parents realise the importance of music.

Activity :

A. Which of these sentences would require the 'to' with the verbs?

1. The crowd excitedly watched Spain take the final goal to win the Cup.
2. The teacher wanted me submit my work within a week.
3. We have been taught keep our classroom neat and tidy.
4. A kind teacher always makes us learn better.
5. My neighbour snores so loud at night that I am forced close my windows help me sleep.

B. Combine the following pairs of sentences using 'too + the infinitive':

- Examples :
- a. Kiran is very ill. She cannot go to school today.
Kiran is too ill to go to school today.
 - b. The lid of the bottle is very tight. I cannot open it.
The lid of the bottle is too tight to open.

1. He cannot learn Spanish in a week. The time is very short.
2. Maran is tired. He cannot finish the work .
3. Velan could not solve the problem. It was very difficult.
4. Kothai could not drink the soup. It was very hot.
5. Vehicles cannot enter this street. It is very narrow.

Gerunds:

(Verbal Nouns) or Participles (Verbal Adjectives) are also non finite verbs. Look at these sentences from the lesson.

The underlined words are gerunds.

Music has a way of finding the big pieces inside our hearts and souls.

Music has a way of helping us figure out the position of things inside us.

Activity :

Rewrite the following pairs of sentences, replacing the underlined part into a phrase with a gerund. You can use the preposition given in brackets.

Example : Prem completes his homework. Then he goes to bed. (before)

Ans: Prem completes his homework before going to bed.

1. Sekar cannot be allowed to take the examination. He has to pay the fee.(without)
2. The boys were taken to the Principal's room. They quarrelled with each other in the class.(for)
3. The school congratulated Nithyashree. She had won a prize at the contest.(on)
4. I shall exempt you. You need not take the examination.(from)
5. He secured the first place. He worked hard.(by)

Combine the following pairs of sentences changing one of the finite verbs into a participle (verb + ing):

Example : He resorted to music. He was able to overcome his grief.

Ans: Resorting to music, he was able to overcome his grief.

1. Vendhan answered the questions well. He was selected for the final round in the quiz contest.
2. Malar scored high marks in the public examinations. She expects to get admission easily.
3. She opened the door. She started cleaning the room.
4. I questioned the boy. I found out the truth.
5. The dog saw the stranger. It barked loudly.

Prefixes and Suffixes :

When we add suffixes or prefixes to the root words, new words are formed

Example : quench + able =quenchable un + quenchable = unquenchable direct + or = director in + direct = indirect

Activity :

Form new words using the appropriate prefixes or suffixes:

-ly -ment enig-
-ble un- in-
-ian vision miser secure music fair announce noble compass

New Words

Negative sentences :

Look at these sentences:

1. There was barely enough energy to find food and water.
2. Nowhere else will you find a place as comfortable as this.
3. These are negative sentences as words like 'hardly, scarcely, rarely, seldom,' give the sentence a negative meaning.

Activity:

Rewrite the sentences given below, using the words given in brackets:

1. We do not have sufficient food for all of us here. (barely)
2. Nathan never listens to me. (hardly)
3. Buses do not stop here often. (seldom)
4. He does not come late to school. (scarcely)
5. Rajan writes to his mother only once in three months. (rarely)

Listening Skill :

Listen to the following poem:

Casablanca

The boy stood on the burning deck,
Whence all but him had fled;
The flame that lit the battle's wreck
Shone round him o'er the dead.
Yet beautiful and bright he stood,
As born to rule the storm;
A creature of heroic blood,
A proud though childlike form,
The flames rolled on; he would not go
Without his father's word;
The father, faint in death below,
His voice no longer heard.

Some words are given in the tabular column. Now listen to the poem and fill in the blanks with the rhyming words:

deck - _____ ;	_____ - fled;	stood - _____ ;
storm - _____ ;	go - _____ ;	word - _____ ;

The teacher reads the poem aloud, a second time.

- ⇒ Listen to the word 'heroic'.
- ⇒ Note that the word 'hero' is pronounced with an elongated 'o'. But when the suffix - 'ic' is added to 'hero' the pronunciation differs. It is heroic- he'roic.
- ⇒ Consider the word 'wreck.' The letter 'w' is silent . Can you recollect two other familiar words beginning with 'w' where the letter 'w' is silent?
- ⇒ Which letter is silent in the words 'born', 'storm', 'word', 'heard'?
- ⇒ Listen to the poem and guess what might have happened to Casablanca.

Speaking Skill :

Role Play

1. In India too, we had a terrorist attack a few years ago. It was at the Taj Hotel in Mumbai. Imagine you were a guest at the Hotel and had escaped the attack. How would you describe your escape? You could also build a tele - conversation with your friend describing your predicament.
2. List out the various situations in your life as a student in Std X, where you may need music to help you overcome your fear, sorrow, disappointment, anxiety etc. Contrast it with occasions wherein you resort to music when you are in a jubilant mood.

Reading Skill :

The Falling Man

"The Falling Man" is a nickname given to a man who fell from the North Tower of the World Trade Center during the September 11 attacks in New York City, and is also the title of a photograph, magazine story and documentary film about the incident. The photo was taken by Richard Drew at 9::41:15 a.m. on September 11, 2001. The story, written by Tom Junod, appeared in the September 2003 issue of Esquire magazine, and was later made into a film.

The subject of the image - whose identity remains uncertain, although attempts have been made to identify him - was one of the people trapped on the upper floors of the skyscraper who apparently chose to jump rather than die from the fire and smoke, while the buildings collapsed. As many as 200 people jumped to their deaths; there was no time to recover or identify those who jumped prior to that. Officially, all deaths in the attacks except those of the hijackers were ruled to be homicides (as opposed to suicides), and the New York City Medical Examiner's Office stated that it does not classify the people who fell to their deaths on September 11 as "jumpers": ("A 'jumper' is somebody who goes to the office in the morning prepared to commit suicide..). These people were forced out by the smoke and flames or blown out."

This picture is somewhat deceptive; it gives the impression that the man is falling straight down. In reality, this is just one of a dozen photographs of his fall. In the other photos, it is evident that he is tumbling through the air out of control.

Five years after the attacks, Jonathan Briley, a 43-year-old employee of the Windows on the World restaurant, was identified by chef Michael Lomonaco as The Falling Man. Briley was a sound engineer who lived in Mount Vernon, New York and worked in the North Tower restaurant. According to the film, the victim was initially identified by his brother in the morgue by the victim's hands and shoes. Lomonaco claims that he was able to identify Briley by his clothes and body-type. In one of the pictures, The Falling Man's clothes were blown away, revealing an orange undershirt similar to the shirt that Briley wore to work almost every day. His older sister, Gwendolyn, asserted he was wearing that shirt on the day of the attack. However, the identity of The Falling Man has never been officially confirmed.

Answer the following questions:

1. What does 'The Falling Man' refer to?
 - a) the fall of the Early Man
 - b) a popular poem
 - c) a film depicting a man's fall on Sep. 11
 - d) the fall of a person from his powerful position
2. Why weren't the deaths of the hijackers considered homicides?
3. Was the man jumping headlong or falling from the Tower? Give reasons for your answer.

4. People who fell to their deaths on September 11 are not 'jumpers'. Why?
5. How is the victim's identity revealed in the film?
6. What clothing would Briley usually wear to work?
7. Who is The Falling Man, according to official sources?

A Beautiful Mind

Robert Schumann(1810-1856), whose 200th birth anniversary is being celebrated throughout the world, was a great musician and holds a unique place in the stream of classical music. As a pianist, he tried out an experiment with the fourth finger of his right hand and lost it forever. That ended his hopes of a career as a pianist. He inherited his inclination towards the arts from his father who was a librarian and ran a bookshop. No wonder Schumann had a great love for books too.

Schumann not only had a beautiful mind but also a gentle nature. He would have been embarrassed to see his birthday being observed internationally. He was helpful to other composers, contemporaries such as Chopin and Brahms and predecessors including Beethoven and Schubert. He wrote about them in his music magazine, 'The New Music Journal', of which he was the editor. Unfortunately his strange mental condition caused his death and the world lost a genius and an excellent composer of music.

Government Music College , Chennai

The necessity to preserve, transmit and propagate the rich cultural legacy left behind by the builders of music in the country in general and in Tamil Nadu in particular was felt in the year 1949. It was felt necessary that the inherited musical urge in our youngsters and the hoary tradition of our musical culture with its ancient purity could be well preserved only when opportunities have been provided to those who have an aptitude for learning music.

The Central and State Government with their financial aids established the Central College of Karnatic Music in August 1949. The College at first was at Rahmed Bagh' near Santhome and it was there for two years. Since the building could not accommodate all the sections, it was subsequently shifted to "Bridge House" at Adyar . Again owing to inadequate accommodation, the college was shifted from the "Bridge House" Adyar to "Brodie Castle" on Greenways Road.

The College is functioning in the same building now, which has since been named as "Thendral", and has a strength of more than 600 students. In the beginning, there were only Vocal, Violin and Veena Sections besides general Musicology. Candidates with a considerable standard in music alone, were admitted into the two year Sangeetha Vidwan Title Course and after completion they were permitted to appear for the 'Sangeetha Vidwan' Title Examination conducted by the Director of Government Examinations, Madras.

The students who have had their training in this college have flourished well as Professors or Lecturers in Music Colleges all over, and many as professional musicians of repute. The college has gradually been developing and new Departments have been introduced. Departments of Mridangam, Nadaswaram, Thavil, Flute, Ghatam, Kanchira, Nattuvangam and Bharathanatyam have come into existence.

Three-Year Diploma Courses in Folk Art, Bharathanatyam, Vocal and Instrumental Music (Violin, Veena, Mridangam, Flute, Gadam, Kanchira, Mugarsing, Nathaswaram, Thavil) are offered. Two-Year Post Diploma Courses in Vocal Music (Muthukalai Isai Kalaimani), Two-Year Diploma Courses in Nattuvangam and One-Year Diploma Course in Music Teachers' Training are offered here. Students from various countries like U.S.A., Mauritius, Ceylon, Scotland, Japan, Africa and England have been benefited much by being students of this unique institution. Students from other states also prefer to join this institution only.

Study the table given below, analyse and express the information in a paragraph.

UNIT 2

POEM

PIANO

Softly, in the dusk, a woman is singing to me;
Taking me back down the vista of years, till I see
A child sitting under the piano, in the boom of the tingling strings
And pressing the small, poised feet of a mother who smiles as she sings.

In spite of myself, the insidious mastery of song
Betrays me back, till the heart of me weeps to belong
To the old Sunday evenings at home, with winter outside
And hymns in the cosy parlour, the tinkling piano our guide.

So now it is vain for the singer to burst into clamour
With the great black piano appassionato. The glamour
Of childish days is upon me, my manhood is cast Down in the flood of remembrance, I weep like a child for the past.

- D. H. Lawrence

Glossary :

1. vista- a view, range

SUPPLEMENTARY READING

THE PIANO LESSON - Rob Reilly

I can remember like yesterday the day my father come home from the war. A flying officer during World War II , he was dressed in a blue uniform with a skinny, boat-shaped cap plonked so precariously on the side of his head that I wondered why it never fell off.

A neighbour called out, "What's the weather like up there?" as my giant-like father bounded by, carrying a battered brown suitcase, strapped together with a large leather belt. He was, without question, the tallest man I had ever seen.

As he walked up the front path of our home, he saw Mum and me standing on the veranda and he dropped the suitcase. The belt came undone and the contents spilled out onto the lawn.

I was only five years old at the time so Dad made quite a fuss of me, then began making an ever bigger fuss of my mother. This left me free to examine all the stuff lying around the broken suitcase, which was mainly clothes and shoes and things, but I was quick to notice a large newspaper advertisement displaying a new piano. When Dad saw me holding up the newspaper cutting, his face broke into a grin. "Yes, that's right", he said. "I bought your mum a piano." Mum squealed with delight.

A few moments later, a large horse clip-clopped up the road, pulling a cart with a brand-new piano perched majestically on top. In no time at all, the delivery men had positioned the piano near the window of our small living room, and we all stood back and stared at this magnificent piece of furniture.

Mum had never even been close to a piano before, except at the Catholic kindergarten I attended, and she used to say how wonderful it would be if the nuns could teach her to play. She was beside herself with excitement and Dad was tickled pink with the way she was carrying on.

After tea that night, Mum began to teach herself to play. She plinked and plonked the keys for about two hours and drove everybody in the street mad, until Dad gently said, "Enough is enough." From that day on, Mum became obsessed with her piano. Every day she would plink and plonk between doing the cooking and housework. Within a month she was belting out a tune, to the amazement of everybody in the street. Needless to say, Dad was as pleased as Punch with Mum's tenacity and her obvious talent.

Three months went by and Mum was now practically an accomplished pianist, holding sing along parties in our lounge with all the neighbours gathering around to croon "She'll be Coming Round the Mountain" and "Goodnight Irene" Although we were poor, Mum felt like a princess and was delighted at all the attention she was receiving.

At the height of Mum's happiness, however, I began to notice that Dad was moping around the house and looking increasingly sad and worried. It turned out that, since returning from the war, he'd been unable to find a job. At the time I was too young to understand why anyone would get sad and worried about that, because I thought I would be as happy as a cat in a fish shop to have such a long holiday.

Then, a few weeks later, I observed the same big horse pulling a cart down our street and it clip-clopped right up into our driveway. Soon two men began to load Mum's piano onto the wagon while all the neighbours gathered around to watch. Mum stayed in the kitchen, sobbing. She was a proud person and couldn't bear to see her beloved piano sitting on top of the wagon. Dad sat out in the backyard next to the chicken shed, looking sadder than I had ever seen him. Suddenly, it all became clear to me; no job, no money to pay back the loan, no piano.

Later that day, a couple of ladies from down the street visited our place and told Mum she would be as welcome as the flowers in May to come over to play their pianos any old time. But, of course, it wasn't the same. Mum tried not to show it, but I knew she missed the piano terribly. For weeks afterwards she wasn't quite herself. And I must admit the house now seemed awfully quiet without the piano.

Then, Dad finally got a job with an accounting firm. It was just about the best day ever. Mum was happy again and made such a fuss over Dad it was like he'd just won the lottery or something. As part of his new job, Dad had to study to qualify as a chartered accountant. He eagerly accepted the challenge, and every night after dinner he'd place a stack of books on the kitchen table and study late into the night. Mum didn't say much but I could tell she was proud of Dad and how hard he was trying to rebuild his life. Like all servicemen, he'd sacrificed a lot over the years and she knew it.

I can't remember her ever mentioning the piano again after that, except for one time. It was a few weeks after Dad started his new job, and Mum had just finished the tea dishes when she came into my room and sat on my bed." Well, my baby boy," she said with a twinkle in her eyes, "it's just as well we got rid of that piano. How else would your dad be able to study with me bashing away on the ivories?"

Two years later, Dad had saved enough money to buy Mum another Piano. This time he paid cash for it.

UNIT 3

A GOLDEN PATH

PROSE

Pre - Reading Activity :

Discuss:

1. Who advises you the most?
a) Father b) Mother c) Teachers d) Friends
2. How do you react to the advice?

Words of wisdom remain valuable through generations, unaffected by the changes that take place in the world from time to time. Read this extract of an address that serves well to heed even after a hundred years!

Gopala Krishna Gokhale was a great freedom fighter of our country. He delivered a speech in response to the address presented to him by students, on 25th July 1911 at an open air public meeting near Victoria Hall, Mumbai.

My first duty on rising is to tender my most sincere and grateful thanks to the students of Madras for their address which they have just now presented to me... There is no doubt whatever in my mind that if I rising - replying (in context), responding tender (v) - offer

could now go back once again to the days of my studenthood, I would do so at once with pleasure. The life of a student is, comparatively speaking, a sheltered life. There are, of course, certain responsibilities; they are definite and they are assigned to you by those who are willing to take care of you and there is not much need to be constantly exercising your own judgments. You know that in later life the position is reversed; instead of others helping you, you have in the first place to help yourself... Gentlemen, because this is the happy part of your life, there are certain responsibilities attached to it which must be well discharged by you, because no privilege in life is worth having, unless it is attended by corresponding duties and there are certain duties, which those who placed you in your present privileged position expect you to perform.

discharged - carried out privilege (n) - special right , benefit privileged (adj) - prestigious

1. Which period of life does Gokhale consider a very happy one?
2. Are students free of responsibilities?

I will consider these duties under four heads. First of all, the duty which you owe to yourselves; then there is the duty which you owe to your fellow-students; the third duty is the duty which you owe to those in authority over you, and the last duty is a duty which you owe to those who are around you, not students, but people of the wider world.

Duty to yourselves

The duty to yourself is twofold. You have first of all to lay by a stock of knowledge that will suffice you not sincerely for your examinations but will be helpful to you in later life. Knowledge is an exacting mistress; she needs devotion, whole-hearted, on the part of the person who seeks her. Such whole-hearted devotion is possible only in the days of studenthood. Therefore, the first part of the duty towards yourselves is to take the utmost advantage of your present position, to lay by a stock of knowledge that will be useful to you in later life.

suffice – be enough for,
be adequate for exacting – demanding

Importance of character

But it is not merely knowledge that will help you or help any class of human beings by itself. Along with that knowledge there is another requisite that you must secure and that is character. It is almost a truism to say that more depends for success in life on character than on knowledge. It is an invidious thing to distinguish between comparative values of knowledge and character. But since both are indispensable, I would urge on you that you should attach as much importance to character as to knowledge. This character must show itself in earnestness, in energy of action and in high and generous sentiments being brought to bear upon the discharge of your duties and in recognizing what is due to yourselves. You have to acquire a character which will raise the whole life of the people amidst whom you move and for whom you are expected to work.

1. What requires whole-hearted devotion?
2. What is your primary duty towards yourself?
3. How would it help you in later life?
4. What kind of character should you acquire while you are a student?

truism - a statement that is obviously true invidious - unjust indispensable - absolutely essential earnestness - seriousness

As character will naturally have to act on those around you, the stronger, the firmer and nobler it is, the better work you will do for the country. Even if you acquire a fairly high character while you are at school or college; it may not always be easy to retain that character in the struggles of later life, because you are sure to be acted upon by those who are around you. But if you begin by acquiring a strong character for yourselves and when you in course of time, occupy the place of the present seniors, then the students or the younger men of the succeeding generation will find that the forces that act on them are more helpful for retaining a good character than possibly what you may be able to find today. This is the twofold duty which you owe to yourselves – the acquiring of knowledge (I use 'knowledge' in its widest sense) not only knowledge from every quarter which will be useful to you in later life - and acquiring character which will enable you to achieve success in whatever work you may take on hand. That, in brief, is the duty to yourselves.

1. What is the twofold duty to be acquired by students?

2. Is character influenced by surroundings?

Duty to fellow-students

Your duty to your fellow-students will teach you in later life and will secure for you the habit of co-operation. The foundation of the habit of co-operation is really to be laid in our student days, because you are trained to be together in your class, and you cannot have it all your own way, if you want to get on with your class. Therefore, if you use your opportunities properly, you will know exactly how to get on with them by sometimes giving in to them and sometimes standing out for your own view, being regardful of the feelings and considerations of other people. This habit of co-operation once acquired will continue with you all your life. It is not easy to acquire it in later life if you have not already acquired it in your student days.

Duty to parents and teachers

Your third duty is towards those in authority over you. Obedience to parents, especially during the time of studenthood and reverence for teachers while you are studying under them – these are two of the most essential conditions necessary for acquiring knowledge and for taking the fullest advantage of those opportunities which are placed within your reach while you are students.

What are the two valuable qualities to be practised by you as students?

While you are young men and students, while parents have to care for you and find means wherewith to enable you to prosecute your studies, it is necessary that their wishes should prevail with you in all matters, but when once your education is completed, and the struggle of life commences and when you are able to stand on your own legs, you owe it to yourselves and to your country, that you should use your own judgement as to what work you should do.

prosecute - continue, pursue

When does one make decisions of his own?

Reverence towards teachers

In the same way you owe reverence to your teacher while you are at school or college. Unless your whole attitude in the college and the school is founded upon a proper feeling of reverence for the teacher, you will miss one of the principal lessons of the school or college life, viz., the appreciation of discipline. Remember that in later life, along with the spirit of co-operation, what you will need most and what you need most in public life is a true spirit of discipline – the true spirit of that discipline which voluntarily subordinates your judgement, your convenience and personal gain to common good. Unless you acquire this habit at school or college, it will not be possible for you to acquire it in later life.

subordinates (v) - treats as of lesser importance

1. What is the precious virtue obtained out of reverence to the teachers?

2. How would you define the true spirit of discipline?

Duty to government

In addition to that, you owe a duty to the rulers, the Government which is the supreme authority over us all. Students with their generous mind and unsophisticated hearts naturally fall an easy prey to stirring up emotion. But that very circumstance unfits them in some instances to exercise independent judgement on current affairs. In any case, as long as they are students, not standing on their own feet, it is not their business to do so. While they are students, their attitude towards the Government of the country, such as it may be good, bad or indifferent, should be one of acquiescence, loyal acquiescence.

unsophisticated - simple, natural unfits - does not suit prey - victim

acquiescence - acceptance without protest

You should do nothing whereby your relations with the authorities will be disturbed. You should, no doubt, study public questions, but wait for your time. But while you are students you should give no cause to anybody to say that your attitude towards the authorities is one of greater or less hostility.

1. What makes students give way to emotions easily?
2. What should be the students' attitude towards the government?

Duty to wider world

The last duty that you owe to those who are in the wider world is to acquire a knowledge of their needs, observe their condition and observe their struggle, and to acquire an attitude to mind, so as to sympathise with those who are struggling, even though you are not immediately able to give them redress. There is a great deal of injustice and suffering in the wider world which requires to be remedied and when it comes to you to play the part of grown-up men, it is expected you will contribute your share to remove these things. In the meantime you must not enter the wider world without knowledge. Observe and study the conditions carefully, as you are bound to do.

redress - compensation

Reflecting on the Text :

1. As a student, how do you identify yourself with the audience (the gathering of students) who listened to Gokhale's speech?
2. Do you have a sheltered life? Give reasons for your answer.
3. Prepare a list of all the responsibilities you now face as a student.
4. Will acquisition of knowledge alone help you achieve success in life? Why?

Such as thy words are, such will thine affections be esteemed; and such as thine affections, will be thy deeds; and such as thy deeds will be thy life
- Socrates

Answer in a paragraph:

1. How is character important in life?
2. What are the various duties of a student? Describe any two duties of a student as pointed out by Gokhale.

Think of the following situations:

1. A computer wizard hacks into others' mail and gains information on their personal affairs (credit card number, family background, etc.) Then the intruder makes purchases online through someone else's account. Do we appreciate the person for his technical expertise?
2. A student who always stands first in class has a habit of stealing from his classmates. Would you look up to him?
3. Is there a possibility of you becoming a thief when you live among thieves? Consider the saying, 'Birds of a feather flock together'.
4. Narrate some incidents that had happened in your school life, wherein you had had the chance of learning and practising co-operation.
5. Make a list of the 'do's and 'don'ts' laid down by:- i) your parents ii) your teachers.

Parents:

Do's	Don'ts

Teachers:

Do's	Don'ts

6. How do you practise discipline i) in school? ii) at home?
7. Are you affected by the injustice you see around you? Cite any one such incident, which invoked your sympathy towards the person subjected to injustice (on your way to school, on the street, at home, etc. You yourself may have been treated unjustly by someone, somewhere, sometime).

Grammar :

Phrases and Clauses :

Identify the phrases and clauses in the following sentences:

- In spite of the rain, the match continued.
- Have belief in what you do.
- You should sympathise with those who are struggling.
- You must not enter the wider world without knowledge.
- If you use your opportunities properly, you will be successful in life.

Types of sentences :

A sentence that has only one main clause and any number of subordinate clauses, is termed a complex sentence.

'Acquire knowledge which will be useful to you in later life.'

In the above sentence, '(you) acquire knowledge' is the main clause as it gives complete meaning on its own.

... 'which will be useful to you in later life' is the subordinate clause, as it depends upon the main clause to get the complete meaning conveyed.

Consider the sentence :

The responsibilities are definite and they have been assigned to you.

The above sentence contains two main clauses connected by a conjunction.

The responsibilities are definite	–	Main clause 1
They have been assigned to you	–	Main clause 2
and	–	conjunction

Such sentences, in which two or more main clauses are connected by means of conjunction(s), are called compound sentences.

Look at these sentences :

- a) I would like to buy that silk saree.
- b) I would like to buy that saree made of silk.
- c) I would like to buy that saree which is made of silk.

In sentence (a) you find the word (adjective) 'silk' describing the saree.

In sentence (b) there is a group of words which describes the saree.

⇒ This group does not contain a verb. Here you have a phrase (adjectival) 'made of silk' describing the saree.

⇒ In sentence (c) the group of words describing the saree contains a finite verb (is). We also find the conjunction 'which'. Here you have a clause (adjective/relative).

⇒ Sentence (c) is a complex sentence. Can you guess what type of sentences (a) and (b) are? You are right! They are simple sentences as they contain only one main clause, i.e. a single finite verb.

⇒ A sentence which contains only one finite verb is a Simple sentence.

Classify the following into Simple, Complex and Compound sentences:

- a) There is another requisite that you must secure along with knowledge
- b) Such whole-hearted devotion is possible only in the days of studenthood.
- c) Your duty will teach you much and will secure for you the habit of co-operation.
- d) That, in brief, is the duty to yourselves.
- e) In addition to that you owe a duty to the rulers.
- f) The third duty is the duty which you owe to your fellow students.

Relative Clauses :

Observe the following sentences :

- a. My first duty... is to tender thanks... for their address which they have just now presented to me.
 - b. ... they are assigned to you by those who are willing to take care of you.
- ⇒ The underlined parts of the sentences are called relative clauses.
- ⇒ In sentence a) the clause tells us more of the address.
- ⇒ In sentence b) the clause speaks of the nature of (those) people.
- ⇒ The clauses begin with the relative pronouns 'which' and 'who'.

The relative clauses in a) and b) above are called defining, because they give us some essential information about the thing ['address' in (a)] and the persons['those' in(b)]. The 'address' and '(those) people are distinguished from other 'addresses' and 'people'.

'The particular address that has been delivered'; and 'those people who wish to take care of someone' are specifically defined/spoken of. We need this essential information. These clauses provide that information. Hence they are 'defining' clauses.

Sometimes we may use the relative clauses only to give added information which is not really essential. These clauses are known as non – defining clauses and are separated from the sentences with commas.

Example: A student of a school or college, who is responsible to himself, is also responsible to the society he lives in.

Write five sentences of your own, using relative clauses.

Join the sentences given below, choosing the correct relative pronoun furnished in brackets:

1. This is Ram. He is the leader of our class. (who/whom)
2. My key was missing. I found it. (which/what)
3. The performance of these students has been outstanding. They will be given special prizes. (whose/whom)
4. I know the girl. She is a famous sportsperson. (whom/who)
5. He suggested many ideas. They were not practical. (that/what)
6. You met the actor. He is the hero of this movie. (whom/who)
7. The bridge was repaired. They were willing to do it. (who/which)
8. Did you buy the book? You saw it in the shop. (whom/which)

Listening Skill :

Listen to the following passage read out by your teacher and complete the exercise :

It is everyone's desire to have a personality that is appreciated and admired by all. Personality is the combination of physical, emotional, spiritual and psychological aspects in a person. If you wish to enhance your personality, start by respecting yourself and believing in your ability to win respect from others. Have a positive attitude. In your interaction with others be polite and gentle, doing good to them and for them as far as possible. Give importance to your words. Speak only when it is required and is of utmost necessity. What you say has tremendous power..... it can hurt, it can heal, it can charm or it can harm. A kind word can support a person, motivate him and make him feel good. Be devoted and committed to your work.

Remember you are always a learner even when you have climbed up the ladder of position and success. The higher you reach the more humble you should be. The meaning of life is to grow, but grow with changes for the better. Your personality shows when you have a positive outlook, the right communication, a commitment to work, the will to serve others and humble acceptance of success.

Fill in the blanks in the following sentences :

1. Personality is the combination of physical, _____, spiritual and _____ aspects of a person.
2. We should have a _____ attitude to everything.
3. We should speak only when required and when of utmost little and only with _____.
4. Words have the power of _____ one or discouraging one.
5. The higher you reach the more _____ you should be.

Speaking Skill :

Address your classmates on some values, you think, essential to students. Listen to the speech of some great orators. Then try to express in your own words the ideas you had heard.

- 1) Inaugural address of Barrack Obama
- 2) Speeches of Mahatma Gandhi, Pandit Nehru and other personalities
- 3) Verses from Shakespeare's Julius Caesar – 'Friends, Romans, Countrymen.....'

Reading Skill :

You would be greatly amused to read the story of the highly coveted FIFA football trophy. Here is a passage on it. Read the passage and supply answers to the questions that follow:

- ⇒ It weighs a little more than 5kg and it measures 36.5cm vertically.
- ⇒ It is made of 18 – carat gold and has a base, 13 cm in diameter,
- ⇒ Containing two layers of malachite which is a precious mineral.
- ⇒ Two human figures holding up the earth are depicted on this
- ⇒ Holy Grail of football- the FIFA World Cup trophy.

It is a Cup every nation on the world map would love to lay its hands on.

The World Cup football tournament owes its creation to the zeal of two French administrators Jules Rimet and Henri Delaunay. It is little wonder then that a French sculptor – Abel Lafleur – was asked to craft the trophy to be awarded to the winners of the inaugural World Cup in 1930. Lafleur christened his baby Victory because the winged Greek goddess of victory, Nike, inspired his design. Victory, with a weight of 3.5 kg and height of 35cm, was made of solid gold on a blue base of lapis lazuli. It comprised an octagonal cup, supported by a winged figure representing Nike. The trophy was named after the FIFA President Jules Rimet in honour of the Frenchman's service to the game. According to FIFA's World Cup rules, a team winning the tournament three times would gain ownership of the trophy. Brazil did so in 1970 to take home the Jules Rimet trophy.

The Jules Rimet trophy was stolen from an exhibition at Westminster Central Hall in London four months before the 1966 World Cup. Miraculously, the trophy was found wrapped in a newspaper inside a garden seven days later. It was not Scotland Yard that traced the coveted trophy. A mongrel named Pickles found the ultimate football prize while on a morning walk with its owner! Brazil reacted furiously to the theft, saying "it was a sacrilege that would never have been committed in Brazil where even its thieves loved football too much". But Brazil had egg on its face 17 years later when the Jules Rimet trophy was stolen from the National Football Federation Office in Rio de Janeiro.

Winners of the World Cup nowadays receive only a replica which is gold plated. Since 1974 the name of the winners and the year are engraved on the base of the trophy. FIFA may have to commission a new trophy for the 2042 World Cup because the trophy has space to accommodate the winners and the winning years only until 2038.

Answer the following :

UNIT 3

MANLINESS

POEM

If you can dream and not make dreams your master;
If you can think and not make thoughts your aim;
If you can meet with triumph and disaster;
And treat those two impostors just the same;
If you can force your heart, and nerve, and sinew
To serve your turn long after they are gone;
And so hold on when there is nothing in you
Except the will which says to them, "Hold on".
If you can fill the unforgiving minute
With sixty seconds' worth of distance run,
Yours is the earth and everything that's in it,
And, what is more, you'll be a man, my son.

- Rudyard Kipling

Thinking about the poem :

1. How can dreams become masters?
2. When something you had expected fervently had not materialised, how did you react?
3. What keeps one going on, in spite of being repeatedly confronted with failures?
4. Which quality would you consider is most essential for man in order to face the challenges of life?
5. Memorise the poem and write it in its verse form with proper punctuations.

Answer in a paragraph :

Describe the various qualities of manliness.

Appreciation of the poem :

1. Which word is frequently repeated in the poem? How is it significant?
2. In stanza 1, we find the rhyme scheme ab ab. Is this applicable to the remaining two stanzas too?

3. Describe the two impostors mentioned in the poem. Why are they termed so?
4. What would you identify as the differences between a boy and a man from your study of this poem?

PARALLEL READING :

LIVE TO SOME PURPOSE

*They err who measure life by years,
With false or thoughtless tongue;
Some hearts grow old before their time;
Others are always young.*

*Tis not the number of the lines
On life's fast-filling page,
Tis not the pulse's added throbs,
Which constitute their age.*

*Some souls are serfs among the free,
While others nobly thrive;
They stand just where their fathers stood,
Dead, even while they live.*

*Others, all spirit, heart and sense,
Theirs the mysterious power.
To live in thrills of joy or work.
A twelve-month in an hour!*

THE FACE OF JUDAS ISCARIOT

- Bonnie Chamberlain

An old priest told me this story when I was very young. I have since wondered many times where it came from. No one has been able to tell me.

Centuries ago a great artist was engaged to paint a mural for the cathedral in a Sicilian town. The subject was the life of Jesus. For many years the artist laboured diligently, and finally the painting was finished except for the two most important figures; the Child Jesus and Judas Iscariot. He searched far and wide for models for those two figures.

One day while walking in an old part of the city he came upon some children playing in the street. Among them was a twelve year old boy whose face stirred the painter's heart. It was the face of an angel-a very dirty one, perhaps, but the face he needed. The artist took the child home with him, and day after day the boy sat patiently until the face of the Child Jesus was finished. But the painter still found no one to serve as model for the portrait of Judas. For years, haunted by the fear that his masterpiece would remain unfinished, he continued his search.

The story of the unfinished masterpiece spread afar, and many men fancying themselves of wicked countenance, offered to pose as models for the face of Judas, but in vain. The old painter looked for a face that would serve to show Judas as he had envisioned him: a man warped by life, enfeebled by surrender to greed and lust.

Then one afternoon, as he sat in the tavern over his daily glass of wine, a gaunt and tattered figure staggered across the threshold and fell upon the floor. 'Wine, wine,' he begged. The painter lifted him up, and looked into a face that startled him. It seemed to bear the marks of every sin of mankind. Greatly excited, the old painter helped the profligate to his feet.

'Come with me,' he said, 'and I will give you wine, and food and clothing.' Here at last was the model for Judas. For many days and part of many nights the painter worked feverishly to complete his masterpiece. As the work went on, a change came over the model. A strange tension replaced the stuporous languor, and his bloodshot eyes were fixed with horror on the painted likeness of himself.

One day, perceiving his subject's agitation, the painter paused in his work. 'My son, I'd like to help you', he said. 'What troubles you so?'

The model sobbed and buried his face in his hands. After a long moment he lifted pleading eyes to the old painter's face.

'Do you not then remember me? Years ago I was your model for the Child Jesus.'

		Glossary

Availability of water in India – A Prediction

Here is a map of India's future water availability status. Study the map and answer the questions that follow.

Future?

- Droughts
- Flash Floods
- Melting of Glaciers
- Food Insecurity

In groups discuss the following :

1. How long can you, as an individual, stay without water?
2. Can we find an alternative to the use of water for cleaning ourselves, our vessels etc.?
3. Suppose we wish to reduce the use of water, which are the areas where we can restrict the use of water in our day-to-day activities?
4. Do you think India has sufficient water resources for its population?
5. Discuss how we are utilizing the water resources and whether it is possible for us to distribute our water resources to all parts of India.
6. If you were given the responsibility when you grow up, to interlink all rivers, what are the measures you would employ?

1. It is not yet noon in Delhi, just 180 miles south of the Himalayan glaciers. But in the narrow corridors of Nehru Camp, a slum in this city of 16 million, the blast furnace of the north Indian summer has already sent temperatures soaring past 105 degrees Fahrenheit. Chaya, the 25-year-old wife of a fortune-teller, has spent seven hours joining the mad scramble for water that even today defines life in this heaving metropolis and offers a taste of what the depletion of Tibet's water and ice portends.

soaring : rising, increasing scramble: struggle
 heaving : fumingly crowded

2. Chaya's day began long before sunrise, when she and her five children fanned out in the darkness, armed with plastic jugs of every size. After day break, the rumour of a tap with running water sent her stumbling in a panic through the slum's narrow corridors. Now, with her containers still empty and the sun blazing overhead, she has returned home for a moment's rest. Asked if she's eaten anything today, she laughs: "We haven't even had any tea yet."

fanned out : spread out rumour : false story panic : fear corridors : passages

3. Suddenly cries erupt – a water truck has been spotted. Chaya leaps up and joins the human torrent in the street. A dozen boys swarm onto a blue tanker, jamming hoses in and siphoning the water out. Below, shouting women jostle for position with their containers. In six minutes the tanker is empty. Chaya arrived too late and must move on to chase the next rumour of water.

erupt : suddenly happen torrent : an outpour to swarm : to crowd onto something jamming : pushing with force jostle : push roughly in a crowd

4. More than two-thirds of the city's water is drawn from the Yamuna and the Ganges, rivers fed by Himalayan ice. If that ice disappears, the future will almost certainly be worse. "We are facing an unsustainable unsustainable – cannot be maintained exodus – mass movement from one place to another punch – hit welt – mark

.situation,” says Diwan Singh, a Delhi environmental activist. “Soon – not in thirty years but in five to ten – there will be an exodus because of the lack of water.”

5. The tension already seethes. In the clogged alleyway around one of Nehru Camp's last functioning taps, which run for one hour a day, a man punches a woman who cut in line, leaving a purple blow on her face.

melee - a situation in which a crowd of people are rushing brawl – a noisy and violent fight

6. “We wake up every morning fighting over water,” says Kamal Bhate, a local astrologer watching the melee. This one dissolves into shouting and finger-pointing, but the brawls can be deadly. In a nearby slum a teenage boy was recently beaten to death for cutting in line.

1. Do you know how the Himalayan glaciers are useful?
2. Why should Chaya hurry?
3. What is a metropolis?
4. Why hasn't Chaya drunk any tea as yet?
5. What caused the commotion in the street?

Did you know?

Climate change is now generally known as 'global warming' which means the increase in the average temperature of air and oceans.

7. Climate change and diminishing water supplies could reduce cereal yields in South Asia by 5 percent within three decades. “We're going to see rising tension over shared water resources, including political disputes between farmers, between farmers and cities, and between human and ecological demands for water,” says Peter Gleick, a water expert and President of the Pacific Institute in Oakland, California. “And I believe more of these tensions will lead to violence.”

cereal - pulses yields - production decade- a period of ten years

1. What will be the future if the Himalayan glaciers become ice-free?
2. What according to Diwan Singh will happen if the rivers dwindle?
3. What does Kamal Bhate do every morning?
4. What according to Peter Gleick will be the future when the water supplies are diminished?
5. What can lead the world to violence?

8. For the people in Nehru Camp, geopolitical concerns are lost in the frenzied pursuit of water. In the afternoon, a tap outside the slum is suddenly turned on, and Chaya, smiling triumphantly, hauls back a full, ten-gallon jug on top of her head. The water is dirty and bitter, and there are no means to boil it.

frenzied - involving a lot of activity that is often violent pursuit - chase triumphantly - victoriously
hauls back - pulls back

9. But now, at last, she can give her children their first meal of the day: a piece of bread and a few spoonfuls of lentil stew. “They should be studying, but we keep shooing them away to find water,” Chaya says. “We have no choice, because who knows if we’ll find enough water tomorrow.”

lentil - a small seed, dried and used in cooking stew - a dish of meat and vegetables cooked slowly in liquid

1. What made Chaya triumphantly smile?
2. What was the condition of the water?
3. When was Chaya able to give her children their first meal of the day?
4. What was their first meal of the day?

Arctic to become ice-free!

The Arctic Ocean could be ice-free in less than a decade, scientists have warned, as the latest figures show the thickness of the ice cap has shrunk to a record low.

Answer in a paragraph :

1. Describe the daily routine of Chaya and her family.
2. Briefly describe the scene from the arrival of the water-tanker till its departure.
3. What are the alarming threats foreseen by environmentalists, due to water scarcity?

Thinking beyond the text :

1. Suggest how Chaya's water problems could be solved.
2. What could you, as a student, do to improve water conservation in your area?

Reading Skill :

A. Read the passage “Will Thirst Become Unquenchable?” once again. Then match the captions given below with the paragraph that suits each caption. Write the number of the paragraph in the space provided.

a. War for water	<input type="checkbox"/>
b. Predictions for the future	<input type="checkbox"/>
c. Ensuing exodus	<input type="checkbox"/>
d. Earlier is always better	<input type="checkbox"/>
e. A large mass of ice	<input type="checkbox"/>
f. The Plight of life	<input type="checkbox"/>
g. Times may change	<input type="checkbox"/>

B. Read the article and answer the questions that follow :

The Water Arithmetic

We stare at the dregs of our ingenuity, at a resource scientifically misused. We are cawing alarmed. But we only keep cawing raucously at that. Let's get on, like the crow and fashion pebble by pebble to meet our needs.

The source of all water on earth is not the river, is not the underground aquifer, is not the lake, well or stream. Rain is the source of all water.

In India the monsoon is a deluge. Rain spatters the earth, fills ponds. Lakes brim. Rivers heave. But the monsoon is also brief. We receive most of its rainfall in just 100 hours out of 8,760 hours in a year. But this is enough to meet our water needs, provide food security and eradicate rural poverty. Why is Cherrapunji today short of drinking water, when it gets more than eleven meters of rainfall annually? Simply because it does not capture the rain that falls over it.

1. What is the effect of rain on earth?
2. What do you think can eradicate rural poverty?
3. Match the words from the text to their definitions :

- a. monsoon
- b. eradicate
- c. ingenuity
- d. caw
- e. deluge

- a. ability to solve problems in clever new ways
- b. the unpleasant sound that is made by crows
- c. a sudden very heavy rain fall
- d. a period of heavy rain in summer
- e. wipe out

Now consult a dictionary to find the meaning of the words in bold.

C. Underline the correct word.

1. Cherrapunji people waste / save rainwater.
2. As the car passed, it shook / spattered the rainwater.
3. They prepare / provide clean drinking water for the party.
4. Raja will receive / get a letter next week.
5. People welcome / envy the monsoon.

D. Match the give definitions and names to the pictures.

1 b

1. A large mass of ice floating in the sea.
2. A passage dug out of the ground to connect two areas of water for boats and ships to travel between them.
3. A narrow strip of water that connects two larger bodies of water.
4. A great mass of soil water that covers most of the earth's surface.
5. A large area of water surrounded by land.
6. Water that falls straight down over a cliff big rock.
7. A large mass of ice which moves slowly down a mountain valley.
8. A natural and continuous flow of water in a long line across a country into the sea.
9. A place where water comes up naturally from the ground.

- a) lake b) iceberg c) canal d) geyser
e) ocean f) waterfall g) river h) glacier
i) strait

E. Skim the passage and use the information you have skimmed to complete the mind map given below :

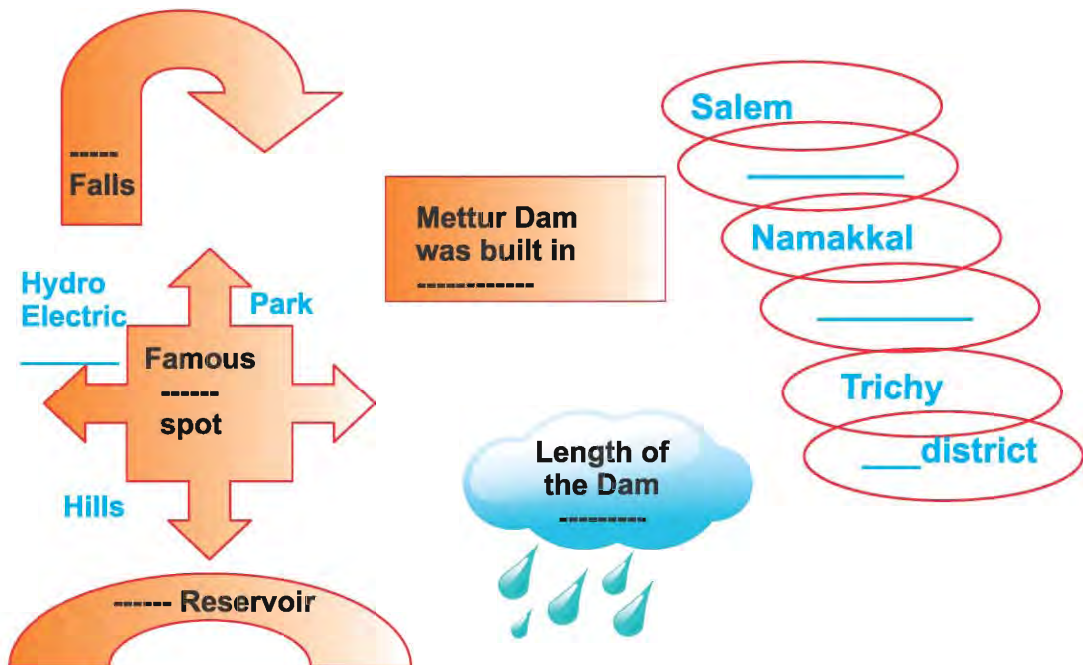

The Mettur Dam

The Mettur Dam is a large dam in India built in 1934. It was constructed in a gorge, where the river Kaveri enters the plains. The dam is one of the oldest in India. It provides irrigation facilities to a part of Salem, the length of Erode, Namakkal, Karur, Tiruchirappalli and Thanjavur district for 271,000 acres of farm land.

The total length of the dam is 1700 meters. The dam has facilitated the Stanley Reservoir. The Mettur Hydro Electrical Power Project is also quite large. The dam, the park, the major Hydro Electric Power Stations and hills on all sides make Mettur a tourist attraction. Upstream from the dam we find the Hogennakal Falls.

The Mettur dam is an old Multipurpose Project of the South Indian State of Tamil Nadu across the Cauvery river. It irrigates 1,310 square kilometers each year. Its installed capacity for hydro-power generation is 32 MW.

Grammar :

First Conditionals

e.g. If the battery is charged the light will shine.

If clause : 'if'+ present tense
(is charged)

Main clause : will, won't, can, can't, shall, shaln't, may, might

Do you remember

- ✳ You use conditional clauses to talk about a possible situation and its results.
- ✳ Conditional clauses can begin with 'if'
- ✳ A conditional clause needs a main clause to make a complete sentence. The conditional clause can occur before or after the main clause.

Match the following Main and 'if' clauses :

'If' clause

If you waste water
If you lend me some money
If Naveen is late
If the bus breaks down
If it rains

Main clause

he will be punished
I won't be able to attend the class
I shall get wet
I can buy a new car
you will suffer

Second Conditionals

e.g.

If he worked hard, he would pass.

If clause: 'If' + past tense

Main clause: would, wouldn't, etc.

Use the words provided and rewrite the sentences using 'if' clauses.

Look at the example to help you.

(money / Kapoor / buy / car) If Kapoor had money, he would buy a car.

1. rained / Chaya / to Agra / visit
2. rained / the plants / not wither
3. had / Seelan / new shoes / jog faster
4. had / Kalai / a cycle / reach school earlier

Create more examples.

.....

II. Match the phrases in Column A with those in Column B:

Example :

If she asked me, I would help her.

If clause : If + past tense (asked)

Main clause: 'would' or 'wouldn't'

You use 'if' to denote events and situations

- (i) that happen often
- (ii) that may happen in the future
- (iii) that could have happened in the past but did not happen
- (iv) that are unlikely to happen

	A	B
1.	If he studied well	I would buy a BMW car
2.	If he went late	he would pass the exam
3.	If I won a lottery	the dog would bite us
4.	If it got out of the gate	he would not get water
5.	If I had more money	I would feed a lot of people

Third Conditionals

e.g.

If I had seen the water tankers I would have swarmed to siphon at least a bucket of water.

If clause : If + past perfect (had seen)

Main clause : would have + past participle (would have swarmed)

Couldn't it happen?

When you are talking about something which could have happened in the past but which did not actually happen, you use the past perfect in the conditional clause. In the main clause, you use 'would have' and a past participle.

Complete the following sentences with suitable clauses :

1. If Raj had got enough water, _____
2. Anandh would have found a job, _____
3. If Bagya hadn't started early, _____
4. James would have got a prize, _____
5. If we had saved rain water more in ponds and lakes, _____ she would have been late to work we could have survived the drought if he had attended the interview if he had performed well

he would have shared it with his neighbour

DEGREES OF COMPARISON - REVISION :

Kamala lives
in a big house

Sundar's house is bigger than Kamala's

Arun's house is the biggest in the street

Look at the words in bold. These words show a difference in the size of the buildings, when compared one with the other. When two, or more than two things persons are compared, the Degrees of Comparison are used. In the sentences given above, the word 'big' is of the Positive Degree; 'bigger' is of the Comparative Degree and 'biggest' is of the Superlative Degree

REPEATED COMPARATIVES

Letter from a tenant asking for a reduction of rent.

5, James Gardens,
7th Street, Chennai.
28th January, 2010

Dear Sir,

I am writing this to request you to consider reducing the rent for the premises you have rented to me.

I have been occupying your house since 2005. All these years not once have I troubled you for the number of major and minor repairs I have been carrying out under my own expense.

Now, however, since the water in the bore well has decreased and the motor and hand pump are not working, I find I am paying a rent, which is more than what my neighbours pay with better facilities in every way.

I shall be happy if you would either consider a reduction in rent or cancel the rent agreement accordingly.

Thank you,

Yours sincerely,
R. Anandhan

Activity : Use the above idioms in sentences of your own.

1. Using the points given below, prepare an article for your school magazine on Rain Water Harvesting.

- ✓ In areas where there is inadequate ground water supply or surface resources, either lacking or insufficient, rain water harvesting offers an ideal solution
- ✓ Helps in utilizing the primary source of water and prevents the runoff from going in to sewer or storm drains, thereby reducing the load on treatment plants
- ✓ Reduces urban flooding
- ✓ Recharging water into the aquifers helps in improving the quality of existing ground water through dilution.

Urban rainwater harvesting

Urban centres in India are facing an ironical situation today. On one hand there is the acute water scarcity and on the other, the streets are often flooded during the monsoons. This has led to serious problems with quality.

2. Think of this situation and write a paragraph on it:

- Has the area you live in ever been flooded due to heavy rains or due to any other man made calamity?
- If your area gets flooded is it possible to make your way to school? What would be your mode of transport?
- Describe the havoc caused by floods. How would you help others in a flood?

3. Write some predictions about the conditions in the availability of water after ten years.

4. Write an article on either of the following:

Good uses of water and avoiding wastage

Pollution in oceans and seas

Hazards to water bodies in Sharat's locality

Pollution of Drinking Water Sources

- Bathing cattle in river
- Throwing chemical wastes into lakes and rivers
- Uncovered wells
- Using lakes as public toilets
- Washing clothes in the river
- Draining kitchen and toilet waste water into lakes and rivers

Sharath lives in a semi - urban area and does not get sufficient drinking water due to misuse of water bodies in the area.

Fill in the blanks and know how they are misused with the help of the pie diagram given above.

Sharath's locality has lakes _____ and _____. In spite of them he has very little drinking water available. This is because _____ percent of the lakes and rivers are used as dumping areas for chemical waste and _____ percent is mixed with kitchen and toilet outflow. About _____ of the wells _____ thus allowing dry leaves and windswept rubbish to fall in. _____ percent of lakes and rivers are used as _____ and _____. Hence there is a rare chance of good water there.

UNIT 4

GOING FOR WATER

POEM

The well was dry beside the door,
And so we went with pail and can
Across the fields behind the house
To seek the brook if still it ran;

Not loth to have excuse to go,
Because the autumn eve was fair
(Though chill), because the fields were ours,
And by the brook our woods were there.

We ran as if to meet the moon
That slowly dawned behind the trees,
The barren boughs without the leaves,
Without the birds, without the breeze.

But once within the wood, we paused
Like gnomes that hid us from the moon,
Ready to run to hiding new
With laughter when she found us soon.

Each laid on other a staying hand
To listen ere we dared to look,
And in the hush we joined to make
We heard, we knew we heard the brook.

A note as from a single place,
A slender tinkling fall that made
Now drops that floated on the pool
Like pearls, and now a silver blade.

- Robert Frost

Poetic wordsere – before*soon – presently*blade – reference to the river*Glossary:*loth – hate, dislike*gnomes – dwarfs*Answer the following questions:

1. Why had the speakers to go to the brook?
2. Did the speakers enjoy the trip into the woods? What makes you say so?
3. When did the speakers visit the woods - during the day or the night? Look for hints in the poem.
4. Why did the speakers pause in the woods? Who found them soon?
5. Why did each lay a 'staying hand' on the other?
6. Pick out the words that describe the flow of the brook.
7. Why is the river referred to as 'a silver blade'?
8. How does the rhyme scheme of stanza three differ from those of stanzas one and two?
9. Pick out the words in alliteration in stanza three.
10. Memorise the third, fourth and fifth stanzas of the poem.

Answer in a paragraph:

Describe the experiences of the children on their way to the brook to seek water.

Thinking beyond the text:

Do you think Chaya's children would have enjoyed going for water, as much as these children did? Give reasons for your answer.

SWEPT AWAY

- Susannah Hickling

The young Frenchwoman stepped out of her flooded house – and disappeared beneath the water

“Come on, We’ve got to get out of here now”, Serge urged his partner Celine. Flood water that had poured into their little terraced home was already 30 centimetres deep and rising. The couple had lifted the sofa onto the dining table and stacked as many other possessions as they could out of the reach of the filthy water. It was 2:15 pm on Monday, September 22, 2003 and the small town of Lunel in southern France had been battered by violent storms since mid-morning.

Council worker Serge, 43 and 32-year old Celine, a home help, had lived most of their lives in Lunel which stands only a few metres above sea level. The flat, marshy area, floods frequently. This was the second time in just over a year that the couple had found the home invaded by water.

Serge and Celine stepped out into the street, now a fast-flowing thigh-high river. They waded across the road and Celine stepped over a low hedge which separated the street from the pavement. Serge was following close behind when he saw Celine fall. In an instant she had disappeared below the water.

She’s dead, he thought. It’s all over. All they’ll find is her body later. Celine felt herself being pulled under the water. Instinctively, she reached up for Serge’s hand. She felt his grasp but her relief was short-lived as his hand slipped away.

She couldn’t understand what was happening. She was being swept along underwater, helpless and swallowing mouthfuls of the filthy liquid. She couldn’t breathe. “I’m going to die”, she thought. “I’m drowning. There’s no way I can survive this”. Then she found that she could breathe again. In the dim light, she could see that she was about ten metres from the manhole through which she had plunged, but the current made it impossible to swim back.

She was in a two-metre wide concrete storm drain which was almost completely filled with water and it was still rising. Across the drain stretched a small plastic pipe. Further on, the tunnel was completely black.

“I've got to try to grab that pipe”, Celine thought. “I've got to keep myself as high out of the water as I can”.

Slippery though it was, she managed to grasp the pipe. With a supreme effort she pulled the upper part of her body out of the water and manoeuvred herself against the wall to stop herself being swept further along the drain.

Above ground, Serge panicked. “Help, help!” he cried, wading as fast as he could to his nearest neighbour's house. “Quick! Celine's been sucked down a drain! I've got to go back, I've got to get her out”.

“No,” said Louise Martinez, who lived opposite the couple. “We'll ring the fire brigade.”

Drenched and freezing cold, Celine hung on. Thoughts came to her almost like photographs. She could see her daughter Amandine turning to blow her a kiss as she hurried into school. “I'll never see her again”, she thought. She wouldn't be there to celebrate Amandine's twelfth birthday in two weeks time. “No!” she said to herself. “I've got to be there for her. I've got to survive”.

And then there was Serge. She thought of the squabble they'd had that morning. Now all she could think of was that Serge would have to tell Amandine that her mother was dead. How will he tell her? she wondered.

It didn't bear thinking about. She couldn't let it happen. “I've got to fight to the very end”.

The firemen finally managed to battle through the floods about an hour after they had received the call alerting them to Celine's disappearance. They shone torches down the manhole and probed with metal rods but there was no sign of the missing woman.

As she hung from the pipe, Celine saw a bright light. It was the firemen, she realized, shining powerful torches down the manhole. She started tapping on the pipe and battering the walls with her hands and arms, "I'm here!" she shouted. "Come and get me out."

She watched as the firemen lowered metal rods, and she tried hard to shout above the noise of the racing water.

Then, to her astonishment and anger, the lights and rods disappeared. It was black now in the drain, and she felt objects smashing against her – bags, branches, the contents of bins, all swept away in the flood.

Unable to feel her legs, she knew she couldn't hold on to the pipe any longer. I've got to do something, she thought. The water level had dropped to her chest.

"There's got to be an exit further on", she reckoned. "All this water has got to go somewhere. Perhaps there's a grill". If it was shut she could be smashed to pieces against it, but if it was open she was free. She had to find out.

After a while, she was able to touch the bottom of the drain with her feet. The pipe had narrowed. Her hopes rose until suddenly her face smashed against something hard protruding from the wall – an iron bar.

Celine lost consciousness for a moment and came round to find herself once more going under the water. At the same time she could feel something above her. It seemed to be pieces of plastic hanging down from the roof. She grabbed one.

Soon the water picked up speed, the current became more and more difficult to resist and Celine could no longer walk. Forced on to her back, she once again felt herself being sucked along, out of control.

She couldn't hold on to the plastic any longer. She felt her body being thrown around by the water, turning over and over in the icy deluge. Her shoulder, then her legs and knees, slammed against the concrete wall. Still being buffeted by the terrifying force of the storm water, Celine did not immediately realize that she was in the open air. Night was falling. Then reality hit her. "I'm outside! I'm outside!" she thought jubilantly.

She was in a ditch whose water had over-flowed into a large flooded area, with houses on one side and fields on the other. She grabbed some tufts of grass and reeds but, still unable to lift herself out of the torrent, she screamed for help.

Above the roaring of the water, she heard a man's voice. Jack Poderoso, a 45-year old teacher, was standing on concrete platform just above the storm drain exit, checking that his daughter's horse was all right. "Is there someone down there?" he shouted.

"Yes, I'm here, I'm here," Celine yelled back, "What's the time?"

"It's after 7 pm", he replied.

Celine was amazed. "Have I been down here for five hours?"

"Ring Serge," She shouted, "Tell him I'm alive. He thinks I'm dead."

Jack could see that the woman was weak and still in danger. "No, calm down," he said, "You've got to get out of that river."

Celine managed to heave herself onto the muddy bank, but there was still no way Jack could reach her.

Jack forced Celine to give him Serge's number, repeating it figure by figure above the water's roar. When nobody answered, Celine managed to recall Serge's brother's number. Celine's head ached but, urged on by Jack, she dragged herself to her feet.

Then she heard another voice, inquiring "Where's the body?" It was a fireman bearing a bag. It was after 8 pm when Serge arrived at Lunel's fire station.

A fire engine pulled up outside. The doors opened. Inside sat Celine, her hair wet and bedraggled, her face battered. She had no voice left. She could only collapse weeping into Serge's arms.

No one can understand how Celine survived. She has her own theory. "When I want something, I'm very determined. I wanted to be there for my daughter and for Serge."

Answer the following questions:

1. Why did Serge and Celine decide to get out of their little terraced home?
2. What did they do to safeguard their possessions?
3. Where did Serge see Celine fall and disappear below water?
4. Why couldn't Serge pull her out of the water?
5. "She's dead", he thought. Why did Serge think that Celine was dead?
6. What made it difficult for Celine to swim back?
7. What was the suggestion made by Serge's neighbour to save Celine?
8. What made Celine fight to the very end?
9. Why couldn't Celine realize that she was in the open air?
10. Who was Jack Poderoso? How did he help Celine?
11. How long had Celine been under the drain?
12. Whom did Celine ask Jack to contact, when he was rescuing her?

Answer in a paragraph:

1. Describe the traumatic experience of Celine after being swept away into the drain.
2. Attempt a character sketch of Celine.

Rearrange in sequence the following sentences and rewrite in a paragraph:

- A).
1. The pressure of the water was so strong and Celine's hand so slippery that Serge could not hold on.
 2. Serge quickly splashed over to help her up.
 3. Her hand disappeared from view.
 4. He grabbed it and pulled with all his might.
 5. But all he saw was a hand reaching up out of the water.
- B).

MAKING VISIBLE THE INVISIBLE

PROSE

- Kalpana Sharma

Pre - reading activity :

Tick off the items you use in your home:

1. washing machine
 2. dish - washer
 3. vacuum cleaner
 4. mixer - grinder
- A. Who works these machines at home? anyone in the family parents servants
- B. Before these machines came in to your home, who do you think would have done the work these machines do?
- C. Which do you think is more difficult – machine applied domestic work or manual domestic work (work carried out manually) ?

Now read this newspaper write – up on domestic workers.

Illegal and inhumane: A rescued child domestic worker

1. They sweep, they swab, they wash, they cook, they take care of our children and our pets, and they look after our elderly. We see them every day. Yet they are invisible.

Yes, millions of women, men and children — India's large force of domestic workers, or “servants” as most people call them — remain unseen, undervalued and denied rights that all workers deserve.

undervalued - importance, goodness or value not recognised denied - refused

2. This is a subject to which we are forced to return every now and then. Sometimes it is a tragedy that forces us to think. Sometimes a positive development. In June 2006, when 10-year-old Sonu was sadistically tortured and killed by her tragedy - sad happening sadistically - getting pleasure out of hurting someone employers in Mumbai, the invisible world of the domestic worker, and especially of the child worker, lay exposed in all its brutality. With the New Year, the possibility of changing the conditions of work and life of such people comes in the form of the Maharashtra Domestic Workers' Welfare Board Bill that was passed by both houses of the legislature during the recently concluded winter session. Although the law has many shortcomings, it is important because it recognises the rights of these "invisible" workers.

tortured	- made to suffer
brutality	- cruelty
shortcomings	- defects

a) Why is the world of domestic workers 'invisible'?

b) How can the Maharashtra Bill help the workers?

Beyond legislation

3. Of course, laws alone cannot deal with a problem that constantly plays hide and seek. For decades, groups like the National Domestic Workers' Movement have campaigned for recognition of domestic work as a form of labour. The diligence and persistence of such groups have resulted in some states initiating legislation. For instance, both Andhra Pradesh and Karnataka have included domestic workers in the legal provisions for minimum wage. Tamil Nadu has included domestic work in the Manual Labour Act and in January 2007 set up the Domestic Workers' Welfare Board. Kerala has taken some steps in this direction, as have Bihar and Rajasthan. The Central Government has included domestic workers in provisions under the Unorganised Sector Workers' Social Security Act that was passed in January last year. And now Maharashtra has passed its own law.

4. Most labour laws face the challenge of implementation but amongst the most difficult must surely be the ones linked to domestic work. To begin with, there are no clear statistics of the number of people working as paid labourers in people's homes. According to the International Labour Organisation (ILO), “A domestic worker is someone who carries out household work in a private household in return for wages.” The estimated number of domestic workers in India is 90 million, but this is probably an underestimate as there has been no systematic study to document such workers throughout the country.

- a) Which are the states in India that have shown concern for the domestic workers?
- b) Is it difficult to implement labour laws for domestic workers?

5. From the data that exist, it is clear that the overwhelming majority of domestic workers are women and girls. There has been considerable documentation of the abuse, young girls, in particular, suffer at the hands of their employers. Sonu's was not an exceptional story. It was just a reminder of what goes on behind many closed doors.

6. An estimated 20 per cent of domestic workers are children below 14 years of age. Under child labour laws, these children should not be employed. Yet those who do employ them get around the law by claiming that they are documentation - being recorded in documents exceptional - unusual

“looking after” these children when in fact it is the children who look after them, usually with little or no pay. Such child workers slip between the cracks of labour laws as most laws cover workers over the age of 18. The Maharashtra law, for instance, addresses domestic workers between the ages of 18 and 60 who are now eligible to register themselves at district welfare boards. But what happens to those under 18?

I wonder !

What does 'slip between the cracks of labour law' mean? Is it the same as 'find loopholes in the law?'

7. Laws are necessary but those relating to domestic penalised – punished surplus market – where several jobs are available workers can only be effective if there is a change of attitude in the people who employ them. Do employers of domestics even know what the minimum wage is? Do they care? How will they be penalised if they refuse to pay? Can domestic workers ever be strong enough to refuse to work in a labour surplus market like ours? Every day, changes in the economy and developmental policies are pushing more people into domestic work. .

simultaneously - at the same time

With extended families being replaced by nuclear families, there is increasing demand for domestic workers. This ought to push up wages. But simultaneously, the increasing number of infrastructure projects and industries are displacing millions of people, particularly from tribal areas. These are the women, especially, who are now joining the growing force of domestic workers in our cities.

- a) Do the labour laws include all age groups of workers?
- b) How are children affected by these laws?
- c) What are the causes for the increase in domestic workers?
- d) Besides laws, what could help domestic workers have a better life?

Ground realities intervene – become involved in

8. Slavery would be considered a harsh term by most Indians who employ domestic workers but the reality is that even today in many homes, the domestics — especially those who work full time — are often no better than slaves. They are usually in debt to their employers and work their whole lives to pay off the debt. Generations work to pay off the debt. And it never really ever gets paid off. They are on call 24 hours of the day, 365 days in the year. And they can never ever dream of freeing themselves from such bondage. How can laws intervene in such situations?

9. Ultimately, things can and will change only if those who employ domestics accept that these workers are first of all “workers” and not “servants”. That they are individuals with rights like any other person. That they should be paid a fair wage. That they deserve time off. That they too have families to care for. That they should not lose wages when they fall sick. That they are valued human beings without whom our lives would be impossible.

legislated – made into a law

10. Such a change of attitude cannot be legislated.

- a) How are some domestic workers' lives similar to those of slaves?
- b) How should employers with a change in attitude treat their domestic workers?

Reflecting on the text :

1. Do we really need someone to do our domestic work for us?
2. Who are these domestic workers –
 - a. Do they have a qualification for their jobs?
 - b. Would they be able to get better jobs if they gave up being domestic workers?
 - c. Do you think they enjoy the work they do? Why do you think so?
 - d. How could you contribute to a better living for your domestic worker and his / her family? Use these clues to guide your thoughts:
 - i. in your communication with them
 - ii. in the workload you give
 - iii. in the facilities you provide
3. What is your observation of the existing attitudes and what in your opinion would you consider a 'change'?
4. Do you believe attitudes cannot be 'legislated'? If they could, what attitudes in an individual and in society would you ban as illegal? Which ones would you pass as a Bill? Discuss this in your class.

Uncommon plural forms:

Some words take plurals of a different form. Look at the examples given below:

Singular	Plural
axis	axes
crisis	crises

Singular	Plural
focus	foci
terminus	termini, terminuses
genie	genii, genies
memorandum	memoranda
stratum	strata
aquarium	aquaria
alumna (feminine)	alumnae
alumnus (masculine)	alumni

Some nouns retain the same form in the singular and plural.

e.g. sheep, deer, species, aircraft, corps, swine

Most compound nouns form their plural with an addition of '_s' e.g. dining room dining rooms grown-up grown-ups spoonful spoonfuls

In some compound nouns the plural is formed by adding 's' to the first part of the compound word.

e.g. daughter-in-law daughters-in-law runner-up runners-up governor-general governors-general

In some compound nouns the plural is formed by converting both the elements in the compound word.

man servant – men servants woman student – women students

Some nouns are always plural. They have no singular forms.

E.g. cattle, spectacles, means, premises

Stress :

Look at the statement

I am not going with you to the party.

This statement conveys different meanings when you stress (use a force on) different words.

e.g: I am not going with you to the party.

The stress on 'I' would mean 'Not I but someone else is going with you'.

I am not going with you to the party.

The stress on 'party' would mean, 'I am going somewhere with you but not to the party'.

I am not going with you to the party.

The stress on 'you' would mean, 'I am going with someone else, not you'.

Now can you guess what the statement would mean if the stress was on 'not'?

Read these sentences aloud changing the stress to change the meaning of the sentence accordingly.

1. Vidhya gave me this present.
2. I did not steal this pen.
3. There is a park near the house.

Writing Skill :

Developing Headlines

When writing a news report for a newspaper or your school News Board, your headline is the first, and perhaps, the only impression you make on your reader. So writing great headlines is a critical and creative art.

On an average 8 out of 10 people read only the headline copy but only two do read the report. The better the headline, the better the chances of getting the report read by a greater percentage of people. The following points are what you need to know in order to identify a headline or differentiate it from a complete statement:

1. Headlines often contain a noun phrase with no verb
e.g.: Unexpected visit of Minister to schools
2. Headlines may have noun strings (several nouns put together)
e.g.: Tamil Nadu State Board Examination Results Declared
3. Various verb changes are made in headlines. The common changes are:
 - a) The Simple Tense form is used instead of the Continuous or Perfect forms
e.g.: Chennai celebrates Madras Week

The people of Chennai are celebrating Aug 7 to 13 as Madras Week.

- b) The Infinitive form refers to the future
e.g.: Prime Minister to inaugurate National Games

The Prime Minister will / is going to inaugurate the National games in Delhi

- c) The auxiliary verb is dropped in the passive form
e.g.: Passengers injured in accident

The passengers of a van were/have been injured in an accident.....

4. Articles are dropped; full-stops are not placed after headlines

e.g.: Man snatches woman's chain

A man snatched a woman's chain

5. Headlines may contain initials and abbreviations

e.g.: India to host SAARC Meet in U.P.

Activity :

Expand the following headlines into complete sentences:

1. Mobile phones banned in schools
2. Scientist discovers new planet
3. Foreign Secy. meets CM to discuss rehab
4. Jewels stolen from house in Mylapore
5. Dutch teens arrive for reunion with family
6. Business campaign launched in China
7. Thirty child labourers rescued in Agra
8. Parents arrested for child abuse
9. Indian awarded Nobel Prize for Physics
10. Andhra XI beat Viva to enter Football Cup semi-finals

You have been able to identify a headline and expand it into a complete sentence.

Now let us try forming a headline from a complete sentence :

Indian Labour Investigators have rescued 25 child workers in a dawn raid on four toy factories in New Delhi.

Let's ask ourselves these questions and answer them in single words or short phrases.

What is this about? _____ 30 child labourers

What happened to them? _____ were rescued

From where were they rescued? _____ from toy factories

Now form a sentence with your answers and edit it to obtain the features of a headline.

30 child labourers rescued from toy factories

Activity:

Form a headline for each of the following news reports. Remember to pick out only the main idea or words from the sentence.

1. Two families residing in the posh Excel Apartments in Bombay, who had employed four children as domestic help, have been fined Rs 61,000/- in all by the State Labour Department's Child Welfare Committee.
2. Activists in Jakarta are calling on all household workers to stop working and march in the streets during the nationwide strike called for from May 1-3 to push for the formulation and passage of the Domestic Worker Law.
3. Children of a private school in Chennai city have taken a pledge to ease the workload of their domestic workers at home by sharing their work and teaching them in the time thus saved.
4. K.Banumathi of SS school won the First prize in the Inter- School Debate on the topic "Are Domestic Helps necessary?" conducted by Lions' Club, South Chennai.
5. The government has declared a two-day holiday for schools and colleges due to heavy rains lashing the city resulting in flooding of streets and residential areas in the city.

Grammar - Revision of Active and Passive Voice:

You have learnt how to use Active and Passive Voice. Here are a few more exercises for practice.

Fill in the blanks using the correct voice of the verbs given in the brackets.

1. You cannot meet the captain of the cricket team now, as he _____ (interview) by the reporter at the moment.
2. I _____ (chat) with Prema on the phone when I was interrupted by the sound of the door-bell.

3. Arun is busy now. He _____ (draw) the diagrams in his science record.
4. Our work _____ (complete) last night .
5. Sneha _____ (bake) cookies when she _____ (interrupt) by a loud noise.
6. Kavitha is an impulsive buyer. By the time she goes back home most of her money _____ (spend).

Identify the voice and select the correct verb form from the brackets in the following sentences:

1. The florist (delivers / is delivered) flowers to my office everyday.
2. The children (looked after / are looked after) by their grandmother.
3. The kitchen (is tiled / is being tiled). We cannot use it yet.
4. The banquet (is being attended / was attended) by distinguished guests last night.
5. The dusk-to-dawn curfew (will have lifted / will have been lifted) by the end of this week.
6. Linda (had been ridiculed / is been ridiculed) by her insensitive classmates for her spelling problems.

Rewrite the sentences in the other voice :

1. He was awarded a prize by the government.
2. The certificates were issued to the students.
3. The Manager did not give them a bonus.
4. The old man completed his work.
5. They must arrest the culprits.
6. We should help the poor.

Rewrite the following passages, transforming the verbs into the passive form, wherever possible :

Passage - 1

Cheenu invented a magic pen. Whenever he made a mistake the pen would correct it automatically. One day he was writing a letter in class, when he spelt a word wrong. "How did I commit a mistake?" he wondered. "Has my pen lost its effect?" Cheenu was puzzled. He was not using his magic pen then.

Unfortunately he had left the magic pen at home, so he could not correct his mistake. He had to submit his paper to the teacher. The teacher was correcting his paper and his mistake worried her. "Cheenu does not make mistakes" thought the teacher. "I will have to speak to him". The teacher's enquiry revealed the truth. Cheenu felt ashamed of himself. "I am using my pen selfishly. I am not learning anything new. I will not use it hereafter for personal gains. I shall work hard and learn my spellings properly"; this was Cheenu's decision.

Passage - 2

Machines crush wood into small pieces. They mix the pieces with water and chemicals to produce pulp. Other machines spin the resulting pulp into fine sheets of paper.

When we recycle paper, we repeat the process. We use different chemical processes to produce the various required grades of paper.

The sentences given below are incorrect. Rewrite them correctly.

1. The theatre was crowding with so many people that we couldn't find a place to sit.
2. The construction worker was strike by a falling beam while he was working at the annexure block.
3. The agenda is discussing now, so members are free to voice their opinions.
4. At 8.30 last night, technicians were tried to reconnect the damaged power lines and restore electricity in our area.
5. The cupboard crammed with so many things that everything fell out when I opened it.

Transformation of Sentences from Compound to Simple – Revision :

Rewrite the following sentences adding ' -ing ' to the appropriate verb.

An example is given below :

I broke my ankle in a football match and had to go to hospital.

Having broken my ankle in a football match, I had to go to hospital.

- a) I couldn't walk, so I was taken in a wheel chair.
- b) The doctor decided to operate upon me and gave me an anaesthetic.
- c) It was very painful, so I had to stay in bed
- d) I recovered in a month's time and was discharged.
- e) I regained my strength and I started playing again.

Prepositions of Time and Space - Revision

Look at the following passages:

- A. Leave your books on the table at the centre of the room. Then go to the room beside the staircase. Wait there until I come
- B. There is not enough space between the desk and the bench. Arrange them properly, before the classes commence.
- C. Behind the cupboard, very near the wall, there is a narrow gap, into which a few charts have been kept. Unroll them and hang them on the walls of the room. This is the work assigned to you for today.

The words underlined are prepositions.

Activity :

Choose the right preposition and fill in the blanks:

1. The work will be over -----(by, on) this evening.
2. The papers are to be prepared ----- (by, within) a month.
3. My uncle will visit me ----- (at, in) May.
4. The cat hid ----- (behind, under) the door.
5. Ravi stayed with his uncle ----- (for, by) six months.

Listening Skill :

The teacher will read the passage twice. Pay attention to the reading of the passage and answer the questions given below:

In 1989, the United Nations declared that all children of the world any race, religion or colour, whether rich or poor, healthy or ill, boy or girl, have certain basic rights that assure them a life of dignity. This declaration is called the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child.

Our government passed the Right to Education Act in April 2010. This means that all children between the ages of six and fourteen will be provided with free education. If someone is denied this right they can take the government to court. Earlier, in 2006, the government had banned the hiring of children as workforce in hotels and tea shops.

If you come across any wrongful situation, you too can take an adult's help to get your voice heard or file a petition. Call 1090/1091 and get in touch with the police for any help in crimes against children. Do not be afraid to report a crime that you witness or experience. Your identity will not be disclosed.

Questions :

1. Children of all nations will be assured of a life of dignity if they have _____
(a) rich food (b) basic rights (c) many friends (d) freedom
2. Children in India, between the age of _____, will be provided education.
(a) three and sixteen (b) six and eighteen
(c) six and fourteen (d) four and fifteen
3. The Government has banned the hiring of _____ in hotels and tea shops.
(a) old people (b) young people (c) teenagers (d) children
4. The _____ Government passed the Right to Education Act in April 2010.
(a) British (b) Indian (c) UNO (d) USA
5. Call 1090/1091 for help in _____ .
(a) curbing acts of robbery in your area (b) situations of emergency
(c) crimes against children (d) transporting victims of accident to hospital

Model Passage:

Jasmina's Story

Almost seven days a week, 8 year old Jasmina has to get up before dawn to fetch water for the household where she has been working as a maid for over a year now. That is the start of her working day. She will work, do the washing, sweeping and anything else required until about 11 o'clock at night when she lies down on the hard bathroom floor to sleep.

She is tired most of the time but her employers beat her if she is not working hard enough or if she makes a mistake. "They want their shoes polished. If I don't do it fast enough, they hit me with a cooking spoon." After her father died, Jasmina and sister were sent to West Bengal to work as maids for a salary of 100 rupees a month.

This is how the KWL organiser is formed:

What I K now	What I W ant to know	What I have L earnt
E.g. Maids have to fetch water and do the washing; they sweep; they polish the shoes	All the work she has to do every day	* She has no father
		* She is beaten badly
		* She is paid only Rs.100 a month
		* She works in a place away from her home town

Here are two more passages. Form KWL organisers for these passages.

Lakshmi's Story

I am nine years old and I work as a beedi roller. I live in Tamil Nadu. I have a sister. My sister is ten years old. She is a bonded labourer. Every morning at seven o'clock she goes to her master's house and she does not come home until nine o'clock at night. He treats her badly. He hits her if he thinks she is working too slowly or if she is talking to any of the other children; he yells at her if she is sick and cannot go to work. I don't care about school or playing or that I have to work. All I want is to free my sister from this man. I could do that for 600 rupees but I do not have 600 rupees.

Yeramma's Story

I am eleven years old now. I used to go to a government school but I had to discontinue my studies, as my sister fell ill. We took her to hospital but the doctor said we had to pay more money. My parents made me a bonded labourer for 1700 rupees. I was about seven then. I worked unwinding the silk cocoons. I didn't like it but my parents made me work. They said I couldn't go to school; I had to work.

At work I had to get up at 4 o'clock in the morning. I was allowed to go home, only once a week. The rest of the time I lived at the factory. I slept with three other children in the factory between two machines. The owner provided us with rice, but we had to pay for it and cook it ourselves. We worked twelve hours a day with one hour's rest. If I made a mistake, I would be beaten. Girls had to undertake domestic work, besides working in the factory.

Writing Skill :

Using the points noted under the column 'What I have learnt' write a paragraph on how you could help such children overcome their difficulties. Translate Jasmina's story into your mother tongue into the world of idioms

- | | | |
|---------------------|---|---|
| 1. child's play | - | a simple task for anyone who has the gift or experience to accomplish it |
| 2. a brain child | - | one's original ideas |
| 3. child-like | - | having the innocent and frank qualities of a child |
| 4. second childhood | - | old age |
| 5. a dropout | - | a student who leaves school / college / university without finishing his / her course |

Speaking Skill :

Listen to the following narration and answer orally the questions that follow:

Every Sunday I go to the orphanage and spend some time with the children there. During one such visit, I saw a nine year old boy sitting alone and crying silently. I asked him why he was crying. He would not answer. I sat down beside him, and consoled him as best as I could. Gradually, he stopped crying and told me that he had run away from a tea-stall, because of the harsh treatment he had to face there. I shared with him the snacks I had brought and cheered him up with kind words. I assured him that I would visit him every weekend.

Where do you think this child should have been - in the shop or in school?

Which would have helped him?

Share your opinion of this passage with the class.

Form three groups. Choose any one topic for each group and hold a discussion on it. The leader of each group should present the prepared write-up to the other two groups.

- ⇒ Where would you draw the line between work that is acceptable for children, and work that could be called child labour?
- ⇒ If you could do three things to help child labourers, what would they be?
Imagine that you are able to talk to the owner of a factory that uses child labour.
- ⇒ What questions would you ask and what would you say to the owner?

Activity :

Are you interested in making simple crafts? Let us try one now. Form groups of four members. Each group will do the following :

- ✦ Take a dry leaf, a sheet of paper, bottle ink and a brush.
 - ✦ Place the leaf on a plain surface.
 - ✦ Using a brush, evenly apply ink on the bottom surface of the leaf.
 - ✦ Leave it for a minute.
 - ✦ Now place the ink-applied surface of the leaf on a sheet of paper and press it lightly for a minute.
 - ✦ Carefully remove the leaf from the sheet.
 - ✦ You will find a trace of the leaf on the paper.
 - ✦ Leave it to dry.
 - ✦ You can use the trace to make greeting cards, pictures, stickers, or any art work of your choice.
- ⇒ Now sit in groups and write a paragraph on how you created the imprint. Use passive voice in your description. To make it more interesting, each group can make an imprint of a different object and present a write-up to the other groups.
 - ⇒ Describe how you would decorate your house for a birthday party.
 - ⇒ Write how you would pack your bag for a holiday trip.

Telephonic etiquettes

There are some etiquettes of speech that you should follow while speaking over the phone.

If you are the caller

State your number and ask for the person you wish to speak to

Be brief

Speak fluently and accurately
Finish the call with a 'Thank you.'

If you are answering a call
Give your name and phone number Speak politely
Do not be too loud or hasty

If the message is to be conveyed to someone else, note it down and assure the caller that it would be conveyed at the earliest

Making / Receiving wrong calls

If you make a wrong call, apologise to the person politely
If you receive a wrong call, explain without irritation that you are not the person the speaker expects to contact; don't slam down the phone

UNIT 5

THE CRY OF THE CHILDREN

POEM

“For oh,” say the children, “we are weary,
And we cannot run or leap.
From your pleasures fair and fine!
If we cared for any meadows, it were merely
To drop down in them and sleep.
Our knees tremble sorely in the stooping ---
We fall upon our faces, trying to go;
And, underneath our heavy eyelids drooping,
The reddest flower would look as pale as snow.
For, all day, we drag our burden tiring,
Through the coal-dark, underground ---
Or, all day, we drive the wheels of iron
In the factories, round and round.

For, all day, the wheels are droning, turning, ---
Their wind comes in our faces, ---
Till our hearts turn, --- our head, with pulses burning,
And the walls turn in their places ---
Turns the sky in the high window blank and reeling -- Turns the long light that droppeth down the wall ---
Turn the black flies that crawl along the ceiling ---
All are turning, all the day, and we with all, ---
And, all day, the iron wheels are droning;
And sometimes we could pray,
'O ye wheels' (breaking out in a mad moaning)
'Stop! be silent for to-day!'

- Elizabeth Barrett Browning

Glossary:

stooping	–	bending forward
drooping	–	closing due to tiredness
droning	–	making a continuous low sound
moaning	–	expressing pain or regret

Answer the following questions:

- (1) What does the poet want the children to do?
- (2) What do the children do all the day?
- (3) Why do they have drooping eye-lids?
- (4) What do they want to do if they see any meadow?
- (5) Whose sound is referred to as 'mad moaning'- the children's or the machines?
- (6) What do they cry for?
- (7) *'Underneath our heavy eye-lids drooping.
The reddest flower would look as pale as snow.'*
Why would the flowers look pale? To what is the poet comparing the flowers , in these lines?
- (8) 'We fall upon our faces, trying to go'
What is the condition of the children expressed through this line?
- (9) 'The reddest flower would look as pale as snow'
What is the figure of speech employed in this line?
- (10) *'O ye wheels' (breaking out in a mad moaning)
'Stop! be silent for to-day!'*

The figure of speech used here is: _____
(a) simile (b) metaphor (c) personification
- (11) Memorise the first nine lines of the poem.

A CLOSE ENCOUNTER

- Rex Coker

There are geniuses and tinkerers that live everywhere in small towns all over the world. My brother was a tinkerer and spent much of his time coming up with new inventions that would keep him from having to overexert himself during the summer months when school was out. Having too much time on his hands, he would let his mind wander as he would sit down and apply his ideas to paper skillfully blueprinting his invention so he could try it out.

The old Schwinn bike with the heavy balloon type tires sat upside down for weeks as he attached different things to the gear system of the bike.

A DC electric motor he bought from a local pawn shop for twenty bucks and the old battery out of dad's old Chevy were fast coming together.

The motor was mounted on the main frame just below the bike's seat. The battery was strapped down on the rack over the back tire and fender.

Two cables were run along the frame to a switch mounted on the cross bar between the handle bars and seat. In the place of a sprocket which drove the chain was now a pulley with the fan belt off, of an old Yazoo lawn mower.

A pulley mounted to the steering housing, with a spring to keep tension on the belt, made the bike look like something out of a science fiction novel.

The day of the test run behind our house had us boys laughing with excitement. My brother had placed the bike on a center block to raise the back tire off the ground. He hooked up the battery terminals and switched the motor on. It stirred to life and the back tire began to sing a high pitched sound.

It was so cool to see his invention work, but the real test was about to be the most fun part of my summer and one that I will never forget.

My brother saddled up on his beast of an invention, put his bike helmet on along with his leather gloves. He threw his leg over the contraption and held his thumb up for contact just like in those old war movies where the guy on the ground spins the propeller of the plane. I gave him the thumbs up also and he pushed off to get the bike up to speed before throwing the switch.

'We have lifted off', I yelled! My brother put his hand down and threw the switch. The beast came to life and the bike hurried off into the distance. I tried to keep up with him, but the bike was much too fast. Standing there out of breath with my hands on my knees, I could see my brother was having a little trouble turning the bike around. He turned it sharply around the corner and disappeared around the block. When he reappeared minutes later he was headed straight for me at a high rate of speed. Tired as I was I had to run for my life to keep ahead of the invention. Darting through the double gate of the back yard I managed to escape under the clothes line to the back fence.

My brother was not so lucky. Even though he had switched the motor off, his speed was too fast to stop and the clothes line caught him under his chin and cut him a flip off of the bike. I thought he was dead and I raced over to help him. I turned him over and he grabbed me and we began to fight. He cursed at me and asked me why I did not help him stop. I told him he should have let me ride it first. I am much shorter than he was and maybe even smarter. "OH YEAH," he said.

"Why do you think that?" he said, "Well if you were smarter than me you would have bailed off before the clothes line." We started to laugh and we looked in the direction of his invention.

Glossary:

tinkerers	– persons who travel from place to place selling or repairing things
Schwinn bike	– a bicycle manufactured in the U.S.A.
fender	– mud guard
sprocket	– one of the teeth on the wheel of a bicycle contraption	– device
flip	– quick or light blow bailed off	– escaped
warped	– bent, distorted

The tires were warped and the battery had come loose and flew into the neighbor's back yard. My brother looked at me and made this statement. "Well, look at it this way. At least we had some quality time together today."

Answer the following questions :

1. How would the brother's inventions help him?
2. What aided brother's attempts at inventions?
3. How was the bike constructed?
4. Explain 'thumbs up'.
5. What was the danger that befell the other brother? How did he manage to escape from the bike racing towards him?
6. What happened to the rider on the bike?

Answer in a paragraph :

How did the encounter bring the brothers closer to each other?

FLYING WITH THE MOON ON THEIR WINGS

Pre - reading Activity

Have you seen birds flying in groups high in the sky?
Where do you think they are going?

Talk about what you have noticed:

- a) the way they fly
- b) their direction
- c) the time of the year when you see them
- d) the sounds they make if any

Bird Migration is the regular seasonal journey undertaken by many species of birds. At a particular season thousands of birds travel from one place to another.

One of the greatest mysteries of bird life is migration or travelling. Every year, during autumn and early winter, birds travel from their breeding haunts in the northern regions of Asia, Europe and America to the southern, warmer lands. They make the return journey again during spring and early summer. They are very punctual too, unless they are delayed by the weather. We may calculate almost to a day when we may expect our bird friends to return, carrying winter on their backs.

Some species also move out of one area into another, not very far away. All birds have a certain amount of local movements, caused by the stresses of living and the variations in food supply. This kind of movement is particularly noticeable in North India where the seasons are well defined.

Birds which spend the summer in the higher reaches of mountains come down during the winter to the lower foothills or even the plains. This type is very common within India where the mighty Himalayas lie close to the Indo-Gangetic plain.

species	: groups with biological likeness
breeding haunts	: nesting places
stresses	: difficult conditions, hardships variation	: degree of change
well defined	: clearly marked higher reaches	: on top of the mountains

1. What do birds do every year during autumn and early winter?

2. What could be the meaning of the phrase "carrying winter on their back"?

The brave little voyagers face many dangers and hardships, while travelling long, long distances through the air over hill, forest and plain and over large stretches of water. Sometimes sudden storms arise and drive them far out of their course. Often they are blown right out to sea and they drown in the wild waves. Some times at night bright lights attract and confuse the birds.

voyagers : travellers seldom : not often, rarely

Migrating birds do not fly at their fastest. The migration speed is usually from 48 to 64 km an hour and rarely exceeds 80 km per hour. Small birds seldom exceed 48 km per hour, most shore birds fly between 64 and 80 km per hour, while many ducks travel at 80 to 96 km per hour. Migrants generally fly at a distance under 900 meters, but some travellers have been found sometimes at greater heights.

1. Who are the brave little voyagers?
2. Can you think of any other danger the birds face, during their migration?

Some birds make the long journey in easy stages, stopping to rest on the way. Others fly great distances without pausing to rest and feed. Some fly by day, some both by day and by night, but most of them speed on their way through darkness after the sun has set.

Birds usually travel in flocks. The 'V' shaped formation of cranes and geese attracts much attention as the birds speed across the sky. Swallows, flycatchers, warblers, shorebirds and fluttering : moving lightly and quickly twittering : chirping

water birds begin to gather in flocks, each with its own kind and after a great deal of excited fluttering, twittering and calling, they rise up into the air and away they go.

1. Describe the manner in which birds make their long journey.
2. Have you ever noticed the 'V' shaped formation of birds as they speed across the sky?
3. Can you suggest some reasons as to why birds travel in flocks?

Birds were seen moving from one place to another with the change in seasons from the earliest times, but people had strange ideas as to why the birds travelled or where they went. To explain their absence from a place in a particular season, they said that the birds buried themselves in the mud and slept there throughout the winter.

Later, detailed studies of migration started. Information was gained by directly observing the habits of birds, and also by ringing. Bird movements are also studied by creating artificial conditions and studying their effects on birds.

Today, most of the information on migration has come from ringing young and adult birds. Ringing is done by capturing a bird and placing on its leg a light band of metal or plastic. The band bears a number, date, identification mark and the address to which the finder is requested to return the ring. The bird is then set free. The place where such a bird is shot, captured or found dead, gives a clue to the direction and locality to which the bird has migrated.

What had people who lived long ago
thought about the movement of birds in relation to seasons?

identification mark : mark showing who or what somebody or something is

Ringing has proved that birds cover large distances. There is some evidence to believe that the woodcock on its winter movements flies from the Himalayas to the Nilgiris without a pause, a distance of 2,400km. The wild duck comes to our lakes from Central Asia and Siberia flying 3,200 to 4,800 km over the Himalayas. The rosy pastor comes from Eastern Europe or Central Asia. The wagtail, about the size of a sparrow, comes from the Himalayan regions and Central Asia to the plains. Smallest of all, the willow warbler, half the size of a sparrow, covers as many as 3,200 km to reach us every winter!

How far away are the Himalayas from the Nilgiris?
What are the birds that come to our lakes from Central Asia and Siberia?
Which is the smallest of all birds?

Did you know?
Butterflies too migrate!

Why do birds migrate in spite of heavy loss of life on the way? Primarily to escape the bitter cold and a restricted food supply. In the case of water birds, the food supply disappears altogether, when the water freezes and the restricted – limited nesting sites – places made or chosen by a bird for its eggs

fish and other seafood are difficult to obtain. The main reason for the spring movement is the availability of nesting sites and the need to escape summer heat.

1. Birds migrate in winter to escape the cold and to find food.
2. They migrate in summer to escape the heat and _____.

The migration of birds is a fascinating study indeed, and there are many unsolved problems which lie ahead. For example, how do the birds know when to start? How do they know their way over the sea without any landmarks? How do they manage to return year after year to the same locality? How do the young cuckoos join the adult birds without previous experience, and without any guidance from adult cuckoos which fly to India and Africa several weeks before the young cuckoos are ready to leave their foster parents?

fascinating – very interesting landmarks – objects clearly seen from a distance and helpful in finding the way to a place foster parents – those who take parental care of the little ones

These and many more such interesting questions lie ahead of you to solve!

Can you think of anymore unsolved 'how' and 'why' problems regarding migration?

Answer the following questions :

1. In what way is migration one of the greatest mysteries of bird life?
2. The migration of birds faces two main dangers. What are they?
3. Identify the reasons why birds migrate .
4. What is meant by local movement?
5. Do all birds travel non-stop when they make long journeys? What do some birds do?

6. Describe how ringing is done.
7. There are many unsolved problems in the study of bird migration. What are they?
8. What is the distance covered by the smallest bird every winter?

Answer in a paragraph :

1. How would our research on migration benefit the birds?
2. Describe briefly how birds migrate.

Complete the following sentences by choosing the best alternative under each.

Think carefully before you make your choice.

1. Birds migrate _____ .
 a) regularly and seasonally b) three times a year
 c) only when in danger d) when the surroundings get polluted
2. Birds migrate from the southern regions to the northern ones during _____.
 a) autumn b) early winter
 c) spring and early summer d) autumn and early winter
3. Migrating birds fly _____.
 a) in pairs b) in threes c) single d) in groups
4. Migrating birds are _____ while travelling.
 a) protected b) free of danger c) in danger d) spared
5. In early times, people believed that _____.
 a) most birds died in winter
 b) birds flew away to warmer places
 c) birds moved from place to place when seasons changed
 d) birds slept in the mud throughout the winter

Till recently there was little knowledge about the route of those birds which spend the winter in India. What surprised all bird watchers was that these birds followed routes which had no..... at all. It seemed reasonable to conclude that when a of birds which was seen.....in Siberia, disappeared from there and some weeks later in various parts of India, it was probably the same flock. There was enough to show that flocks of birds crossed over the in the Himalayas. But this could not be proved. There were also hundreds of related problems that remained How did they choose the route? Did they fly over high mountain, or did they just cross over the passes? The only way to find the answer is by mass of birds. This means that a bird is and a small aluminum band is fixed round its leg before it is set Any one who finds the ringed bird, dead or alive; is asked to report to the address on the ring. Information collected in this way gives a picture of the migratory..... of that species of birds.

Grammar :

SENTENCE PATTERN-REVISION

This is to help you recall what you have already learnt.

A group of words that makes complete sense is called a 'SENTENCE'.

Sentences are formed with the following:

1) Subject(S)

The person who does the action in the sentence is the subject of the sentence.

e.g: Ram studies well.

Priya is my sister.

2) Verb(V)

The word that indicates an action done by the subject or expresses a state of being or shows possession, is called the verb.

e.g: She went home.

Kannan is a doctor.

I have a sister.

3) Subject Complement(C)

The word or phrase which completes the meaning is called a complement.

e.g: Solomon was wise.

He became the leader.

4) Object(O)

The word which receives the action from the subject is the object of the sentence.

e.g: He wrote a novel.

He ate fruits.

We applauded the leader.

5) Direct Object(DO) and Indirect Object(IO):

Read the following sentence:

My uncle gave me a present.

This sentence has two objects 'me' and 'a present'.

My uncle gave a present (DO). (What did my uncle give?)

My uncle gave me(IO) a present. (To whom did my uncle give a present?)

The second sentence is incomplete in meaning without the direct object.

6) Object Complement:

They elected him leader.

Experience made him wiser.

7) Adjunct (A)

An adjunct is a word or group of words which provides answers to the questions: 'How', 'When' or 'Where'.

e.g.: They came by bus.

She went to Chennai.

I shall meet you tomorrow.

You speak English well.

Look at the following patterns :

S + V	-	Raju	woke up .
		S	V
S + V + O	-	He	wore	his new uniform .
		S	V	O
S + V + IO + DO	-	His father	gave	him	his school bag .
		S	V	IO	DO
S + V + C	-	He	was	excited .
		S	V	C
S + V + O + C	-	Reading	made	him	a complete man .
		S	V	O	C
S + V + A	-	He	was going	to school .
		S	V	A

Activity :

Identify the sentence patterns in the following passages:

Passage 1: Mr. Raj is a teacher. He is my friend. I wrote him a letter. He invited me to Sriperumbudur last week. I visited the temple at Sriperumbudur. We travelled in his car. His car is painted green. We both enjoyed the trip.

Passage 2: Dr. Nanjappa is a dentist. He treats his patients at his clinic. He shows kindness to his patients. He has dedicated his life for their welfare. He works cheerfully throughout the day. Never is he tired! He loves his profession. All his patients adore him.

Listening skill :

The teacher will read the passage to you at normal speed . Listen to the passage and fill in the blanks in the sentences below. The teacher will read the passage again. Check and make corrections if necessary.

Many bird species migrate to take advantage of global differences of seasonal temperatures, therefore optimizing availability of food sources and breeding habitat. These migrations vary among the groups. Many land birds, shore birds and water birds undertake long distance migration annually, usually triggered by the length of the daylight as well as weather conditions. These birds are characterized by a breeding season in the tropical regions or opposite hemisphere. Before migration, birds substantially increase body fat and reserve and reduce the size of some of their organs. Migration is highly demanding energetically, particularly as birds need to cross deserts and oceans without refuelling.

- 1) Various species of ----- migrate.
- 2) They migrate for climatic changes, availability of----- sources and ----- habitat.
- 3) Migrating birds prepare for flight by increasing -----, reducing or reserving the-----of some of their organs.
- 4) Birds cross -----and -----without food.
- 5) Therefore migration is a ----- demanding process.

Road map:

Study the road map given below. Then answer the questions that follow:

The students of Govt. Higher Secondary School are visiting the exhibition on India's Heritage on 6th lane. The students are walking down at 12.30 in the afternoon on a hot day.

1. Suggest the shortest route they need to take to reach the place without being too long in the sun. Begin with :

"Proceed along V.K. Salai till you reach _____"

2. What are the different routes you could take to reach the exhibition if you set out from the Government Higher Secondary School on a day when the weather is fine ?

Speaking skill :

Imagine yourself as having been selected as a member of a student exchange programme. This involves your staying in a foreign country for three months and living as a student of the school that you are visiting. It would mean living away from home and having to adjust with a different culture in every way. Would you accept this offer? Tell the class what you have decided to do and why .

Project :

I am sure you have seen many birds in the garden, zoo or in their natural habitats.

List out their names, those of their young ones and the cries they make. Invite responses from your classmates regarding the various types of birds they would have come across. Interview your elders in school and at home to collect data. You could also seek information from a library or from the Internet.

UNIT 6

MIGRANT BIRD

POEM

The globe's my world. The cloud's my kin
I care not where the skies begin;
I spread my wings through all the din;
Through fears and fright I fly my flight.
No walls for me, no vigil gates,
No flags, no machine guns that blast
Citizens of those border states-
Brothers of her brother's sons.
No maps, no boundaries to block
My sojourn into unknown lands.
I spawn and splash in distant spills,
I breed my brood where'r I will.
I won't look down. No I will not.
With speed of wings I hasten past
And close my eyes against the sun
To dream my dreams and make them last.

- Famida Y. Basheer

“காற்றுக்கு வேலியில்லை, பறவைக்கு எல்லையில்லை, மனிதா உன் மனதை மட்டும் ஏன் விலங்கிட்டு வைத்திருக்கிறாய்!”

THE SUMMER FLIGHT

Kumar stood staring out through the window of a very comfortable, fully furnished apartment in New York.

It was his flat. He had earned it as a highly intelligent and enterprising young man in his late twenties. . But Kumar could feel an emptiness in his heart. The blaring horn in the distance, the noisy movement of a truck....

Kumar's thoughts drifted to another place with its continuous honking of water tankers; a babble of voices; men and women jostling their way towards the tanker, racing after it, unsure of where it would stop.

A narrow congested street; two flight of stairs upwards and a cramped flat with inadequate water supply; no study room and the door always ajar with his family members walking in and out frequently. Grandpa on his armchair watching the TV and the open door way; grandma ever serving coffee, pakodas, dosas, snacks etc; Dad with a serious face striding to work; Kumar's brother and sister busy with their school activities and Mother – oh – that soft, sweet creature, ever loving and caring, attending endlessly to all members of the family, cooking, cleaning and running errands. 'Oh, Ma! How I miss you', thought Kumar.

Pensively he recalled his preparations for his trip to the United States. His outstanding performance at college had gained him a wonderful career at an MNC. Very soon he was deputed on an assignment to the States and was assured of a promising career there. But oh, the migration from India to the States! What a lot of effort had to go into it! How much scheming and cajoling to convince Mother! Dad had squeezed out funds from every possible source.

Brother and Sister had to sacrifice so many necessities just so he could realise his dream. Tear stricken faces had bid him farewell at the airport; but the vivacious

Kumar had no time to consider this. His mind was set upon a glorious career in his dream country- the States. He obtained a green card, fulfilling the preliminary requirement for gaining citizenship in his Utopia – America.

A full purse and a lavish lifestyle were now his to enjoy in this new country. Initially he would speak to his mother over the phone for half-an-hour, pacifying her, all the time waiting impatiently for her sobs to subside.

Gradually he drifted away from her, carried away by the pleasure which his work and lifestyle bestowed on him. Besides, his calls made his mother sit up until midnight, waiting anxiously. Inevitably after the call, he lost his cheer, as she constantly pleaded with him urging him to return. This made him speak to her less and less. It started as once a week, then once a month, the calls grew rarer.

A wave of guilt, remorse and longing swept over him as the images of his mother sitting by the telephone zoomed in on his thoughts.

With a shudder he once again turned to the window. The sky was dotted with birds flying in a streamlined 'V'! They seemed to be hurrying, every one of them in one mind, as if they had an important goal to pursue. It was that time of the year when the migratory birds returned to their homes after a five- month warm sojourn. He remembered his childhood picnic with his parents to Vedanthangal, where he had seen flocks of birds nestled among the trees.

Dad had hired a telescope to give him a closer view of the nest, where he saw tiny little nestlings-five of them! Dad had then told him that even though these families resided here, they would soon go back to their homes far in the cold regions of the planet. His father's words rang clear in his ears. "You see Kumar, though they have stayed here for almost half a year and enjoyed our climate and the food available, they know that their home is in the Arctic. And there's no place like home, is there?"

Kumar gazed at the flock flying back home from where they had come and slowly his vision blurred as tears filled his eyes. 'Home is where the heart is' Kumar thought, watching the birds till they were just specks on the distant horizon.

Kumar left the room with a sure stride and a strong determination writ large on his countenance.

Glossary :

enterprising	-	courageous, willing to involve oneself in undertaking a difficult project

Answer the following questions:

1. You get a seat in a school away from your hometown. You have to stay at the hostel there. How would you react to the situation?
2. Adapting from one life-style to another is not very easy. How did Kumar manage to achieve this?
3. What could have caused the empty feeling in Kumar's heart?
4. In what way was Kumar's household warm and compassionate?
5. List out the preparations made for Kumar's sojourn into his dream country.
6. How did Kumar distance himself away from his mother ?
7. Why did the birds need to return to their Arctic homes?

8. What would have been Kumar's decision? What is the reason for your answer?
9. Nature can alter one's attitude towards life. Do you agree? Why?

Answer in a paragraph :

1. How did Kumar's attitude towards his family members change after he reached the States?
2. What were the thoughts evoked in Kumar on watching the flight of birds?
3. What lesson had Kumar learnt from the birds?

Re arrange the jumbled sentences in the correct order:

1. Kumar enjoyed his life in the States.
2. He had learnt something from the flock of birds flying homeward.
3. With great difficulty, Kumar's family managed to send him to the States.

 priceless work of art heritage buildings

The Brihadeesvarar Temple or The Big Temple as it is commonly called by the natives of Tanjore, is an architectural marvel of immense glory, that has astounded the world with its stupendous proportions and grandeur. Built in the year 1010 by King Raja Raja Chola, this monument of World Heritage has, for a thousand years, stood as a symbol of the flourishing sculptural expertise and rich culture of ancient India.

Tanjore, 'the Granary of Tamilnadu' is also the home of Carnatic music, dance and traditional handicrafts. Thanjavur was the ancient capital of the Chola kings, and the stylized bronze work for which the Chola period was famous, is still produced in this town.

1. How old is the Brihadeesvarar Temple? Who built it?
2. List out the specialities of Tanjore.

Having overloaded myself with this and more information on Tanjore, I reached the palace in search of all the glory of the old Chola capital. The 16th century palace complex was built by the Nayaks and later renovated by the Marathas. Situated close to the old bus stand, the first of the museums I visited here was the Royal Museum. "Is this the might and valour of the Cholas I heard of? What am I seeing here?" I wondered; a scantily lit room with drums, urns, perfume bottles, wooden boxes, manuscripts, gifts, jewellery, weapons and other belongings of the Marathas.

1. Who built the palace? By whom was it renovated?
2. What did the author see at the Royal Museum?

renovated	- repaired into good condition
valour	- bravery
scantily	- insufficiently

A painting of a Maratha King welcomes you to the Durbar Hall. On the rear side of the painting an array of Pallava and Chola statues throws light on the craftsmanship of their era. The Art Gallery at the palace has an impressive line-up of granite and bronze monolithic statues, with details of excavation and century of origin clearly displayed: the gods, goddesses and other statues take you to a different era. The magnificent monolithic statues evince energy and life; the aura in their eyes beam a story of fine craftsmanship and effort. Vishnu, Ganesha or Nataraja look exactly the same as they look in today's images and statues. I also did notice a Buddha statue from the Pallava era here.

monolithic - massive, monumental

1. What were the Pallava and the Chola eras famous for ?
2. Describe the statues of the Gods and Goddesses displayed at the gallery.

From the palace, I moved to the Brihadeeswara Temple. The structure of the temple looks majestic. The temple occupies an area measuring about 750 feet by 400 feet, in a fort surrounded by a moat. It is a marvel of engineering, considering the technology of those ancient times. The towering vimanam is built up with stones with bonding and notching, without the use of mortar. The topmost stone, weighing about 80 tons, is still a matter of discussion for engineers who are baffled as to how the builders lifted it to that height without the help of modern contrivances. A charming tale is told about a ramp being built from a village – Sarapallam- four miles away, from where the giant stone was pulled up by elephants. The details of the stone work of this imposing vimanam are representative of the masterly craftsmanship of South Indian artisans. The shilpi(sculptor) and the sthapati(architect) came together to create their fanciful abode for Shiva. Naturally, the shape had to echo the divine Mount Kailash. In its perfect geometry and distinct clarity of lines, this tower is unbeatable.

1. What is the speciality of the vimanam?
2. What aspect of the temple baffles engineers till this day?
3. Why does the abode echo Mount Kailash?
4. In what way is the tower unbeatable?

The shrine for Lord Muruga is an integral part of the temple. It is a beautiful, elaborately carved stone

moat	- a deep wide ditch filled with water, dug round a castle as a defence
notching	- cutting
contrivances	- machines
vimanam	- the top of the seat of the deity structure, a designer's delight. To copy the unrepeated designs on each of the short pillars of this shrine would take an artist weeks if not months. One can just imagine how long the stone chiseller would have taken to complete each piece.

Why would it take a long time to copy the designs?

I stood in awe, astonishment and reverence when I saw a walled fortress inside - a standing testimony of the Cholas' opulence and vision. The enormity of the deities reflect the staunch reverence of the King to Lord Shiva. Rajaraja, his sister and queens donated their possessions of gold and silver to this temple. The gold the king donated came from his treasury.

1. What stands testimony to the Cholas' opulence?
2. How is the king's reverence to the Lord revealed?
3. What are the things that reflect the generous attitude of the Chola King and his family?

reverence - a feeling of great respect opulence - lavishness, richness staunch - steadfast

The intricate carvings on the pillars and the inscriptions on the walls make the temple a delight for a historian's senses. The script used in the inscriptions resemble Tamil, Thai or some of the South East Asian languages. The huge (8.7m height) Shiva Linga in the Sanctum Sanctorum and Nandhi Statue reflect the munificence of the Cholas. The pillared cloisters beside the main structure have a series of deities and Shiva lingas, worthy to be admired. The murals narrate the story of Shiva's might.

intricate - fine, delicate Sanctum Sanctorum - the main place in which the idol for worship is positioned munificence - generosity cloisters - covered passages

Among the things visible are the interlocks of the granite stones. The rocks so perfectly fitted into one another at a height of 10 metres seems to share a harmonious bonding, unnerved by the rains, winds and heat. Very well maintained, this structure will leave you with thoughts like, 'Was it actually built in the 11th century?'

Unlike many temples, here the 58m tall and 13-storeyed Vimanam makes the Gopuram. The inscriptions of the Vimanam talk about Raja Raja Chola's gifts to the temple. In its magnanimous idea, its grandiose vision, its display magnanimous - splendid grandiose - impressive

of the herculean effort in construction, its portrayal of their glorious past of the Chola regime and their patronage for arts and culture, this temple stands as testimony for all and ever.

herculean	- mighty
patronage	- support

1. What evokes wonder in the onlookers?
2. What is written on the Vimanam?
3. What were the contributions of the Cholas towards art and culture?

One can spend a whole day in the Big Temple, and still want to come back to marvel at every detail of its beauty. Many kings had built temples to Shiva on the banks of the Kaveri. Many saints have sung in praise of these deities. But there is only one temple to Brihadeesvara , and it stands tall, a thousand years after a devotee-king climbed a ladder with a copper pot (kalasam) anointed with holy water from all the sacred rivers, to dedicate it to history. Our history!

Who consecrated the temple? How?

Reflecting on the text :

- 1) Are we, of modern India, still capable of such creative and artistic skill?
- 2) How necessary is it to preserve these monuments of our culture? Why?
- 3) What could be the reason for any structure lasting a thousand years: the strength of the construction or people's attitude of reverence to what it symbolises or could there be any other reason? Discuss.

Answer in a paragraph :

- 1) What makes the Brihadeesvarar temple unique and outstanding?
- 2) What were the contributions of the Cholas to art and culture?

Father : No, my child, I too haven't been to Agra but perhaps we could try to visit Agra in the summer holidays, couldn't we?

Child : Ah! Yes Father, let's do it.

Father : You know, it will cost quite a lot to make that trip. You would have to help me. You will, won't you?

Child : How can I help you with money Father? I am not earning any!

Father : You don't have to earn money! Just don't cause unnecessary expenses. Cut down on your chocolates , your regular new clothes, your talk-time on the phone and of course, your eating in hotels! We will then have enough money for our trip. Don't you think so?

Child : Now that's going to be very difficult for me! But I'll try. I promise you!

You visit a famous historical monument with your friend. You see some children and adults scribbling on the walls of the monument, carving their name, their city and their signature. Your friend ignores their act. Point out to your friend the need to prevent people from spoiling such symbols of pride and glory. Also offer advice to those people who mar the beauty of the monument with their reckless act.

Organising a seminar :

Topic: Is our cultural heritage under threat?

How is a seminar conducted?

Note : A seminar consists of the following participants : A Chairperson, A Coordinator, four or five speakers

The Chairperson inaugurates the seminar, speaks on the need for the discussion and initiates the seminar. The Coordinator renders the welcome address, introduces the speakers and records the speeches.

Each speaker focuses on a particular aspect of the topic:

e.g.

1. Importance of a country's heritage
 2. The need to protect and preserve the heritage in a changing world
 3. National Heritage-Important sites
 4. Tourists' attitude towards our national heritage
 5. How students could contribute towards the preservation of our cultural heritage
- The speakers present their papers. The co-ordinator sums up the points. After discussion the co-ordinator proposes the vote of thanks.

Follow the guidelines and organise the seminar.

E. Project :

A project is a self learning activity where you gather knowledge on your own without depending on the teacher.

Steps involved in preparing a project:

1. Go to the library and consult an encyclopedia or other reference books and gather matter on the topic you have chosen. You could also browse the Internet and gather information.
2. Prepare notes on what you would like to include in your presentation.
3. Structure the points into paragraphs with suitable headings and sub headings.
4. Include pictures wherever required or is necessary.
5. State the sources from where you have collected the information.
6. Present the report in the form of a booklet.

Activity :

- a) Using these guidelines and the passage given below, prepare and present a project on World Heritage Sites.

Our heritage tells us many things about where we come from. In fact, the spirit of any nation is founded upon its historic heritage, and if this knowledge becomes shaky, the nation loses much of the important factors for existence itself. This is not to say that one must accept everything in one's heritage as sacred and inviolable, but that one must know it in order to learn from it and keep the best practices going while changing what one thinks is not right.

More than forty Indian sites are now designated World Heritage Sites, including not just places like the caves of Ajanta and Ellora or the Sun Temple at Konarak but also the Mountain Railways of Darjeeling, Kalka-Shimla and the Nilgiris, as well as natural sites like the Sunderbans and the Valley of Flowers.

Despite such a wonderful heritage as ours, people generally do not have enough knowledge about it, and therefore parts of our heritage are being destroyed every day – without even being recorded for future generations. The National Mission on Monuments and Antiquities set up in 2007, has the following objectives:-

- Preparing a national register of built heritage, sites and antiquities
- Setting of state level databases of built heritage sites and antiquarian wealth for making information available to planners, researchers, etc. and for better management of such cultural resources
- Spreading awareness about the benefits of preserving the historical and cultural aspects of such resources
- Providing training in the field of conservation of built heritage and preservation and management of remains from the past

- b) 1. Write a paragraph on any of the sites declared as World Heritage Sites.
2. Write a letter to a hotel at the site, asking for reservation of accommodation for twenty students and two teachers. You intend to stay for two days and require a guide to take you to see the monuments.
3. Prepare a dialogue describing the features of the site , while discussing it with your friend.

Steady throb
Then staccato rhythm
Harmonic cacophony to oblivious ears
The tempo is fickle-
Now synchronized, now not,
A mirror of his changing moods
Now sure, now steeped in thought.

Bleary eyes,
Sinews taut yet steady.
Decades of practice
Heirlooms of rich traditions
In stark evidence
The knocking softens, fades,
To a mild judicious tap.
Virgin rock takes form
Rugged lines melt,
Sharp edges merge
Into smooth well moulded curves.

He steps back, surveys with Close scrutiny, then sharp critical glare
The days of toil,
Hammer and chisel laid aside-
Only bloodshot eyes betray Deep pride, then reverence,
Lo! God in Man's image !

1. What do the words 'throb' and 'rhythm' refer to ?
2. How can cacophony be harmonic? Explain the contrast.
3. There is variation in the tempo. Why?
4. How are the shilpi's moods connected to the tempo of his hammer?
5. What has the shilpi attained through decades of practice?
6. What are the "heirlooms of rich traditions"?
7. Why does the knocking soften to a mild tap?
8. What is the consequence of the knocking?
9. What is surveyed closely and critically?
10. Why are the tools laid aside?
11. State the emotion portrayed in the bloodshot eyes.
12. Why are the eyes bloodshot?
13. The 'created' assumes the role of the 'creator'. How?
 - i. There is alliteration in the first two lines of the poem. Write down those words which are in alliteration.
 - ii. Point out at least four more instances of alliteration, from the poem.

shilpi	– sculptor, one who carves statues from stone or any hard material
staccato	– a series of short detached sounds
cacophony	– a harsh mixture of sounds oblivious	– not aware of what is happening around fickle	– changing
bleary	– not focussing
sinews	– muscles
stark	– complete, sheer taut	– tense

Answer in a paragraph :

Attempt a description of the physical appearance of the shilpi as portrayed in the poem.

Going beyond the text :

You might have experienced many occasions when you would have tried making or creating an art or craftwork or a model for a project. Did you go through toil or turmoil to complete it? Write your experience in 100 words in a paragraph or a poem.

CAUGHT SNEEZING

- (adapted from a short story by Oscar Wilde)

Art and culture is one form of creativity. Innovatively tackling the problems of life calls for yet another form of creativity. Here is a story of how the creative thinking of a little boy helps him overcome with ingenuity and wit a threat to his life.

Hubert, a little boy of fourteen, once travelled on his horse through a lonely road, infested with thieves and robbers. Three hefty men waylaid him, took away his horse and beat him black and blue.

Poor Hubert limped his weary way across to a palatial mansion hoping to get some help. On reaching the mansion, he raised his hand to knock, when he saw the door already wide open.

As he painfully staggered inside, he was shocked to hear the voices of the thieves who had waylaid him. The thieves had tactfully diverted the attention of the inmates of the house to some huge noise outside, forcing them all to rush onto the streets to find out what was happening there. As the inmates were likely to return soon, the three thieves decided to hide inside a cupboard and wait until night to plunder the household.

For fear of being subjected to more thrashing, Hubert suppressed his cry of horror. He cleverly hid in the narrow space under the staircase. Intelligent and clever by nature, he was yearning for a chance to warn the household of the impending danger. He noticed that the family - an old couple and their visiting sons and daughters who had gathered for a family function, had just come back into the house. Little Hubert made his appearance meekly, shocking them all by his presence from within the house.

Though they initially took him for a thief, the kind old man believed his story and asked the servants to offer him food. All the while Hubert was wracking his brain trying to find a way to forewarn the unsuspecting family of the presence of the danger lurking in the cupboard.

Suddenly Hubert sprang up, offering to demonstrate a few magic tricks to the family. Hubert's first act was to create a storm in a cupboard. He beckoned the old man to toss him his snuff-box. Commanding the others to follow him in silence, lest his magic spell be broken, he tip-toed to the cupboard and climbing on the stool, he emptied the snuff box into the narrow opening along the upper edge of the door. With a few short puffs of breath, he blew the snuff into the cupboard. No sooner did he complete his task, than emerged a suppressed sneeze from inside the cupboard. "How very strange!" said the old man." "More snuff" Hubert said in a hushed voice, gently locking the cupboard. More boxes of snuff were tossed on to him and one by one all the stuff was sprayed into the cupboard. Very soon there was a perfect storm of sneezes. After emptying several boxes, the sneezing sounds were so frequent and so loud that the family realised the presence of strangers in their house. This was not a game of magic anymore. With the help of the servants, they opened the cupboard door, well prepared to tackle the thieves.

Much to their surprise, and thanks and Hubert's skilful strategy, they found that the exhausted thieves had almost fainted, very badly in need of air and ventilation. Hubert retrieved his horse from the thieves and set off on his way with the goodwill and gratitude of the old man and his family. He had proved that Wisdom did not seek only the Aged to express itself.

Answer the following questions:

1. What were the circumstances that led Hubert to the palatial mansion?
2. How did the thieves manage to hide unseen within the house?
3. What shocked Hubert when he entered the mansion?
4. Who were the inmates of the house?
5. How did the family treat Hubert?
6. For what was Hubert wracking his brain?
7. How did Hubert perform his trick ?
8. Why did a sneeze emerge from the cupboard?
