

TO THE EDITOR OF THE COURIER.

SIR,

Most people believe that the good order of Society depends on the wife conduct of the Laws. I do not Mr. Editor. The people within the circle of our acquaintance have ten times more influence on our conduct, and deportment in life, than all the Laws that have been enacted from the Days of Solomon.

What is the cause of this? It is a Question that has more influence on the Manners of Mankind, than all the Laws of Society; and when I hear a Man declare that "he does not care a farthing what the World says of him"—I either do not believe him, or I consider him as an unpardonable being, fully ripe for the operation of the Law of Severity.

When I hear people finding fault with others for "talking about talk," I feel, unceasingly, it is necessary to good order in Society, as Winds, and Storms, to produce a salutary atmosphere. We may double dolks for talking, and double them again—so much the better. This discovers the good effect it has—at first we resent the injury—but "talk talk again!" We then begin to consider whether we have really given them cause for misadventure—Reform—or mere circumspection in our behaviour, follows of consequence—but say that Folks exceed the bounds of Truth—and injure the reputation of their Neighbours—this is a temporary Evil—the Wind and Rain are sometimes oppressive, but this no argument that they are unnecessary.

Talk away my Friends!—fans intermission—Enjoy fecundity, if you please!—It is no matter, Mr. Editor, Your Friend, has always his—besides there is not the Wife of his Bottom, from whom nothing can be hid?—and She has a Dozen friends, who are equally Secret with herself.

All this Mr. Editor, tends directly to the Reformation of Manners—and surely must be the only reason why we talk so much, and so continually about each other. The observation of Poet, is still a melancholy truth,—"On Eagles Wings, immortal S. ANDRUS fly, 'White VIRTUOUS ACTIONS are but born and die'."

With another observation, of my own, I shall conclude this little Essay—and experience has confirmed its truth also.—That the Riddle of our Neighbours and Acquaintance, makes a deeper impression on our Minds than the threatened Vengeance of the Laws—or of the Fears which Education, impresses of a certain Black Gentleman, whose name, and residence, I shall forbear to intrude on the Eyes, and "Lovers tell"—of you, Mr. Editor, or your polite Readers.

I am, Sir,
Yours truly
HONESTUS.

FOR THE COURIER.

MR. EDITOR,

THE Paisley Letter of your Correspondent SCRUTATOR, has attracted my particular attention, perhaps merely from its eccentricity, which is pleasing to an odd sort of a fellow like myself, being a Philosopher, by choice, and an old Bachelor by necessity.

"The Fool is happy in his ignorance," says SCRUTATOR—yes, and so he ever will be, if no Mental Reflector be handed to him, to flash that folly in his face for his future torment; for, to be a fool and know it, is miserable indeed:—to have so much light stream through a chink of the soul, as is just sufficient to discover the emptiness of the mansion, is a kind of intellectual twilight, not to be fought or evaded.

It were to be wished, MR. EDITOR, that we could extend the "Philosophy of Opium" so far, as to procure a MICROSCOPE for the MIND—but, SCRUTATOR's fool must not look through it—indeed, according to his system, all fool must be interdicted its use, or their paradise would be, a paradise no more.

With how much pleasure, and profit, might this MENTAL MIRROR be occasionally applied? to SCRUTATOR's merchant, for instance; and tho' it may be tolerably easy to gaze at the general furniture of his head; yet would it be curious to see its individual disposition—to mark in what snug depositories, CONSOLIDATED BONDS and DEEDS of MORTGAGE were laid up—To behold the subtle labyrinths, pregnant with schemes of cent per cent—and to see calculation perched on the seat of memory, with a Table of COMPOUND INTEREST, in her hand.

Before I parted with my Glass, MR. EDITOR, I should like of all things to take a peep at your mind—where I suppose, I should see Meander—for the catagorization of refractory DAVILS—Hints for the subsistence of your future PAGES—HEADS, for such as might want them—with a particular direction for avoiding the use of FRENCH RULES—I might also anticipate the sentence of an unfortunate scribbler, like myself, of condemnation to the GALLIES, (but without carriage) for intrusions on your leisure and patience.

It is not absolutely impossible, but that I might also find a little cabinet, filled with short scraps of apologetic errors—with a glance at certain non est inventus—or anonymous Correspondents, respecting the inadmissibility of their numerous favours!!

Before this same Mental Reflector was laid down, YOU, MR. EDITOR, might wish to prove its power, in a reciprocal survey of the mind of your present Correspondent—you would there, Sir, see nothing strange to you; for as an adventurer for your favour, and with the most perfect veneration for your Editorial functions, together with the fears of non-admission before my eyes, you would scarcely feel any thing, (a little vanity excepted,) besides YOURSELF.

I am,
MR. EDITOR,
Yours, &c.
MIRROR.

TO THE PUBLIC.

A HANDBILL having appeared yesterday, in various copies, pasted up in the public places in the Black Town, containing gross aspersions against my character, and signed by J. Holland (who is a Lieutenant of Infantry in the Hon. Company's service) and passed up by the said J. Holland himself; I felt possibly any impression should be made on the minds of any, who do not know the said J. Holland, or to whom I may not have the advantage of being known, I think it a duty to myself to acquaint the public, that the proper legal steps are pursuing to bring the said J. Holland to justice; and to determine, when the extraordinary conduct of the said J. Holland shall be taken into consideration and proof, whether he shall not be found to have violated the laws of his country no less than insulted those of honor and decorum.

THE COURIER.

MADRAS,

FRIDAY, NOV. 22, 1793.

BY the JANE, Captain MacHenry, arrived from Bengal, on Tuesday last, we have the very interesting but unsatisfactory intelligence of the arrival there of an Indian from Europe. Captain MacHenry left the Pilot on the 13th instant, and the Pilot-boat which had been on board the JANE, came afterwards on board the JANE; with no further intelligence of the ship, than the above simple fact, that the vessel in sight was direct from Europe, nor with any additional information, than that seven other ships were in their Passage.

On Monday morning, the last payment of the sum stipulated to be paid by Tippoo Sultan, arrived at the Presidency in thirty-six Tumbrils. The BERRINGTON, PRINCESS AM LIA and FRANCIS, dropped down to Sugar Roads the 6th instant, and it was said would be finally despatched on the 25th.

The SUCCESS GALLEY, arrived at Calcutta on the 2d instant. MAJOR AGNEW, and MISSRS. CHERRY and ROBINSON landed the same day; we are happy to add, in perfect health.

The BOX SUCCESSO, a Portuguese East Indianer, also arrived at Calcutta on the 3d instant—she is said to have had a quick passage from Lisbon, and to have brought Continental Intelligence, of late date, and great importance; but which was not particularly specified when the accounts came away.

From Captain Carnegie, of the Nancy Grab, who arrived at Bengal from Polo Penang, on the 2d instant, we learn, that the ship DARTUS, of Bombay, having been chased by a French Privateer, in the Straights of Malacca, was purposely run on shore, where he was instantly left; the Commander and crew escaped without any lives being lost.

The Honorable Company's Cruiser MORNING STAR, Capt. PRUEN, is said to be stranded on the Malabar Coast and entirely lost.

MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

G. O.

Mr. Maurice Fitzgerald, to be Surgeon to the 2d battalion of Artillery, vice Trotter, deceased.

Mr. Michael Corbett, to take charge of the French Prisoners in the Black Town, vice Fitzgerald.

NAVAL ARMAMENT.

We are informed from Calcutta, that Government, have it in contemplation, to take up and fit out the NONSUCH, Captain Canning, to cruise at the head of the Bay, as a Privateer.

Report also states, that the PORT WILLIAM, Captain Forbes, is to be equipped, manned and armed for, cruise in the Straights of Malacca: three other Vessels, it is mentioned are to accompany her on the expedition.

The certain accounts received of French Privateers cruising in those parts, render the above reports sufficiently credible; they also state, (it is said from authority) that a Detachment of Artillery, is to be embarked for the purpose of observing the Guns, and a party of Foot Infantry to act as Marines, on board. We are happy to hear that the Cargo of the Ship Hunter, whose loss was detailed in a former Courier, is likely to be saved.

FRENCH PRIVATEERS.

By Letters from Bombay we are informed, that a French Privateer of considerable force, had appeared off that Harbour, and put an entire, but temporary stop, to the Navigation of the place.

The reports add that two of the Company's Cruisers were preparing to go in search of her; and from their being well-manned, and appointed, it is to be hoped with the desired Success.

Accounts received at Calcutta by the Carnatic, lately arrived from Prince of Wales's Island, state that a French Privateer, mounting twenty 12 Pounders, and, Commanded by a Capt. Tardivet, was cruising in the Straights of Singapore, and had taken a large English Ship passing to the Eastward.

Intelligence is said to have been received by an American Vessel, which lately left the Mauritius, of the arrival of a large FRENCH FRIGATE at that place, with several Dispatches from the National Convention, the contents of which had not transpired at the time of the American's Departure.

The Frigate, after remaining a few Days, and receiving on board some necessary supplies, sailed in company with three Privateers of inferior force on a secret expedition, the object of which was generally supposed to be, a Déscent on Cooper's Island, near Batavia, where the Dutch have Warehouses for the collection of their Spices, from the Eastern Islands.

Cooper's Island, is described as being entirely destitute of the means of defence, and of course, little doubt could be entertained of the success of the Expedition, at the same time, it is a very probable supposition that the Dutch with their usual foresight, would have removed the rich contents of their Warehouses, to a place of more security before the hostile inroad could be possibly made.

The Captain of the American adds, that the Inhabitants of the MAURITIUS were indefatigable in their efforts to put the Island into the best possible state of defence; as they very seriously apprehended an attack from the English.

CALCUTTA:—October 30.

Minutes of Council in the Public Department,
