CONVENTION.

FOR THE COMMON DEFENCE OF THE LIBERTY AND SAFETY OF THE DA-NISH AND SWEDISH COMMERCE, AND NAVIGATION.

BETWEEN
AND NORWAY,

AND HIS MAJESTY, THE KING OF SWEDEN,

HIS MAJESTY, THE KING OF DENMARK
and NORWAY, and HIS MAJESTY THE KING of SWEDEN, having considered how much it imports the subjects of their Realms to enjoy in safety and tranquillity the advantage attached to a perfect Neutrality, and founded on acknowledged Treaties, imprest with a deep sense of their duties to their Subjects, and unable to dissemble the inevitable embarrassments of their situation in a war which rages in the greater part of Europe, have agreed, and do agree to unite their measures and their interests in this respect, and to give to their Nations, after the example of their predecessors, all the protection which they have a right to expect from their paternal care; desiring moreover, to draw closer the bonds of the amity which so happily subsists between them, have nominated to that effect—His Danish Majesty, his Minister of State, and Foreign Affairs, the Sieur Andre Pierre Count de Bernstorff, Knight of the Order of the Elephant, &c.— and his Majesty, the King of Sweden, the Sieur Eric Magnus Baron Stael de Holstein, Chamberlain to Her Majesty the Queen Dowager of Sweden, and Knight of the Order of the Sword, who after having exchanged their full powers, have agreed on the following Articles:

I. " Their Majesties declare solemnly, that they will maintain the most perfect Neutrality in the course of the present War; avoid, as much as on them depends, whatever may embroil them with the Powers their Friends and Allies; and continue to mark, as they have constantly done, in circumstances sometimes difficult, all the attention, and even all the amicable deference, consistent with their own dignity.

II. " They declare moreover, that they claim no advantage which is not clearly and unexceptionably founded on their respective Treaties with the Powers at War.

III. " They engage also reciprocally, and before all Europe, that they will not claim in cases not specified in the Treaties, any advantage which is not founded on the universal Law of Nations, hitherto acknowledge and respected by all the Sovereigns of Europe, and from which they can as little suppose that any of them will depart, as they are incapable of departing from it themselves.

IV. " Founding on a basis so just the claim and the maintenance of their indisputable rights, they will give to the innocent navigation of their subjects, which is entirely within the rule of, and conformable to the fulfilling Treaties, without extending it to such as may depart from the rule, all the protection which it deserves against all those who, contrary to their expectation and their hopes, would disturb the legal exercise of sanctioned rights.

V. " For attaining the proposed object, Their Majesties engage reciprocally to equip, as soon as the season will permit, each a Squadron of Eight Ships of the Line, with a proportionate number of Frigates, and to provide them with all necessaries.

VI. " These Squadrons shall unite or separate, as shall be judged best for the common interest, which shall be interpreted on both sides with the amity that so happily subsists between the two Powers.

VII. " No distinction whatsoever shall be made between the Interests and the Flags of the two Nations, except such as different fulfilling Treaties with other Nations may require. Moreover, in all cases of defence, convoy or others, without any exception, the Danish ships shall defend the Swedish ships and flag, as if they were their own Nation, and the same on the other part.

VIII. " For the order of command, in all cases, it is agreed to adopt the tenor of Articles VI. and VII. in the Convention of 12th July, 1755.

IX. " The German States, both by Denmark and Sweden, are reciprocally, and entirely excepted from this Convention.

X. " The Baltic being always to be considered as a Sea shut and inaccessible to the armed ships of distant Powers at war, is declared to a new by the Contracting Parties, who are resolved to maintain it in the most perfect tranquillity.

XI. " Their Majesties engage to make a joint communication of this Convention to all the Powers at War, adding to most solemn assurances of their sincere desire to preserve with them the most perfect harmony, and to cement, rather than wound it, by this measure, which tends only to secure rights maintained and asserted by those Powers themselves, in all cases where they were Neutral and at Peace, without Denmark and Sweden having ever dreamt of interrupting them.

XII. " But if the unfortunate case should occur, that any power, in contempt of Treaties, and the universal Law of Nations, will not respect the basis of Society and the general happiness, and shall molest the innocent navigation of the Subjects of their Danish and Swedish Majesties, then will they, after having exhausted all possible means of conciliation, and made the most pressing joint remonstrances to obtain the satisfaction and indemnity due to them, make use of Reprisals, at the latest, four months after the refusal of their claim, wherever that shall be thought fitting, the Baltic always excepted; and will answer entirely to one for the other, and support one another equally, if either Nation shall be attacked or injured on account of this Convention.

XIII. " This Convention shall subsist in its whole tenor during the present War, unless it should be agreed upon, for the common interest, to make any useful or necessary change or addition to it.

XIV. " The ratification shall take place fifteen days after this Convention shall have been signed and exchanged. In testimony of which, we, the Undersigned, by virtue of our full power, have signed the present Convention, and affixed to it the Seal of our Arms.

" Done at Copenhagen, this 27th of March, 1794.

(Signed) " A. P. Y. BERNSTORFF
" ERIC MAGNUS STAEL DE HOLSTIEN, "

HIRCARRAH PRESS.

THE Death of Mr. BOYD, the late Edi-TOR of the Hircarrah, has occasioned an unavoidable interruption to the Publication of that Paper; but measures have been taken to bring it forward again, in the course of the next week, under the management of a Gentleman of literary abilities, who will exert his utmost endeavours to merit a continuance of that Patronage and support, with which the Hircarrah has hitherto been honored by the generous and liberal Public.

THE COURIER.

MADRAS.

OCTOBER 31, 1794.

A ROYAL SALUTE, of twenty-one guns, was fired at 12 o'clock on Tuesday last, in consequence of the late intelligence received, via Bafforah, of the brilliant victory gained by HIS MAJESTY'S FLEET, over that of the Enemy, in the Bay of Bi-cay—and the IMPORTANT ADVANTAGES, obtained by the Combined Powers, against the Arms of the Democratic Party, in France.

From the Glorious Success, which has attended His Majesty's Arms, both by Sea and Land, from the present disposition of the Patrians, and from the disaffection of Pe-chegra's army; it may be reasonably supposed, that the STANDARD OF DEMOCRACY, like many of these furious zealous who supported it, will shortly BE LEVELLED WITH THE DUST.

In addition to the Passengers on the Hon.
Company's Ship the LORD CAMDEN, we have to add the following.

Colonel Hartley, 75th, Lieut. Frazer, 74th, Lieut. Boardman, Lieut. Redman, Lieut. MacLeod, Mr. Latham, Major Dabbyn, Miss Ische, Master Ische, and Mr. Jackson, late Chief Officer of the Harriet Packet.

The Monsoon has set in with an aspect particularly mild—the Wind has been by no means violent, nor, as we are informed, has a single accident happened to the Shipping, or the small Craft lately in the Roads, and the Rain for some days past has been sufficiently copious, to fill most of the small Tanks near Madras—we are happy to add, that from every account which has yet reached us, the fall of Rain, both to the Northward and Southward, has been equally favorable to the purposes of Cultivation.

On the morning of the 28th instant, the following Ships and Vessels departed from the Roads.

SNOWS.
Union, and Fortune.

As the wind, which at the time of their departure blew rather fresh, moderated soon after, we may reasonably expect their safe and speedy return to the Roads.

The French Cartel ship, sailed for the Isle of France, on Thursday the 23d instant.

On Monday last, the Coroner held an Inquest, on the body of a Native, named Ra-madoo; when the Jury, from the depositions of several witnesses, examined before them, gave in their Verdict—" that the " deceased came to his Death by several " wounds given to him with a Bayanet, by " two men (Europeans) unknown.

We are sorry to hear that the ship Two-Friends, Captain Perkins, lately from Pegue, has been under the necessity of landing her Cargo of Timber, at Coringa, and proves to be so leaky as to render a thorough repair, absolutely necessary.

Extract of a Letter from Balafore,

" Since my last, a snow from Coringa, with a cargo of Coast salt, has been cast away near this place. I understand, that the owners are employed in recovering and gathering together, such parts of the wreck, as they can lay their hands on along the shore.

" The late bad weather, has made a terrible havoc among the salt Doonies—all along the coast, from Point Palmiras to Digga Balla, the Beach is strewn with wrecks of one kind or another.

Captain Clifton is appointed to the command of the Swallow East India Packet, in the room of Captain Curtis, resigned.

Captain Tenant was expected to sail from Offend about the 25th May, in a small vessel which he had purchased after the unfortunate loss of the Kaunitz.

By the late advices from Offend, the Markets as might be expected, were so low as to preclude any hopes of success from mercantile speculation.

The Vienna Gazette gives a short account of the conspiracy which has lately been discovered at Naples: the Plot was to destroy the Royal Family, and all the Members of the Government, in the night of the 28th April, a paper was found, containing a list of above a thousand of the conspirators, and a subscription of 70,000 ducats to defray the expense of the expedition. The conspirators were composed of all ranks: all the streets and public places were instantly lined with soldiers, and several hundred, persons had been taken up.

The first Lieutenants of the following frigates, viz. Arethusa, Flora, and La Concorde, are promoted to the rank of Master and Commander, in reward for their gallant conduct in the late capture of the three French frigates.

MENIN.

The following are the particulars of the gallant Action at MENIN, and which were very imperfectly detailed in our Courier Extraordinary of the 24th Instant.—The 1st Hanoverian Regiment, which served so long, and so Honourably in this Country, formed part of the Garrison.

ROUSSELAER, May 27.

"I am happy to acquaint you, that the Carmagnols began last night to draw off at their advanced posts on this side of Courtray and Menin, and that all their movements, strongly indicate an intention to depart. An officer of the regiment of de la Châtres who was taken prisoner in the affair of Menin, but had the good fortune to effect his escape, confirms this account, and adds, that their garrison at Courtray did not consist last night of more than 3000 men. General Clairfayt, it is true, met with a check near Mouscron, owing, as generally ascribed, to a want of sufficient fortitude in the Hanoverians, who compose a part of his corps. This, however, will soon be repaired. A letter from Tournay, dated the 30 ult. affirms, that a great number of those have persisted through that town to reinforce General Clairfayt, and I hope the Republican banditti will not find their retreat so easy as their unopposed march into Courtray.

"The affair of MENIN is one of the most glorious actions achieved during the whole course of the present war. The Garrison, composed of seven companies of La Châtres, a detachment of York Chasseurs, and the 14th Hanoverian Regiment of Foot, making in the whole about 3000 men, after having for several days defended the town, unopposed with heavy cannon, against a corps of 10 000 Carmagnols (and of course against a ferocious enemy, far superior in number), and with the greatest bravery resisted five different assaults, made with the utmost impetuosity of Republican fury. On the 30th ult. they found themselves reduced to an absolute want of provisions and ammunition. In this situation the Republican General Lacour offered the Garrison a capitulation, which, on condition that all the French Emigrants were given up to the besiegers, allowed the Hanoverians a free retreat. But the Governor, the Hanoverian General Hammerstein, justly scorned to accept a capitulation, which must lead a great number of his gallant brethren in arms to an immediate and ignominious death; it was resolved, that in the course of the night, the Garrison should march out by the gate of Courtray, tall with fixed bayonets upon the enemy, and thus attempt to cut their way through the surrounding Republican hordes. This bold attempt succeeded, but not without a considerable loss. The gallant General Hammerstein put himself at the head of the legion of La Châtres; and this corps, which with the utmost valour led the way, has suffered; Major de Bonnevin has received a mortal wound. Messrs. Duval, de la Borde, and Torey, officers of the Company of Grenadiers; M. de la Peyrouse, and the Chevalier de Corte, are killed, and a great number wounded. The Hanoverians have lost several Officers, and a great many men; but the loss of the Republicans before Menin must amount to several thousands; for, besides the great number that must have fallen in their different assaults, on the last sortie of the Garrison five battalions were surprised in their tents, and almost all put to the sword. During this action, which more resembles a victory than a retreat, the retreating Corps made 48 prisoners, among whom is the commanding General Lacour, who, at the beginning of the Revolution, was a Cadet in the regiment Royal Auxenque, took two pieces of cannon, and would have taken more, but for want of horses to carry them off. They arrived here yesterday with these two pieces of cannon, their field-pieces, and all their baggage; have taken post in and near our town, and have sent 32 waggons with their wounded to Bruges."

Extract of a Letter from Ostend.

"Our fears concerning the fate of this town and the neighbouring places are now relieved. The Carmagnols began yesterday morning to withdraw all their advanced posts on this side Courtray and Menin; and we hear that they are on the point of retreating towards Lille at full speed. His Royal Highness, the Duke of York, who with a Corps of 20,000 men, left the army to relieve and protect Flanders, had yesterday his headquarters at Valenciennes. The report is still generally prevailing, that their Corps at Courtray is entirely cut off.

HIGH TREASON.

London May 9th.

An Officer bearing the Rank of Captain in the Duke of York's Army, has been arrested, upon certain proof of having carried on a Traiterous Correspondence with the Enemy. He is to be sent to England to take his trial.

The offence for which Captain Wilton, of the Artillery is now in irons, is understood to be communicating to Pichegru the disposition of the Allied Forces, and suggesting a plan by which the Carmagnols might surround and cut off the invading Armies.

On Saturday night Mr. Lauzan, jun. a King's Messenger, was despatched, with four other persons, to apprehend Mr. STONE, the Coal-Merchant, of Rutland-place, Thames-street, at his country-house, at Old Ford, near Bow, on a charge of HIGH TREASON, for keeping upon improper correspondence with the enemy. After leaving two persons in charge of Mr. Stone's houses he was brought to town, and kept in M. Lauzan's custody during that night, and on Sunday and yesterday he was examined before some of the Cabinet Ministers in the presence of Mr. Justice Bond; and yesterday evening he was committed to prison.

In consequence of a Note from Mr. Secretary Dundas, on Wednesday, sent to Lord Lauderdale, Mr. Sheridan, Major Maitland, Mr. William Smith, and Mr. Vaughan, Members of the House of Commons, requesting they would attend a Meeting of the Cabinet-Ministers at the Secretary of State's Office; the above Gentlemen yesterday went thither, at eleven o'clock, and were each interrogated separately, in consequence of some matter which had come out on MR. STONE's examination. The three first of these Gentlemen were not long detained; but the interrogating of Mr. Vaughan lasted till near six o'clock. Mr. Wilton, of Bartlett's buildings, brother to Captain Wilton, of the Artillery, was also examined. The Council sat from eleven o'clock till six. BOND, the Magistrate, was present.

DUBLIN, May 3.

ARCHIBALD HAMILTON ROWAN.

Thursday night about ten o'clock, Mr. A. H. Rowan, who was confined in the New Prison, under the sentence of the Court of King's Bench in consequence of his conviction for uttering and publishing a seditious Libel, and against whom a charge of High Treason, has since been brought, contrived to make his escape from the New Prison, and has not since been taken.

Mr. Rowan had been on all occasions allowed the full and free intercourse of his family and friends, and especially his wife and children, who generally dined and spent the evening at his apartments, and always went away at ten o'clock.

At half past nine, on Thursday night, Mr. Gregg, the head gaoler, paid his usual visit to the Prison, in order to see all his prisoners locked up, and that every thing was quiet.

Mr. Rowan, with his lady and children were then in their apartment. It had been usual with him to escort her to the prison-door on her departure—an indulgence never refused him, because a firm, but it seems a very ill-founded reliance was placed on his honour, that nothing like an attempt to escape would have ever entered his mind.

Indeed such an attempt would seem in its nature so rash and unpromising, under all its circumstances, that any suspicion of the sort might have been deemed absurd and ridiculous.

Mr. Rowan, however, took care to profit by this apparent security of his keepers.

Some time before Mrs. Rowan was prepared to depart on Thursday night, a bonfire was lighted in Green-street, nearly opposite the Prison (it being May night,) and surrounded by a numerous crowd of the common populace.—As Mrs. Rowan reached her carriage which waited before the Prison, several squibs were thrown, and the horses became rather relive.

Mr. Rowan, who still stood at the door with one of the turnkeys, without his hat reached forward, with apparent eagerness to see if his wife was in any danger, and as if alarmed for her situation rushed hastily towards the steps which he descended with rapidity, and instantly mixing with the crowd ran off.

The coach in the mean time set off at full gallop; and the turnkey missing his prisoner pursued the coach to Mr. Rowan's house in Dominick-street, where he searched in vain for Mr. Rowan.

What seems a little extraordinary in the matter is, that no report of Mr. Rowan's escape was made either to Mr. Gregg, or to any Magistrate until yesterday morning.

A Privy Council was convened at the Castle at noon, when the circumstance of Mr. Rowan's escape was communicated to his Excellency; in consequence of which a Proclamation was issued, offering 1000l. reward for his apprehension.

The Corporation of Dublin, at the Quarter Assembly yesterday have offered a further reward of 500l. and Mr. Gregg Gaoler of Newgate 200l. for the same purpose.

Some circumstances of a most alarming tendency, and treasonable nature, which have transpired relative to Mr. Rowan, since the apprehension of Mr. Jackson are supposed to have been the motives that urged the former to attempt a precipitant escape, in which he has effectually succeeded.

Matters are said to have been so well concerted in this business, that Mr. Rowan had a horse in waiting, upon which he set off immediately for Ruffin, from whence he was directly conveyed on board an American vessel, which waited for him off the place, and sailed the instant he came on board.

A scene of Treason, which we have long since developed in the views of that party with whom MR. ROWAN was concerned, is at length brought to light, and which will show the principle surely of that party in such horrid colours as must excite in the public mind sensations towards Mr. Rowan's character and conduct extremely different from that of commiseration heretofore expressed for his rash, and very extraordinary zeal for Reformation.

DUBLIN, May 20.

On Monday morning last, about ten o'clock, the Rev. William Jackson, late of London, was arrested at his lodgings, in Hyde's New Hotel, in Dame-street, Dublin, on a charge of High Treason, by Mr. Oliver Carleton, of the Police, and brought before the Earl of Clonmell, who committed him to the New Gaol. His writings, &c. were seized.—This is the Gentleman who was so distinguished some years ago in the quarrel between the celebrated Foote, the Comedian, and the late Dutchess of Kingston.

The charge made against Mr. Jackson we understand to be, that he has held a correspondence of a criminal nature with several persons who now belong to the existing Government of France, in which treasonable information was given to the enemy respecting the force in Great Britain, and this Country, with the opinions of the people as to the prosecution of the war.

In consequence of the investigation of Mr. Jackson's papers before the Privy Council, some persons of respectability, in different parts of the Kingdom, are implicated in the charge of HIGH TREASON: and Mr. Poyle, and another of the King's Messengers, on Wednesday, set off to apprehend those against whom warrants have been issued by the Council.

Mr. Jackson is confined a close prisoner in Newgate. Two centinels are placed outside of the room door in which he is imprisoned, to prevent all intercourse either with visitors or prisoners, and who attentively examine every article before it is suffered to enter for his use. In other respects his situation is rendered as comfortable as the circumstances of his case will admit. Orders have been issued to furnish him with all necessary accommodation which he may desire, and which, as furnished to a prisoner of State, is to be defrayed at the public expense.

EXTRACT of a LETTER from LONDON.

A proof of the vile disposition, of some persons in this city, and, that even the tender and benevolent nature of our SOVEREIGN cannot escape their calumny, shewed itself when the dreadful accident happened at the Little Theatre.

The King having ordered a play, an immense crowd attended at the Pit Door, upon the opening of which a man fell; the consequence of which was 16 others were thrown down and trampled to death, and a number more, miserably bruised; It is an extraordinary fact that this melancholy event was not known to the audience; Several of my friends were in the different boxes, and heard not a word of it.

The King was also kept in ignorance, and happening to be in uncommon spirits, laughed more than usual, and appeared to be highly entertained with the play. Early the following morning, hand bills were thrown down many areas, and otherwise dispersed, calling upon the people "no longer to support the savage George, who when a Tyrant of France suffered by the Guillotine, ordered a general mourning, and put a stop to all public performances, but upon 26 of his own loyal subjects perishing miserably, that every George Gwelph on the same Evening sits out a play, and appears uncommonly happy. It ended with 1200 words: WHO WOULD FIGHT FOR SUCH A KING?"

"Never was any thing so infamous. The King knew nothing of the matter until he saw it in a news paper next day; and was then so shocked as to be near fainting, and did not recover himself for many hours. Colman is universally, and surely deservedly blamed, for keeping the accident a secret."

GENOA.

Extract of a Letter from Turin.

"The French, violating the Genoese territory, and passing by Ventimiglia, between the 7th and 8th of April entered the principality of Oneglia, where they committed, every species of depredation. They seized a height which commands the fort of Savourage; and as we had not to oppose them, they staid there between the 9th and 10th; so that we considered Savourage as lost.

"At length our reinforcement of troops arrived, and in marching towards the Genoese territory, they took a very advantageous post to dislodge the French. A most obstinate action ensued; our troops were repulsed four times successively; but, at length, the bravery and firmness of our Royal Grenadiers surmounted every obstacle and at the fifth charge completely overthrew the French. A considerable butchery was made of them; and the remainder were pursued to the Genoese country, driving them to Port Maurice, where we are assured there was a division of our fleet, which immediately disembarked the troops, which it had on board; so that the French finding themselves between two fires which they were unable to support, were all taken prisoners, to the number of about 7000 men.

"No detail of this affair has yet appeared; but it is said that the number of French killed is 500.

"Our Generals are desirous of profiting by this great advantage, and intend to march forward. To this they are the more encouraged, as, at the time of this affair, the town being founded in all the environs, in 7 or 8 hours from 18 to 20,000 peasants assembled in arms which proves how much they are attached to their Religion and King, and how greatly they abhor the French."

"We hear from Genoa, under date of the 8th Instant, that the Senate has arrested the Commander of the Corps of Artillery, at whose houses were found several libels and a large quantity of tri-coloured cockades."

Letters from Turin, of the 9th ult. state, that the King of Sardinia having been afflicted with a most violent and dangerous fever, has been let blood twice, and his Majesty is now so far recovered, as to be able to leave his bed several hours a day.

It is said that no attack will be made upon Calvi before the united British and Corsican troops shall have received a reinforcement of 6000 Neapolitans.

Mr. Smyth, a Lord of the Admiralty, succeeds Lord Baynham as one of the Lords of the Treasury.

Sir William Howe, is to have the command of the Coast during the indisposition of the Duke of Richmond.

Mr. Jenkinson is to raise a Regiment of Fencible Cavalry for the Cinque-Ports.

THE Prize Agents for the Mysore Prize Money, take this method of publishing to the Army the foregoing statement of the disposal of the Prize Funds, and lament that so much time has passed before they could finally settle their accounts, owing entirely to the different claims not being prepared more readily, notwithstanding the many and urgent Advertisements which have appeared on the subject.—a delay which unavoidably encreased the charges for Writers, &c. &c. considerably above the expense which would otherwise have been incurred.

The Prize Agents can entertain no doubt that the army will be pleased to see so large a sum under the head of unappropriated balance, paid into the hands of the Treasurer of the Male Asylum. It has arisen (besides the unappropriated balance stated in the account formerly published) from fractional remainders after the different distributions, from certain claims calculated and included by the Prize Agents in the last General Estimate, but struck out on reference, and from several trifling savings in the distribution to Individuals who had served for broken periods.—The sums stated as unclaimed balances have also been paid to the Treasurer of the Male Asylum, which it is natural to suppose, from the circumstances of their not having been long since demanded, the different claimants intend should be added to the unappropriated balance and applied to the same charitable purpose.—These sums however have been paid into the Funds of the Male Asylum, conditionally, subject to answer all well authenticated claims.

An account of some debts still due, with the vouchers, are also lodged with the Treasurer of the Male Asylum, and as letters have been written to the Individuals indebted to the Prize fund, claiming those debts it is to be hoped that those Gentlemen will see the necessity of immediately paying the sums they severally owe, as directed in the letters addressed to them, without obliging the Prize Agents to take further steps for the recovery of those debts.—That the whole may be added to the sums already intended, as above stated, for the benefit of so deserving an institution.

The original accounts, and receipts for all sums disbursed, are to be seen on application to Major Smart, with whom they will remain, open for the inspection of those concerned till the 31st of next December.
