THE COURIER.

WEDNESDAY, 25th. September 1805.

The Honorable Company's Ship CHARLTON, Capt. Wood, arrived at Diamond Harbour on the 1st. Instant. PASSENGERS from this Presidency.—Lieut. Bowen 17th. foot, and Mrs. Bowen, and Mrs. A. Stewart.

On the 10th. Instant, the CARTEL Brig, Ariel, arrived at Colombo, from the Isle of France, PASSENGERS, Miss Houre, & Messrs. Palmer, Whicher, and Menanger.

The Snow Minerva, arrived at Trincomallie, from Galle, on the 27th. Ult.—PASSENGERS, W. Strachey Esq. and Captain Barry.

THE American Ship SALLY and BETSEY, arrived on Thursday last from Madeira, left the 17th. of June. Two British Line of Battle Ships touched at the Island whilst the American was there; and proceeded thence to the West Indies. This addition to our force in that quarter, it would appear, is rendered in some measure unnecessary, as the French Squadron, whose depredations we recently recorded, had returned to France:—they had arrived at L'Orient.

It has been stated that Admiral LORD NELSON, with his Squadron, had passed Gibraltar, ten days after the combined Squadrons of France and Spain;—and that his Lordship had proceeded to the West Indies;—the latter circumstance, if correct, would lead to an assurance of the combined Fleet of the Enemy having proceeded to that quarter, but of this we must confess our doubts.

Vice Admiral Sir John Orde, with his Squadron, joined Lord Gardner, off Brest, on the 21st. of April.

The Prize to His Majesty's Ship Terpsichore, was not, (as erroneously stated in our last,) the Henrietta Privateer,—but a merchant Ship, called the Tulurette. The circumstances attending the capture, were stated correctly.

CEYLON INTELLIGENCE.

COLOMBO 11TH. SEPTEMBER.

On Saturday His Excellency the Governor left Colombo on His Route to Point de Galle, where he will embark on board His Majesty's Ship CONCORDE for Trincomale.

His Excellency is accompanied by the following Officers.

Robert Arbuthnot Esq. Chief Sec. to Government—Lieut. Colonel Wilson, Deputy Quarter Master General. Lieut. Col. Brownrigg Dep. Adj. General—Lieut. Col. Bridges, Royal Engineers—Thomas Christie, Esq. Inspector of Hospitals—Capt. Edwards Military Sec. and Major Beaver His Excellency's Aid-de-Camp.

We are concerned to relate a most melancholy accident which happened on the 7th. Instant, at Chilaw—LIEUT. NESBITT of the 2d. Ceylon Regiment, on his Route from Trincomalee to Colombo, in attempting to cross the Chilaw [illegible] together with three Sepoys and seven Coolies, on a Raft, which had unfortunately been overloaded with Baggage; the Raft sunk in the middle of the River; and every person on it unfortunately perished.

On Monday the Brig SULTAN, at anchor in the Roads, upset while taking on board Attack She immediately filled and struck the Ground—From the great swell that was then rolling in from the Westward—It was judged most prudent to haul her on the Beach: where she now lies.

14th.—"We have agreed to restore to the Service "Mr. WILLIAM BETTY, a Surgeon on your Establish- "ment, who was dismissed by the sentence of a Court- "martial, and the General Court have concurred in this "our resolution."

15th.—"We have been influenced in our decision "upon Mr. BETTY's case, by the peculiar circumstan- "ces of his long continuance under Arrest previous to "his trial, and of his having been acquitted of all the "Charges brought against him, except that of breaking "his Arrest, in which he appears to have acted more "from an error in judgment than intentional disobedi- "ence, and likewise by the very strong and unanimous "recommendation of the Court-martial in his favor."

17th.—"We have permitted LIEUT. COL. SAMUEL "OGG, to return to his duty on your Establishment, "and in consideration of the long and meritorious Ser- "vices of this Officer, and the peculiar circumstances "which occurred to retard his promotion on the aug- "mentation made to your Army in 1803, we recom- "mend him to the particular notice and attention of "your Government."

Mr. Rowley had filled various situations in the Company's service with the strictest probity, and had ever conducted himself to the satisfaction of his superiors.—While living he was universally respected, and his family and friends have to regret the loss of a most upright man, and a valuable member of society.

Lately at Surat, Lieutenant Colonel JOHN BURROWS, of the Bombay Native Infantry.

EUROPE DEATAS.

D. Draper Esq. formerly of Council at Bombay;—the husband of Sterne's fascinating, but ill-fated ELIZA.

At his seat in the county of Antrim, Ireland, Clotworthy Skeffington, EARL OF MASSAREENE, Viscount Massareene, and Baron of Loughreagh. This Nobleman was many years confined in the Bastile prison in France, and effected his escape in the year 1789, by marrying Mademoiselle Mary-Ann Barrier, daughter of the Governor, who with her sister and her husband, became the partners of his flight, and accompanied him to Ireland. His Lordship possessed many eccentricities: from his long residence in the Bastile, he contracted a habit of sleeping on a matrass on the floor, and after his return to Ireland continued it, her Ladyship resting on a down bed in the same apartment. His Lordship was in his 69d year, and is succeeded in his titles and estates by the Hon. Col. Skeffington, his Lordship's brother.

APRIL 29th.—The Gazette of yesterday, published the following Dispatches from Vice Admiral MITCHELL, Commander in chief of His Britannic Majesty's Naval force, at Halifax, to William Marsden, Esq. dated the 24th. of March, 1805,

SIR,

I have the honor to transmit you, for the information of my Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, three letters relative to the capture of his Majesty's ship Cleopatra by the french frigate the Ville de Milan, on the 14th. Feb. last, after a very warm action. My Lords commissioners will observe with satisfaction the good fortune the Leander met with in falling in with these two ships, taking the Ville de Milan and re-capturing the Cleopatra. No language can do sufficient justice to the steadiness and bravery displayed, in the chase and during the engagement, by Sir Robert Laurie, bart. commander of the Cleopatra—by his officers and his young seamen, [illegible] engagement must do them great honor, in the estimation of my Lords the commissioners, in consideration of the very great superiority of both the enemies ship and crew.

From the high opinion I entertain of the officers, of their brave and steady conduct, as well as the discipline of the crew, I fully believe had the combat been accepted, they would have given a good account of the enemy. The Cleopatra failed for Halifax, on the 18th. of this month under the charge of her commander Sir Robert Lawrie, in order to be valued, and repaired with the utmost expedition. I shall myself bring the Ville de Milan to Halifax to join my squadron. She is a very handsome frigate, and very large, she had only been launched one year, the day of the engagement; and she is in all respects perfectly fit for his Majesty's service; excepting the damage that she received during the action in her masts and rigging; she has besides on board a considerable quantity of stores for equipment.

(Signed) A. MITCHELL.

HAGUE,—1d May.

The collection of the Registers which were opened last month in this republic, for the purpose of receiving the votes of the citizens on the new projected constitution, and for the choice and powers of the first and chief magistrate, shewed that 14,093 inhabitants had pronounced for its acceptation, & 136 had rejected the proposition submitted to the people. The ancient government adding the number of favorable votes to those citizens that had not voted, and who consequently gave a tacit consent, agreeably to the dispositions adopted, and published repeatedly; proclaimed on the 26th of April, the result of the suffrages, and at the same time the new constitution and the new government.

M. R. J. Schemmelpennink arrived at the Hague, on the 29th. of April, in consequence of the invitation of the state government, and landed at the Ancienne Gour with his family.

CADIZ,—10th. April.

Yesterday evening, very unexpectedly, we saw arrive the Toulon fleet, it is composed of twenty-four sail, amongst which are eleven ships of the line, viz. L'Effroyable, of 110 guns; le Dugay Trouin, of 90; L'Intrepide, of 80; le Fidele, of 84; le Magistral, la Province, le Vantour, le Sanguinaire, le Hasard, la Concorde and the César of 74 guns; the rest of the fleet consisted of six frigates, four corvetts, and three brigantines. We have besides in the roads the French ships of the line, L'Aigle of seventy four guns, le Tiambeur, of twenty two, and the Argus of sixteen guns. The fleet did not appear to wish to enter the harbour. Immediately after its appearance two thousand fresh troops were embarked on board the Spanish ships at anchor in the harbour, who it is supposed will immediately join the French squadron, as well as the three French ships in our harbour. The English ships who were cruising on our shores, retreated on the approach of the French squadron.

MADRID,—12th April.

The armament of our Fleet at Ferrol was entirely completed on the 26th, and the whole are ready to put to sea on the first signal. This fleet consists of twelve ships of the line, besides frigates and corvettes, and the French ships.

The ships already armed and equipped at Cadiz, consist of the Trinitie, of 134 guns; the St. Anne, of 114; le Rajo; of 100; le Argonaute, and the St. Raphael, of 86; Terrible, le Firme, le Glorieux, la Bahama, of 76; le Espanha and le America, of 66; and the Castile, of 62. They are to be joined by four French ships of the line, le Vainquer, le Souverain, le St. Just and le St. Firmen, of 76 guns; the frigates le Magdeleine and la Rufine of 38 guns. Besides twelve gun boats armed at Cadiz, and eighteen from Algesiras.

CONSTANTINOPLE,—12th. April.

Our ministers are employed with the Russian Ambassador in renewing a treaty between the Porte and Russia. The definitive conclusion of this treaty only waits for the arrival of Mr. Arbuthnot, the new ambassador from his Britannic Majesty.

By a letter from Marseilles, it is said that the Toulon fleet fell in with an Eng[illegible] frigate off Cape Saint Marie, and captured her.

A report prevailed at Genoa for some days, that the Dey of Algiers had been murdered by his own subjects.

LEYDEN, 29th. April.—By the most authentic information we learn that the French Toulon fleet failed on the 30th. of March in the evening to the number of 11 ships of the line, 6 frigates, and 2 corvettes, having on board 9000 Land troops, the squadron is commanded by Admiral Villaneuve, and the troops by Gen. Lauriston, they were off the heights of Carthagena on the 7th. April, and on the 9th. they were off Cadiz—and they were seen proceeding on their course on the 10th, but their destination is wholly unknown, after having been joined by one French ship of the line and a corvette—and 6 Spanish ships of the line and one frigate, with 2280 land troops of the same nation, commanded by Admiral Gravina.

ANTWERP,—10. April.

A great number of galley-slaves have again arrived in this city, to work in our dock-yards, in which an extraordinary activity prevails.—Five ships of the line will be ready to launch in the ensuing Month. The City of Lyons, of 74 guns, is nearly completed. Materials and naval ammunition are continually arriving in abundance; and, in a short time, Antwerp will be one of the first ports for SHIP-BUILDING in the French Empire.

MORLAND THE ARTIST.

The life of MORLAND, and of his boon companions—those carters, smugglers, painters, pig drovers, poachers, and postillions, with which he peopled the magic scenery of his pictures, seems to have partly resembled that of the wandering Arabs. They formed a sort of moveable gang, horde, or commonwealth; that in whatever situation or circumstances, was sure to be always at home; and, however various in other respects, never failed to agree in that of belonging to one certain order of the "guards;" each subsisting "some how or other," but all in equal defiance of the social decencies.

While their chief sojourned at a house on the Edgware Road, a genteel personage, one day, knocked at the door: a fellow who, it seems, went by the name of "Winking Bob," was ordered to reconnoitre:

"Well Governor; what do you want?"

"Mr. Morland at home?"

"Dont exactly know just yet: what's your name, cocky?"

"No matter for my name, I suppose: I want to see him—want to look at his pictures."

"By G—— you neither see his pictures nor him, unless you tip us a little bit of your name!"

"Very odd, Sir! Perhaps I want to buy a picture."

"Mayhap you may: all's one for that there: but you can't see him, I tell ye, without your name."

"Why then tell him, Sir, if you please, that Lord Derby,"

"Oh d——n all Lords," vociferated Morland out of a garret window, "I paint for no Lords: shut the door Bob; and bring up Rattler and the puppy!"

It does not appear that Morland had much, or indeed any wit, properly so distinguished: his nearest approaches to it were by a base, monkey kind of mischievous cunning; such as daubing the handles of things with paint; drinking people's liquor, and substituting water in the cup, and other exploits of that cast. The original and masterly powers of the artist interest one perhaps too much in the history of so worthless and so weak a man.

At Windsor-castle, on Tuesday, the 23d April, (being St. George's-day.)

AT THE INSTALLATIONS OF

The Duke of RUTLAND,
The Earl of HARDWICKE,
The Duke of BEAUFORT,
The Marquis of ABERCORN,
The Earl of PEMBROKE and MONTGOMERY,
The Earl of WINCHELSEA and NOTTINGHAM,
And the Earl of CHESTERFIELD.

THE Knights Companions, in the complete habit of the Order, the Officers of the Order in their Mantles, the Knights Elect in the Under Habits, having their Caps and feathers in their hands, and the Proxy for the Earl of Hardwicke in his ordinary habit, attend the Sovereign in the Royal Apartment.

The officers of Arms, and the four Serjeants at Arms, with their Maces, attend in the prefence Chamber—the Prebends and Poor knights, as alfo the kettle drums and houfe trumpets, in the Guard Chamber.

The Proxy is not to go in the proceffion, but to retire privately to his chair at the back of the altar.

The Sovereign coming under his State, Garter King of Arms calls over the Knights—and a proceffion is made from the Royal Apartment, through the Hall to the Great Court: and from thence to the South door of St. George's Chapel, in the following order:—

PROCESSION FROM THE ROYAL APARTMENT TO THE CHAPTER-HOUSE.

Kettle Drums and Houfe Trumpets.
Poor Knights, Two and Two.
Prebends, Two and Two.
Purfuivants and Heralds of Arms, Two and Two.
Norroy, King of Arms | Clarenceux, King of Arms.
The Knights Elect, Two and Two, having their Caps & Feathers in their hands.
The Knights Companions, each with his Companion, if preſent—if not, alone, according to their Stalls.

Two Serjeants at Arms, a little in advance of the Sword of State.
- The Regiſter, having Garter King of Arms on his Right and Deputy Black Rod on his left Hand, bearing the Rods of their Reſpective Offices.
- The Chancellor, with the Purſe, having on his right hand the Prelate

Two Serjeants at Arms, a little in advance of the Sword of State.

Band of Gentlemen Penſioners.
- Lord Chamberlain. The Sword of State.
- THE SOVEREIGN, in the full Habit of the Order; His Train borne by the Eldeſt Sons of Two Dukes, and by the Maſter of the Robes, Band of Gentlemen Penſioners.

Band of Gentlemen Penſioners.

In this manner moving to the Chapel, the Proceſſion will enter at the South door; paſs down the South iſle; and, up the North Iſle, to the Chapter Houſe; the Poor Knights dividing, on either ſide, at ſome diſtance from the Chapter Houſe; then the Prebend, next above; and the Officers of Arms neareſt to the Chapter Houſe.

None entering with the Sovereign into the Chapter Houſe, but the Knights Companions, and the ſworn Officers of the order—the Knights Elect retire to their Chairs in the Iſle behind the altar. The Sovereign's train to be carried into the Chapter Houſe by Garter; and to be born out of the Chapter Houſe by Deputy Black Rod, & then carried by the train bearers.

Deputy Black Rod, and the Regiſter, not having been ſworn, remain in the iſle, oppoſite to the Knights Elect.

The Sovereign and the Knights Companions being ſeated, the latter according to their ſeniority, and their ſtalls in the Chapel; Garter acquaints His Majeſty, that Robert Quarme, Eſquire, Deputy Black Rod, waits at the door and humbly prays admittance to take the oath of office; and he being thereupon introduced by Garter, kneels near the Sovereign on the left hand; when Garter, holding the Goſpels, adminiſters the oath. Deputy Black Rod having kiſſed the Sovereign's hand, retires to his place at the bottom of the table.

Then the Chancellor, or (in his abſence,) Garter acquaints his Majeſty, that the Dean of Windſor, the Honourable and Reverend Doctor Edward Legge attends at the door; and prays admittance to take the oath as Regiſter of the Order. He is thereupon introduced by Garter and Deputy Black Rod; the latter carrying the enſigns of the Regiſter's office—the Chancellor, or (in his abſence) Garter adminiſters the oath; and the Regiſter, being inveſted, and having kiſſed the Sovereign's hand, withdraws to his place at the bottom of the table.

Then by the Sovereign's command, the Chancellor, or (in his abſence,) the Regiſter, ſtanding on the left hand of his Majeſty, reads the new ſtatute. When done, the Regiſter returns to his place.

Garter then, by the Sovereign's command, introduces the Duke of Rutland, who is received at the door by the two junior Knights, and conducted to the table, where the ſurcoat, girdle, and ſword had been placed; and Garter, preſenting the ſurcoat to the two Senior Knights, they inveſt his Grace therewith. The Regiſter reading the admonition, "Take this Robe," &c.

Then Garter preſents the girdle in like manner, and afterwards the ſword; which they put on his Grace, who thereupon, ſtands at his place near the table.

Garter then introduces the Proxy for the Earl of Hardwicke, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, and Knight Elect of the Order, who is to ſtand at his Excellency's place near the table.

Garter then introduces ſeverally, the Duke of Beaufort, the Marquis of Abercorn, the Earl of Pembroke, the Earl of Wincheſſea, and the Earl of Cheſterfield, who are inveſted with the ſurcoat, girdle, and ſword, with the like ceremonies.

The Knights Elect and the Proxy continue in the Chapter Houſe while the Proceſſion to the Chapel is made down to the bottom of the North iſle, and, up the Middle iſle, into the Choir, in the following order:—

PROCESSION TO THE CHOIR.

Firſt, The Poor Knights; who, coming into the Choir, make their reverences, firſt to the Altar, then to the Sovereign's Stall, and place themſelves, on each ſide near the Altar.
The Prebends make their reverences in like manner, and go to their places under the Stalls.
The Officers of Arms, making their reverences, ſtand next to the Poor Knights.
Then the Knights Companions, each in the order in which he had walked, ſingly, or with his Companion, make their reverences, and retire under their banners; where they remain ſtanding.
The Regiſter, Garter, and Deputy Black Rod, making their reverences together, ſtand before their Form.
The Prelate and Chancellor do the ſame.
The Sword of State, with the Lord Chamberlain on his left hand (the Sovereign being ſeated), ſtand on the ſteps before, or under the Sovereign's Stall.
The Sovereign makes one reverence to the Altar; and, being in his Stall, repeats the ſame—the Train Bearers ſtanding upon the ſteps leading to the Sovereign's Stall.
Garter then going to the middle of the Choir, and, making his double reverence, waves his ſceptre towards his Royal Highneſs the Prince of Wales, who, thereupon, coming from under his banner, makes his reverences, and aſcends into his Stall; where, repeating his reverences, he ſits down.
All the other Knights continue ſtanding under their banners.
The Prelate is conducted to the Altar by the Verger of Saint George's Chapel; and two Prebends by the ſame Verger.

OFFERING OF THE ACHIEVEMENTS.

Then Garter, with the uſual reverences, takes up the banner of his Serene Highneſs the late Duke of SAXE GOTHA; and, holding it up, the Provincial Kings of Arms join, and, making their reverences, repair to the two ſenior Knights; who, thereupon, join, making their reverences together, and receive the banner from Garter, which they carry, the point foremoſt, a little declining; and, being preceded by the ſaid Provincial Kings of Arms, advance to the firſt ſtep of the Altar, where they repeat their reverences; and, coming to the rails, make one reverence to the Altar; then kneeling, they deliver the banner to the Prelate; who, aſſiſted by the Prebends, places it upright at the ſouth end of the Altar.

The two Knights then return, with like reverences, and ſtand under their banners.

The Sword is then delivered by Garter to the two next ſenior Knights; who, attended by the ſaid Provincial Kings of Arms, offer the ſame (the hilt upwards), with like ceremonies.

The Helm and Creſt are offered by the two next ſenior Knights, with the ſame ceremony, attended by the ſaid Provincial Kings of Arms.

The achievements of the late Marquis of Stafford, of the late Duke of Beaufort, and the late Duke of Beaufort, and the late Duke Roxburgh, are offered with the ſame ceremonies, by the ſix ſenior Knights, not of the Blood Royal, attended each time by two Heralds, in rotation.

Then Garter, bowing to each Knight, (the ſenior firſt), ſummons him to aſcend into his ſtall when he ſingly, or joining his companion, if preſent, makes his reverences; and the ſame are repeated when in the ſtalls.

All the Knights being in their ſtalls; Garter ſummons the two ſenior Knights under their banners, in order to inſtal the Duke of Rutland; and a proceſſion is made to the Chapter-houſe, (all making the uſual reverences on going out of the Choir), in the following order:—

POOR KNIGHTS.—OFFICERS AT ARMS.

DEPUTY BLACK ROD.
- GARTER, carrying, on a Cuſhion, the Mantle, Hood, Great Collar and Book of Statutes.
- THE REGISTER, carrying, in his hand, the new Teſtament, and the Forms of the Oath and Admonitions.

The two Knights, having the Duke of Rutland between them: his Grace is habited in his ſurcoat, and girt with his ſword, and carries his cap and feather in his hand.

The Proceſſion paſſing to the weſt end of the choir only, enters the choir, all making the uſual reverences: Garter, with the Regiſter and Deputy Black Rod, go under the Stall appointed for his Grace, Garter placing the cuſhion upon the deſk of the lower Stall.

The two Knights, with the Duke, enter into the lower Stall; where the Regiſter adminiſters the oath, Deputy Black Rod holding the Goſpels.

Then the two Knights conduct his Grace into the upper Stall; the Regiſter and Garter entering into the lower Stall; and Deputy Black Rod remaining in the area.

Garter then preſents the Mantle to the Knights, who inveſt his Grace therewith, the Regiſter reading the Admonition, "Receive this Robe," &c.

Next, Garter, preſents the Hood, which is put on over his Grace's right ſhoulder, the ends of the tippets being brought in front, and paſſed under the girdle.

Then Garter preſents the Great Collar and George, with which the Knights inveſt the Duke, whilſt the Regiſter reads the admonition, wear this Collar, &c.

Garter then preſents the Statute-book, which the Knights deliver to his Grace; and then placing the cap and feather on his head, they ſeat him in his Stall; and his Grace, riſing up, makes his double reverence, viz. firſt to the Altar, then to the Sovereign: the Knights, after embracing and congratulating him, deſcend into the middle of the Choir, and making their reverences, go up into their Stalls; and, repeating the ſame, ſit down; the Officers returning to their places.

Then Garter ſummons the two Knights in ſeniority, in order to inſtal the proxy for the Earl of Hardwicke; who is thereupon conducted with the ſame ceremony into the Stall under that appointed for his Principal, where the Regiſter adminiſters to him the oath. He is then conducted into the upper Stall, and the Mantle being preſented by Garter, the Knights put the ſame over his left arm, ſo that the croſs, embroidered within the Garter may be ſeen. They then ſeat the ſaid proxy in the Stall, with the ceremony as before-mentioned; and return to their Stalls; the Proxy immediately riſing makes his reverences, and remains ſtanding during the reſt of the ceremony with the Mantle on his arm.

The Duke of Beaufort, the Marquis of Abercorn, the Earl of Pembroke, the Earl of Wincheſſea, and the Earl of Cheſterfield, are to be ſeverally introduced, and inſtalled, in the ſame manner as the Duke of Rutland.

The Knights thus inſtalled, Divine Service begins.

OFFERING.

At the words of the Offertory—"Let your light ſo ſhine," &c—the Organ playing—the Officers of the Wardrobe ſpread a Carpet on the ſteps of the Altar; and Deputy Black Rod, making his obeiſances, goes up to the rails of the Altar on the right ſide, where he receives, from the Yeoman of the Wardrobe, a rich carpet and cuſhion, which, with the aſſiſtance of the Yeoman, he lays down for the Soveign to kneel upon.

In the mean time, Garter ſummons the Knights from their ſtalls, beginning with the junior; each Knight making his reverence in his ſtall; and repeating the ſame, with his banner.

All the Knights ſtanding thus under this banners; and the Prelate at the Altar to receive the offerings; the Sovereign, making his reverence to the Altar; deſcends from his ſtall, and then making another reverence in the middle of the Choir, proceeds to the Offering.

The Senior Knight (not of the Blood Royal), being the Knight appointed to deliver the Offering to the Sovereign, makes his reverence as the Proceſſion paſſes; and, thereupon, places himſelf a little behind his Majeſty, on the right ſide.

The Sovereign, coming to the rails of the Altar, makes a reverence; when Deputy Black Rod, on his knee, delivers the Offering to the Knight, who delivers it to the Sovereign; and his Majeſty, taking off his cap and feathers, puts the Offering into the baſon, held by the Prelate, aſſiſted by the Prebends.

The Sovereign, riſing, makes his reverence to the Altar; and, retiring, makes another in the middle of the Choir, all the attendants turning, as his Majeſty does, and making their reverences at the ſame time; and, being in his ſtall, another. The Knight, who delivered the Offering, retires under his banner, when the proceſſion comes oppoſite to the ſame.

During the Sovereign's return, the Officers of the Wardrobe remove the carpet and cuſhion whereon his Majeſty had kneeled; leaving the firſt carpet and placing two cuſhions for the Knights; and Deputy Black Rod, with the uſual reverences, returns to his place.

All the Knights ſtanding under their banners, the Provincial Kings of Arms join with uſual reverences and go to his Royal Highneſs the Prince of Wales; who, in the middle of the Choir, makes his double reverence, viz. firſt to the Altar, then to the Sovereign, and is conducted to the Altar; where, taking off his cap, and making another reverence, he kneels and offers gold and ſilver in the baſon; and, returning in the ſame order, goes into his ſtall; where, making his reverence, he ſits down.

Then two Officers of Arms attend the next Knight, or Knights in ſeniority being Companions; who offer in like manner, and ſo on till all the Knights and the Proxy have offered, and aſcended into their ſtalls.—N. B. The Provincial Kings of Arms attend thoſe Knights who are of the Blood Royal; and the Senior Heralds, in rotation, the other Knights Companions.

Divine Service proceeds; and, when ended, the Prelate is conducted to his ſeat by the Verger of St. George's Chapel.

DINNER.

When the firſt ſervice is placed on the tables of the Sovereign and Knights, the Knights and Officers being in their Order in the Preſence Chamber as before, and his Majeſty under the State: a proceſſion is made to Saint George's Hall, in the following order:

The Officers of Arms.
The Knights, in their Order, according to their Stalls.
The Officers of the Order,
The Lord Chamberlain. The Sword of State.
THE SOVEREIGN,

The Officers of Arms divide at the lower end of the Hall; the Knights above them in a line according to their ſeniority (the ſenior neareſt to the State,) who take off their caps and feathers as the Sovereign paſſes. The Officers of the Order proceed before the Sovereign to the Haut-Pas, and then go behind the Knights.

The Sovereign being under his State, ſalutes the Knights; and the Princes of the Blood Royal aſcend the haut-pas, and ſtands at the ends of the table: the Prince of Wales on his Majeſty's right hand, and the other Princes of the Blood according to their rank.

Grace being ſaid by the Prelate, the Sovereign ſits down.

Then the Knights put on their caps; and are conducted by the Officers of Arms to the table, the ſeniors firſt; paſſing up from the lower end, and taking their places according to their ſeniority. The Proxy of the Earl of Hardwicke takes his place below the Junior Knight.

Towards the latter end of the firſt courſe, a large gilt cup being brought to the Sovereign by the Cup Bearer, his Majeſty drinks to the Knights; who being, at his Majeſty's command informed of the ſame by Garter, ſtand up uncovered, altogether pledge the Sovereign, then ſit down, and put on their caps.

Dinner being ended, the Knights place themſelves in a line as before dinner; and grace being ſaid by the Prelate; and the Sovereign having waſhed; the Knights altogether make their reverences to his Majeſty, who puts off his cap, and ſalutes them.

Then the Knights and Officers return to the Preſence Chamber before the Sovereign, in the ſame order in which they came from thence.

ISSAAC HEARD GARTER.

COSTUME OF THE KNIGHTS OF THE GARTER.

HIS MAJESTY has ordered that not the ſlighteſt deviation from the coſtume of the TWELFTH CENTUARY be on any account attempted. The magnificence of the dreſs far excels that of the Knights of the Bath—it is very expenſive, the coſt of each ſuit being about 400l.

The waiſtcoat or VEST, is Cloth of ſilver, and made to button behind—there are no leſs than 400 ſugar loaf buttons on it, all of which are worked in the moſt exquiſite manner with ſilver. The buttons are placed in rows on different parts of the dreſs, particularly on the ſleeves, and the whole is after the Spaniſh taſte. The BREECHES are very full, and are compoſed of the ſame materials as the waiſtcoat, and made in the ſame ſtyle—round the knee are bunches of very narrow lace and farſnet ribbon.

Over the ſhoulders is thrown a CRIMSON VELVET SURCOAT, lined with white farſnet, and ornamented with a hanging ſleeve of the ſame materials. On the right ſhoulder is placed the HOOD, which is faſtened by a large bow of white ribbon.

The MANTLE which covers the whole, is made of garter blue velvet, lined with farſnet ſilk, and faſtened by a cordon of purple ſilk and gold lace, from the two ends of which are ſuſpended two maſſy taſſels of purple and gold. On the left ſhoulder of the mantle is fixed the ORDER of the Garter, encircled by gold embroidery. Around the neck is worn the COLLAR of the order.

A very large roſette of narrow white ribbon and ſilver lace, placed in alternate rows, is fixed on the right knee. The SHOES are of white kid, with red morocco heels, and ornamented with large ſilver roſettes. White kid GLOVES, with three rows of ſilver lace. The SWORD, with a baſket hilt of gold, with a crimſon velvet ſcabbard and belt. The head dreſs conſiſts of a Spaniſh hat of black velvet, turned up in front, and ornamented with jewels and ſixteen white oſtrich feathers, ſurmounted by real Heron feathers, finiſhes the ſplendid habiliments of a Knight of the Moſt Noble Order of the Garter. The plume of heron feathers is ſaid to coſt 130 guineas.

THE GLOBE—20th. April.

The Funds yeſterday experienced a further depreſſion, which is attributed to the dubious aſpect of affairs, in the Weſt Indies, as well as to the anſwer of the Ruſſian Court, which, it is ſaid, has declined taking an active part in the preſent ſtate of Continental affairs, but will lend its cordial and energetic aſſiſtance in reconciling the belligerent powers.—This reſult perfectly agrees with every intimation or opinion we have offered to our readers.

The laſt French papers are filled with the additional "pomp, pride and circumſtance" of the Corſican Imperial Family, one of the Royal Siſters having added a young Princeſs thereto. The Empreſs Mother is alſo now brought forward, to receive due homage, &c.

The French Ambaſſador at Madrid, is ſaid to have obtained permiſſion for the embarkation of fifteen thouſand French troops from Cadiz or Ferrol. The Spaniards have nine ſail of the line at Cadiz ready for ſea.

It is rumoured that four ſail of the Breſt fleet have certainly eſcaped thro' the paſſage Du Raz.

It is reported at Venice, that the Auſtrian Venetian frontiers, which, according to the Treaty of Luneville, have hitherto had the Adige for their boundary, will extend to the Adda—in return for which, the Emperor of Auſtria will concede to France other advantages.

In the Moniteur of the 4th. is Imperial decree, regulating, ſkill, the new coſtume of the Italian Conſuls.

FOR THE MADRAS COURIER.

TO PHILLIDA.

PHILLIDA! fay, why all this care
To look more pretty fine and fair?
Your form, your walk, your lovely face,
You deck with every winning grace:
But ah! your MIND neglected lies,
A jewel that you cannot prize.

At admiration do you aim?
Know Fops alone will give you fame:
But mental beauties only raife,
Perennial, warm and honeft praife.
The giddy chat, th' unmeaning fmile,
May pleafe the worthy for a while
But fober focial fenfe alone,
Can long fecure their hearts your own.

Caught by the Peacock's brilliant guife,
We fix on him our wan'dring eyes,
But when he opes his fcreaming throat,
We fhun the harfh difcordant note;
Whene'er the gentle virgin Dove,
Pours out her plaint of pureft love,
With rapture I attend the ftrain!
And figh Phillida is fo vain.

Think not my Fair my counfel's rude,
I love you, and I muft intrude;
If meanly I was prone to flatter
As well as Foplings I could chatter,
Your full ripe cheek, your ebon treffes,
Which every gentle gale careffes,
The gleaming ftar in either eye,
That fhames the twinklers of the fky;
The well turn'd breaft where Love repofes,
Where Lillies vie with vernal rofes;
Your noble, and yet lovely fhape,
That fets the youngfters all agape;
Your taper fingers fmooth and long,
And all your charms would grace my fong.

Oh ceafe Phillida to be vain,
And I fhall be the happieft fwain,
Let prudence guide you in your ways
I'll be the foremoft in your praife.

If ficknefs dims your radiant eyes,
And every blooming beauty flies,
Should age come on (which furely will)
Our youthful currents all to chill;
What bleffing can you then beftow
To cheer a gloomy night of woe?

Be all your pains for Worth inclin'd,
And poliih well that Jewel—MIND,
Let REASON o'er your acts prevail;
Then age or ficknefs may aflail,
Ten thoufand ills may threaten round,
Yet Peace fhall in our hearts be found,
No ftorm can chill—no cold can blight,
The comforts of our wintry night.

Oh ceafe Phillida to be vain,
And I fhall be the happieft fwain.
