It is not a little forprizing that a fovereign for aricently definous of reforing peace, as M. de Novofitzoff alledges him to be, theold begin by calling in gettion wherever protects the fo-cial order and tranquility of flates. The po-ticula differes of France had long feemed the only reafonable motive that could impede the partice views of the Powers around, and for-port their anxiety and diffraft. They could hope for nothing more advantageous to their mod important interefts, than to treat with a Government analogues to their easy, and which by adjaming the M jetty, afforded the flability of regular form. By what prodigy has the Ca-inet of Rotting, overlooking this principle, in-volved lifelf in foch ambiguity of exprefilom, then views paramount to the general intereft of Europe.
